DEDICATION

THIS EDITION OF THE ST DAVID'S YEARBOOK IS DEDICATED TO

THE MEMORY OF THE LATE BISHOP REGINALD ORSMOND, BISHOP OF THE DIOCESE OF JOHANNESBURG AND VISITOR TO ST DAVID'S MARIST INANDA.

Reginald Joseph Orsmond was born in Johannesburg in 1931.
Educated at Jeppe Boys High, he was ordained priest in 1954.
Inspired by the Boys Town founded by Father Flanigan in Nebraska, he set about a similar ministry to boys from broken homes on the Oakford farm in the Magaliesberg in 1958.

In 1984 he was appointed Bishop of the Diocese of Johannesburg. He died on 19 May 2002.

He was always delighted to come to our school and to officiate on memorable occasions such as the turning of the first sod for the Champagnat Hall in 1998 and then to bless it in 1999.

May he rest in peace.

THE EXECUTIVE HEADMASTER'S REPORT

EXECUTIVE HEAD'S SPEECH PRIZE GIVING 2002

Mr Graeme Codrington, Members of the Board, Distinguished Guests, Parents, Staff and Gentlemen of St David's Marist:

Several cannibals were recently hired by a big corporation. "You are all part of our team now", said the HR rep during the welcoming briefing. "You get all the usual benefits and you can go to the cafeteria for something to eat but please don't eat any of the other employees". The cannibals promised. Four weeks later their boss remarked "You are all working very hard and I am satisfied with you. However, one of our secretaries has disappeared. Do any of you know what happened to her?" The cannibals all shook their heads, "No". After the boss had left the leader of the cannibals said to the others, "Which one of you idiots ate the secretary?" A hand raised hesitantly to which the leader of the cannibals continued, "You fool, for four weeks we have been eating managers and no-one noticed anything but now you had to go and eat the secretary". I know that this joke will find a good deal of appeal to the staff who will substitute "teacher" for "secretary" and, indeed, amongst the administrative staff it will go down well!

At the start of the year the school restructured with the appointment of an Executive Head and a Head of the High School and a Head of the Prep School. The role of the Executive Head is being defined and hasn't really been bedded down yet but I am optimistic that with the appointment of a Deputy Head in the High School, Mr David Smith, that the Head of the High School, Mr Malcolm Williams, and myself as Executive Head will be able to get on with the jobs to which we have been appointed.

My speech today will be mercifully short. It will not be a report on the year but rather a look at what defines a quality Catholic school and a brief environmental scan. I was looking through the programme for this Prize Giving and under the Matric Academic Achievements for 2001 it said that St David's had achieved a 100% pass rate in the Independent Examination Board examinations since its inception at St David's. Now I am not quite sure how significant this statistic is - although that is not a challenge to the matric class of 2003 to alter the pattern! Surely university exemption rate is a far better yardstick for rating a school, perhaps the number of pupils who take Maths and Science on Higher Grade and their achievements in matric is a better yardstick. But more pertinently surely a good education should be about far more than exam results. We cannot simply prepare our pupils to jump through the hoops of tests and syllabuses and shy away from taking them into the deeper, broader and more uncertain territory of mind and spirit. By concentrating on the preparation of our children for the certainties of criterion reference testing, we risk failing to prepare them sufficiently for a world of uncertainty, unpredictability and risk. While a school must inform it must also seek more than mere information. To quote T.S. Eliot's lines from "The Rock":

"Where is the life we have lost in living?
Where is the wisdom we have lost in knowledge?
Where is the knowledge we have lost in information?"

If the world is to be made a better place we must need continually to be looking up above and beyond, beyond the contemporary fashion, the accepted way of doing things and the habits and prejudices of our age. Outcomes Based Education is in many ways very exciting but we must be careful not to become so obsessed with skills that we forget the knowledge content. You cannot really know about the First World War because you ask pupils to write letters from the trenches or study the Great Plague by drawing boils on your face.

Tony Jarvis, Head of Roxbury Latin School, Massuchusetts, the oldest boys' school in America, in an inspirational address to Heads at the Annual Conference in August, said that our children are crying out for spiritual fulfillment. He pointed out that many of the great American schools and universities had been founded not to reflect the spirit of the times but to oppose the spirit of the times. Schools need to believe in something and provide it. We need to be boldly counter-cultural. Our boys need to be introduced to real conversations with God. He quoted Isaiah, Chapter 40, vs 30-31:

"Isaiah:

"Those that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength Though youths grow weary and tired And vigorous young men stumble badly, Yet those who wait for the Lord Will gain new strength; They will rise up with wings like eagles, They will run and not get tired, They will walk and not become weary."

It is fashionable at the moment to talk about schools as businesses. Education is seen as a commodity. Schools market themselves aggressively using all the hype and oversimplification of the world of advertising. We talk about our parents and pupils as customers and products respectively.

This ascendant market metaphor with its celebration of individualism and self-interest and its materialistic definition of success should sit very uncomfortably with an authentic Marist Catholic school culture where education is seen as a process of growth and a search for truth, a call to service and a living out of explicit Christian values.

We talk values here, we talk Marist family, but perhaps increasingly we put our own narrow self interests first. Pope Paul VI spoke of the Catholic school as a "meeting place". This is an interesting image. It draws our attention to the interrelational nature of schooling, its foundation in human values. At St David's, especially as we become larger and more "successful", measured baldly in terms of results, we need to strive even harder to promote each other's development, to share values and knowledge, to cater for differences and not to gauge one person's success in terms of the success or failure of others.

We need to celebrate each others successes and to have a generosity of spirit. As teachers we need to care for each child as an individual, to find something positive to say and to continue to try and make our pastoral system better.

What does this all mean on a practical level? We need to reflect on our role as teachers and parents. As parents we need to ask ourselves the following questions:

- Are we satisfied with the amount of time we spend in the company of our children?
- What do we talk to them about?
- What are our expectations of our children's conduct?
- How do we reinforce desirable behaviour?
- How do we balance freedom and control?
- How well do we know our children's friends?
- Do we give clear moral guidance?

The Head Prefect elect, Gareth Kolkenbeck-Ruh, wrote in this week's newsletter that parents need to support the school and its discipline structures. The school and parents need to be in this together. After all we all want the same for our boys – to be confident, articulate and considerate young men who can take their place in society as enquiring, well balanced individuals, aware of their social responsibilities to the wider community.

Let me move away from the difficulties of teaching and learning and raising young men to consider the educational environment.

The Education Laws Amendment Bill was discussed in the National Assembly on 27 September and it is expected that it will be passed into law before the end of the year. The Act will centralise a great deal of power in the hands of the Minister. We hope that he will take the advice of the Ministerial Committee he establishes and allow the Independent Examinations Board exams to continue and reputable international exams. What we teach and why we teach it is a cornerstone of independence.

On the question of rates and taxes for schools it seems inevitable that we will pay something but are hopeful that, because schools fall under the category of limited use property rights, that we will qualify for a special rate for calculating rates.

The Independent Schools are also threatened by the lack of payment of subsidies – the subsidized schools are being threatened with compliance with various pieces of legislation or face future erosion on their subsidies. We are fearful that, having brought the subsidized schools to heel, that there will then be a move on the non-subsidized schools. Many of our fellow Catholic schools are under huge pressure because of the reduced subsidies.

The teacher shortage is beginning to really bite and only 3000 teachers are being trained this year compared with 31,000 in 1994. It is estimated that by 2006 there will be a teacher shortage of 50,000.

Curriculum issues are also a cause of stress and concern for teachers, pupils and parents. The introduction of the GETC in Grade 9 this year was chaotic in the state system and many schools have simply not done it. At the same time the requirements for a new matric, the "Further Education and Training Certificate", have been formulated. Once again the process appears to be rushed and the Minister has called for comments on the proposal with a view to announcing the final details early next year. It is envisaged that the present Grade 8's will be the first group to write the Further Education and Training Certificate in 2006. The features of the FETC will be that there will be far fewer subjects to choose from, dropping from the current 125 subject choices to approximately 26. There will be no Higher Grade/Standard Grade differentiation. Maths or Mathematical Literacy will be compulsory, Life Orientation will be compulsory, two official languages will be compulsory, plus three other subjects including two from the same subject grouping. We don't envisage that with our current subject choice and the range of subjects offered that we will have to radically change what is offered here.

The Independent Schools market in the northern suburbs remains fiercely competitive and we are all competing for a dwindling number of families who can afford our fees. The former "Model C" schools in the area continue to offer a good education at a considerably lower price. This remains a real challenge for us.

In conclusion, I would like to say that we look forward to 2003 with confidence. The infrastructure of the school has improved immeasurably over the past four or five years. Next year the Grade 00 Block will open. We have an excellent and highly motivated staff, both in the Prep and the High School and I believe that the new management structures will really start to take effect and to make a difference in 2003.

I should like to thank the staff for their hard work: the Headmasters:

- Mr Malcolm Williams you have had a baptism by fire this year and you have worked extraordinarily hard, and
- Mr Rick Wilson in the Prep School who continues to steer a very stable ship and to produce excellent results.

the Bursar's Department under Mr Mike Forder for the judicious management of the money – the school finds itself in a favourable financial position, especially when you consider that we have spent more than R15 million on capital development over the past six years, all the administrative staff and the ground staff – I thank them all for their hard work.

To the Board who give unstintingly of their time and advice.

To the boys I say a big "thank you". I don't think you are always the hardest working boys in the country but I think you have got to be amongst the nicest and you really do present very few problems.

To the parents – thank you for your support of the school in so many ways.

To my wife, Suzie, for her love, support and advice.

Finally to the matric group – continue to look up and beyond. I hope that your results are what you expect and I would like to close by offering you this traditional Irish prayer:

Take time to work - It is the price of success.

Take time to think - It is the source of power.

Take time to play - It is the secret of perpetual youth.

Take time to read - It is the foundation of wisdom.

Take time to be friendly - It is the road to happiness.

Take time to dream – It is hitching your wagon to a star.

Take time to love and be loved – It is the privilege of the Gods. Take time to look around – The day is too short to be selfish.

Take time to laugh – It is the music of the soul.

SAINT DAVID

St. David, Dewi Sant, is the patron saint of the Welsh, and March, 1, his feast day, is celebrated as a patriotic and cultural festival by the Welsh in Wales and around the world.

Dewi Sant was a Celtic monk of the sixth century. His mother was Non. The ruins of a small chapel dedicated to her memory may be seen near St. David's Cathedral. Its ruins remain there now. His father was Sant, a son of Ceredig, King of Cardigan. Little is know for certain about Dewi Sant, but he founded several religious centres in Wales and western England, was consecrated archbishop during a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, and lead an ascetic life. An account of his life was written towards the end of the 11th century by Rhygyfarch, a monk at Llanbadam Fawr near Aberys-twyth. Many prophecies were said to have preceded the birth of Dewi Sant, and many miracles were attributed to him. One miracle often recounted is that once when Dewi was preaching to a crowd at Llandewi Brefi those on the outer edges could not hear, so he spread a handkerchief upon the ground, and stood on it to preach, whereupon the ground swelled up and all could hear.

March 1, the date given by Rhygfarch for the death of Dewi Sant, was celebrated as a religious festival up until the Protestant Reformation of the 16th century. In the 18th century it became a national festival among the Welsh, and continues as such to this day. The celebration usually entails singing and eating, which may mean a meal is followed by singing, or much singing followed by a Te Bach, tea with teisen bach and bara brith. The Red Dragon, is flown as a flag or worn as a pin or a pendant and leeks are also worn, and sometimes eaten. In schools in Wales the boys take leeks to school, status being given to those who bring the biggest leeks, and eat them earliest in the day.

> St. David's Marist College is so named after Bishop David O'Leary, the catholic Bishop of Johannesburg who was bishop at the time of the school's foundation in 1941.

Statue of St. David in the cathedral at Pembrokeshire.

The cathedral was built upon the site, in the far southwest of Pembrokeshire, of St David's 6th century monastery.

St David's Cathedral has been a site of pilgrimage and worship for many hundreds of years and remains a church serving a living community. This community is represented not only by the people of the parish of St David's but by all who find peace in this place of prayer and devotion.

CHAPLAIN'S NOTES

"Where there is no vision the people perish." (Proverbs 29:18)

That is certainly not a possibility at St David's. In our school we have the overall Christian vision of the Gospels to guide all aspects of our conduct and also the specific filter of St Marcellin's vision for guiding a Marist school. And fundamental to both is the spirituality that is engendered through daily prayer and the celebration of Holy Mass and the other sacraments. We start each day with prayers – in the Staff Room and in the two quadrangles where the boys of the High School and the Preparatory gather at the start of each day. A Grade 8 pupil expressed the purpose so succinctly: "Prayers always begin our day and form an integral part of life at school, providing us with a springboard to start the day; reminding us of the boundaries we need to keep; and the heritage we are proud of."

In his address at the College Prizegiving in November Mr Edey spoke of what defines a quality Catholic school. His quotations from chapter 40 of Isaiah the prophet and T.S. Eliot's The Rock (which may be read in the full text of his speech reproduced elsewhere in this Yearbook) threw into focus aspects of the vision that inspires us at St David's. Now words are not enough; neither for adults and certainly not for children. These ideals need to be expressed in symbols and tangible realities. Every church school has a chapel; Catholic schools have crucifixes and statues as aids to prayer and as reminders of what is not seen but is believed. We know these material things are not the reality but help us to focus on the reality they represent. To this end myself, some staff and parents have been dreaming of making the school chapel more prominent and central to school life here at St David's. The existing chapel was always understood by the Brothers to be a temporary arrangement.

A double classroom that was last decorated in 1969 when the liturgical requirements of Vatican II dictated an altar facing the congregation, an ambo from which to proclaim the word of God, and a tabernacle for the reservation of the Blessed Sacrament to be separate from the altar, still serves. This chapel is remote from the High School boys and is perceived from its location in the Prep school as belonging to that school. With the building of the new Champagnat Hall and the extra wing of classrooms to close the High School quadrangle, the possibility of a free standing chapel has gone. But why can't the chapel be brought into the quad to make it more prominent and accessible to both High School and Prep boys? A simple exchange of two classrooms in the corner on the ground floor of the south-west corner of the quad would serve well. Most High School boys use this corridor when arriving for school. It would make a more powerful and tangible focal point for the spiritual orientation of our school and certainly enflesh the spiritual vision so eloquently expressed by the Executive Head.

The Grade 8 servers of 2001 continued to serve this year because only one boy from the Prep, Ryan Abrey, volunteered to join the team. My special thanks to Dominic Hodge, Adriano Mendes, Adam Smith, Jonathan Khoury, Sabelo Sithebe and Christopher Steinbach for continuing to serve in 2002.

Of great assistance, too, were the regular sacristans Ryan Jamieson and Marcel Taljaard who set up the altar for Mass on the stage. David de Villiers and Matthew Franzsen reliably manned the overhead projector for Hymn singing and for Mass.

THE CANADA EXPERIENCE

Out tour departed on the 18th July 2002 from Johannesburg International Airport. The group mainly comprised of seven girls from De La Salle Victory Park and six of boys from St David's. The adults that had the unlucky task of controlling us were Rev. Bruce, Father Bryan Gamba, Mrs Potgieter and Brother George. After gathering at the airport we had a quick mass and then we were off, free from our parents for 12 days.

Our first stopover was London and because we had a wait of nine hours for our connecting flight we went off to tour the city. While the guys went off to see the sights the girls proceeded to head off for Harrods. A few hours later we met again and headed off for the airport.

We arrived in Toronto Canada on the 20th July. After two days of flying of which some of us hadn't slept the whole way we were pretty wired and tired. There was however another three hour bus ride to Peterborough where we were due to stay with host families. Reverend made the bus journey longer by giving a lift to some Columbian pilgrims who were lost and stranded after they missed their bus. We arrived at Peterborough at ten o'clock at night.

At Peterborough the group took part in many activities. One was Stations Of The Cross which we carried a 200kg wooden cross for approximately six kilometres. Every now and then we stopped, and said a Station of the Cross. We eventually erected the cross by a highway. Also in Peterborough we had some time off to do what we wanted. On one of the days we borrowed our host family's car and headed off to one of the numerous lakes in the area. While driving with Reverend we discovered that he likes to race Dodge Vipers (in a Chrysler!) and has the knack of ending up on the wrong highway heading for the next state 500km away.

On the 23rd July we headed back to Toronto. There we were hosted by De La Salle School. After receiving our passes which gave us free access to trains and busses we toured the city centre. A day after we arrived we found out that Mary-Anne, one of the De La Salle girls and Sizwe had been chosen to represent South Africa at the WYD. This would mean that they would be on stage with the Pope and carry the South African flag into the Papal Mass. Our central point for us was the Exhibition Centre. There we had daily mass and where we received our provided lunch (Mc Donald's usually was eaten in place of this). At the opening Papal Mass, the Reverend being the Reverend managed to get into the restricted backstage area and managed to meet the Pope. The rest of us however were stuck behind a fence 100m away.

The rest of the week followed in a series of activities, sightseeing, and shopping. At the school the boy's and girl's rooms were situated on the opposite sides of the corridor. This resulted in midnight raids to steal the fan (30 degrees Celsius at night) from the girl's room. A different victim was targeted each night. On average we got about six hours of sleep nightly.

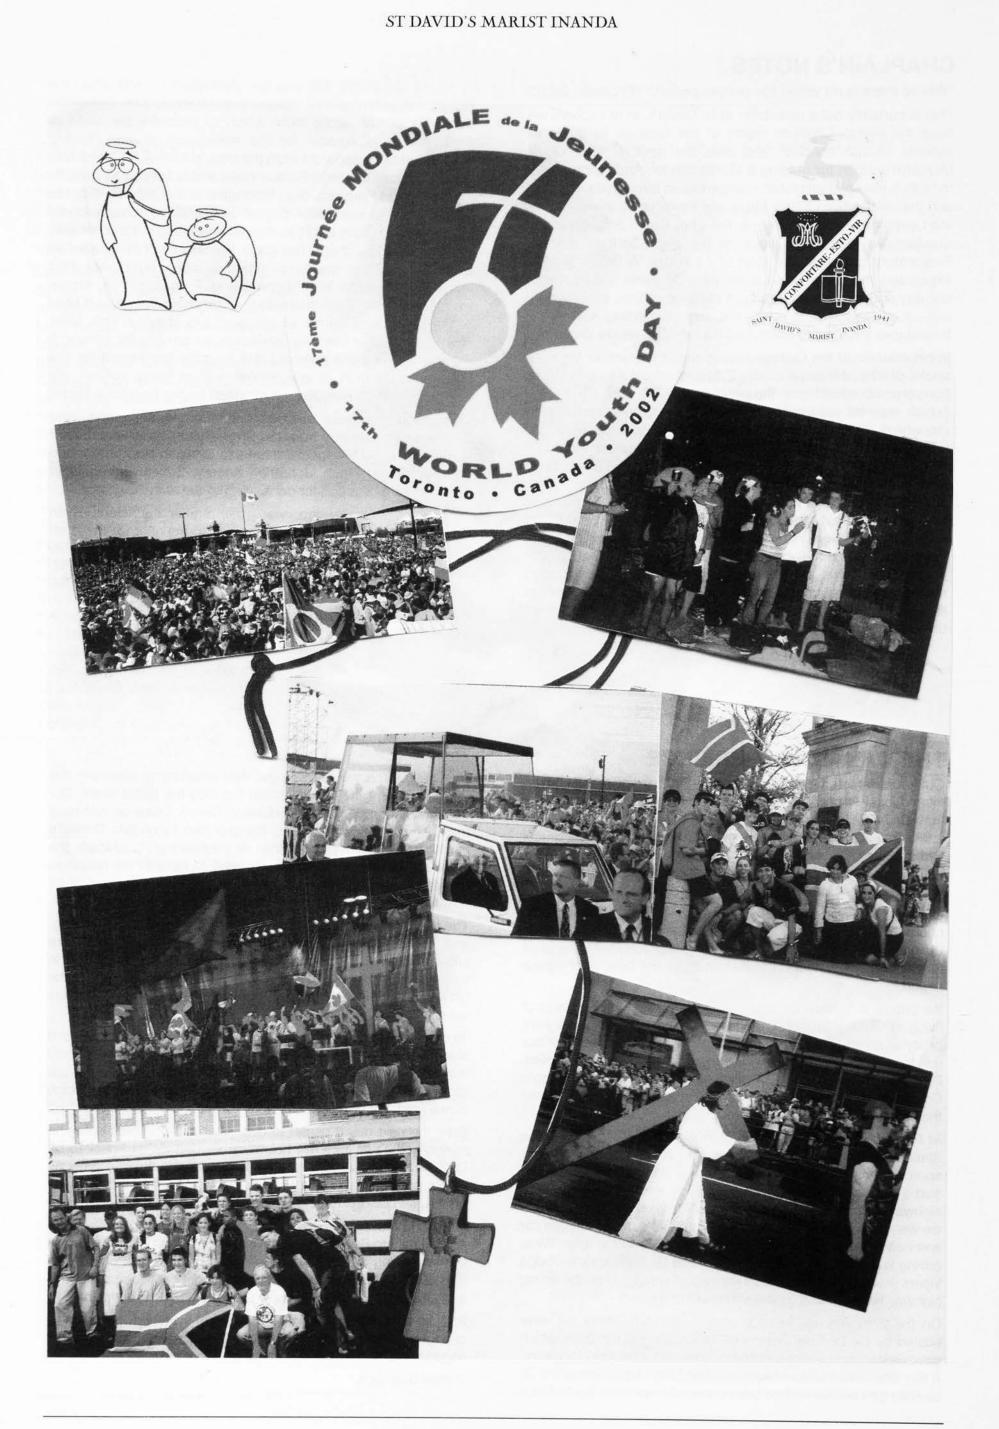

To close off WYD 2002 we took part in the traditional night vigil and sleepover in the park. Being tough South Africans we brought only our sleeping bags and backpacks. Being hot as it was we got roasted in the sun. As night fell the Pope celebrated mass at which Sizwe read. We all retired after that.

Early the next day it began to rain. After standing wet, cold and hungry in the rain for a few hours we decided to head back to De La Salle and get ready for our departure later in the day. As soon as we got back to De La Salle the rain stopped and the clouds parted, we couldn't have had better luck. We left later that night for home

As I sat next to Rev on the plane (for the 3rd time!) I commented on this tour being the best I had ever been on. The look on his face was of utter shock and surprise. He thought the tour hadn't gone well at all, but you see Rev wasn't with us all the time was he?

And so ended the 17th WYD, we left enlightened, some of us changed and with many new friendships made. We however eagerly await WYD 2005 in Germany. - Poor Rev!!

The dedication of this group of Grade 6 and Grade 7 coworkers demonstrates their commitment to Marcellin Champagnat's ideals of serving and praying for others less fortunate.

Early in the year the co-workers spent time at Forest Town School. Thanks to a generous donation from a parent at St David's we were able to contribute towards the renovation and painting of the playground at Forest Town. The boys found the tour of the school interesting and enjoyed some playtime with the students at the school.

The co-workers also collected Easter chocolates. These were presented in two huge hampers for our successful Easter Hamper Raffle.

The co-workers have helped out at various school functions. Their contribution towards the selling of U10 soccer raffle tickets was invaluable. They also helped with a number of duties at the First Holy Communion Mass. The co-workers manned a games stall on Champagnat Day and also helped to man the Grade 3 jelly and custard table. The co-workers continue to sell and sew blazer buttons throughout the year.

During the last term of the year the co-workers collected baby formula, food, clothing and blankets in aid of Clairvaux Baby Haven. This is a small home accommodating very young abandoned or orphaned babies and it is affiliated to Mother Theresa's home in Yeoville.

The Prep co-workers donated and wrapped Christmas gifts for the aged of the Alexandra Old Age home. The annual Christmas party was hosted for them at St David's and much time was spent working together with the high school co-workers so that decorations, food and entertainment make the occasion special for all involved.

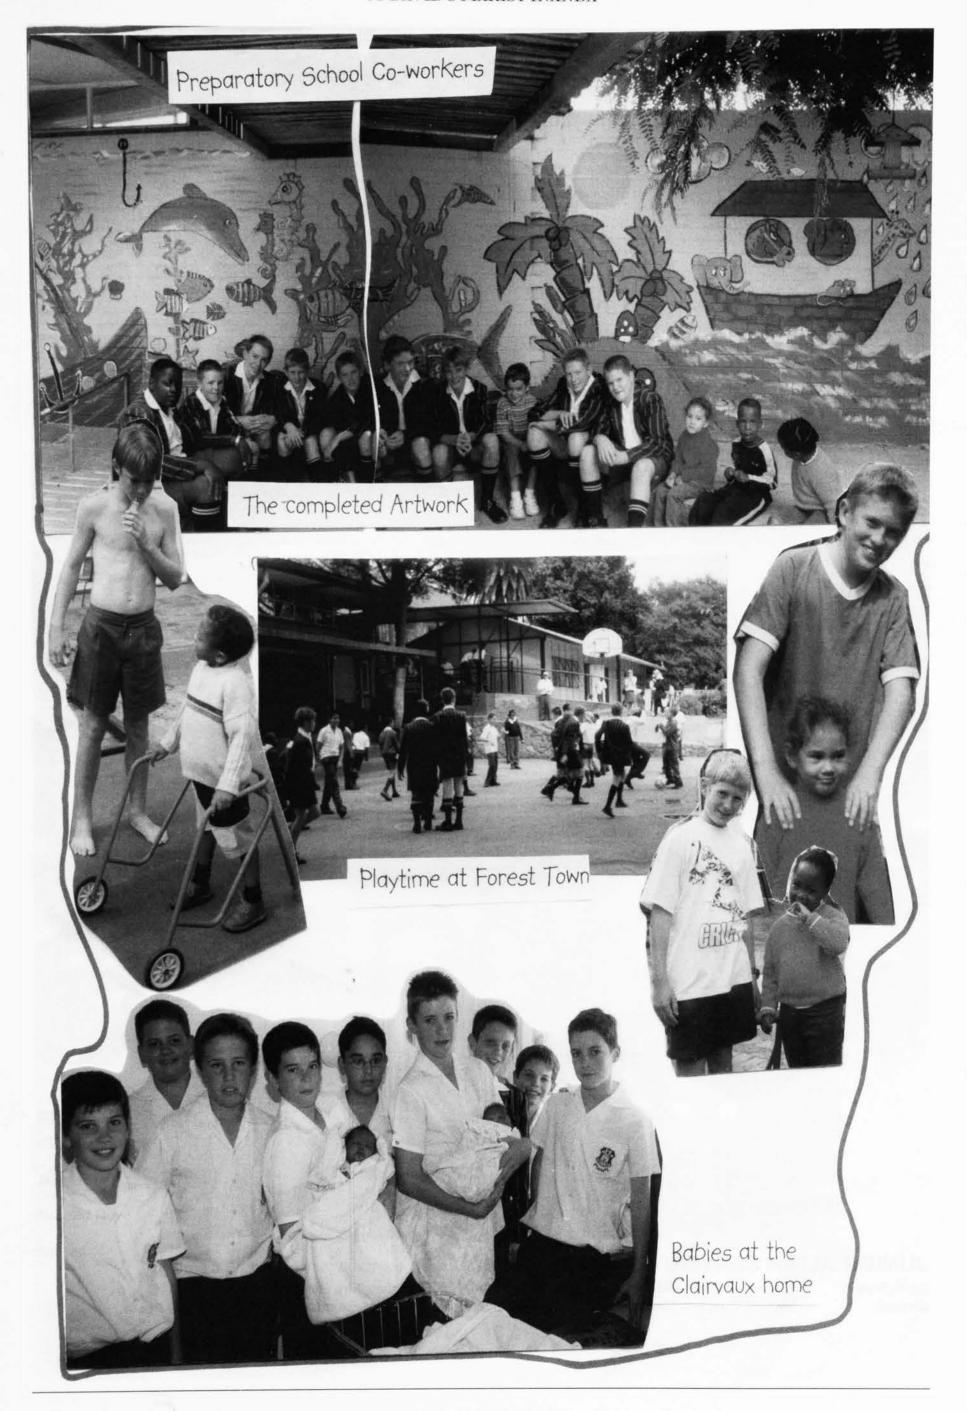

Congratulations to all the Grade 6 and 7 co-workers for all the time and effort put into making other peoples lives more comfortable. A big thank you must also go to those students and parents of the St David's Marist family who, through their support, helped to make 2002 a rewarding year for the coworkers.

Junior Altar Servers

In past years the Junior Altar Servers have always served at Mass on Friday, but 2002 saw the Grade 3's join the Grade 1 and 2 boys for Mass on a Tuesday.

This year 9 Catholic and non-Catholic boys chose to be trained and they really rose to the occasion. There was great excitement when the first four boys were chosen to serve towards the end of the first Term. They were very proud as they walked down the aisle ahead of Father for the first time and I must confess that I was extremely proud of them.

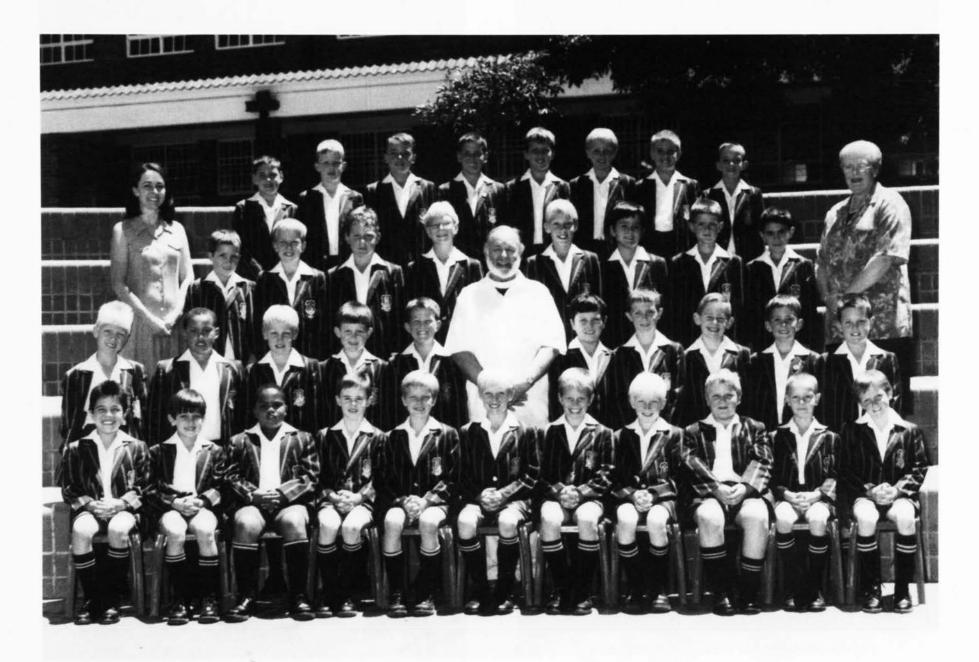

The boys are to be congratulated as they had no help from the Senior Altar Servers and have proved to be extremely competent. They have been eager and very dedicated in serving the Lord in a very special way and I hope that they will continue to serve in the Senior Primary.

Senior Altar Servers

The year 2002 saw the largest ever group of senior altar servers at St David's. 48 boys from Grade 4 to 7 were involved every Friday afternoon. We met in the school chapel, where the boys were taught how to serve at Holy Mass, in a dignified and humble manner. They also spent time sharing, discussing and learning more about the Mass, in order to gain a better understanding of their service. These boys are to be highly commended for their enthusiasm, commitment and loyalty. All altar servers received a certificate at Prize-giving and 18 of the boys received an Altar Servers badge at our final Assembly, for exceptional service.

First Holy Communion

As was the case in 2001, the morning of the First Holy Communion dawned grey and wet. Fortunately the 40 boys were not deterred by the weather and excitedly waited for their candles to be lit before walking down the aisle to take up their seats while the soloists, Mrs Mandy Everson and Mr Ron Thackwell, sang "Suffer Little Children" together with the Grade 3 choir.

The service was conducted by our Chaplain, Father Michael Austin, and the boys together with their families listened carefully to the homily. The climax of the Mass saw the boys receiving Communion for the first time while the soloists sang "Panis Angelicus".

While the parents and their guests were enjoying refreshments and group photographs were being taken, the Hall was cleared and the stage curtains opened to reveal tables beautifully laid for breakfast which was prepared by Mrs Rodrigues and Mrs McCarthy. Tradition prevailed and each boy gave his Mother a rose and a hug before receiving his certificate from Father Michael.

My thanks to the parents for supporting their sons during the year for the preparation of the two Sacraments which they received, namely, Reconciliation and Holy Communion.

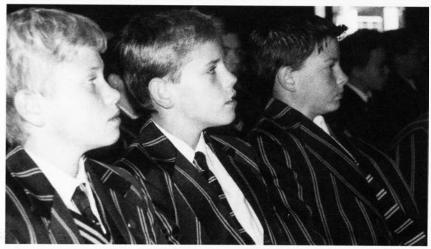

Special thanks must go to Mrs Zambon for helping to prepare the boys, Mrs Hedding, Mrs Hayward, Mrs Carides and Mrs Moody. Thanks also to Mrs Watson for the refreshments and to all those Staff who helped in any way to make this special day, a memorable one for the 2002 Communicants.

CHAMPAGNAT DAY

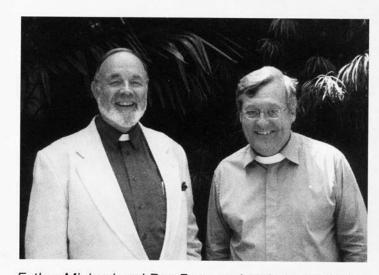

Pupills attending the Champagnat Day Mass

6 JUNE 2002

For many years the day was started with Mass, followed by the distribution of cokes and buns to the boys and then numerous soccer games, of which the highlight was (and still is) Prep Staff versus the boys. By eleven thirty everything was over and everyone went home. Nothing wrong with that and the early day was most welcome.

Several years ago significant changes were introduced when, in keeping with our Founder's principles of educating the needy and the poor, the Staff Bursary Fund was established. It was initiated and funded by staff with voluntary monthly contributions. It was an attempt to put our money where our mouths were and swell the numbers of pupils from disadvantaged backgrounds attending St. David's. It therefore makes sense that our Founder's Day, 6 June, is used to raise funds for this worthy cause. Generous donations from the PTA and the Matric Dance Committee help to sustain the fund.

Champagnat Day 2002 was once again a day to remember, a showcase for the Marist Family. The day commenced with Mass held in the Champagnat Hall, followed by a scrumptious breakfast donated and served by Mothers in the College Pavilion. Staff members managed different stalls and with the help of generous donations from pupils and parents, the rugby fields were transformed into a hub of activity. Jumping castles, soccer matches, archery, darts, pillow fights, tug of war, skittles, etc. provided entertainment for everyone.

Team effort is what makes our special day extra-ordinary. To everyone who has been so willing to assist, a big THANK YOU!

THE HEADMASTER'S REPORT

Mr. Malcolm Williams Headmaster of the College

HEADMASTER'S SPEECH – PRIZE-GIVING 2002

Mr Graham Codrington, Mr and Mrs Edey, members of the Board, distinguished guests, parents, staff and the young men of St David's Marist Inanda.

In the midst of our hurly burly world this morning presents us with an opportunity to reflect on the year that has passed, to celebrate its successes and also look to ways in which we can improve in the future. Robert McKenzie, a TV critic in the 1970's had the following to say about teenagers ... "Cute teenagers exist only on Television I suspect. I know there are none in my neighbourhood".

Dorothy Parker had a slightly different comment stating, "The best way to keep teenagers home is to make the home atmosphere pleasant, and let the air out of the tyres".

In the past, teenagers faced a very different world: In 1900 for example, Harrods, of London, installed an escalator to take shoppers from the first to the second floor. There was consternation: people worried about what would happen to their bodies with such a rapid rise in altitude. Harrods comforted their customers by serving glasses of brandy at the second floor!

In 1903 Octave Chanute wrote that "flying machines may carry mail in special cases ... but the useful loads ... will be very small." A California newspaper expressed concern about the railroads, claiming "the huge iron rails will reverse the earth's magnetic field with catastrophic effects."

The Royal Society in England warned against the railways, advising that at speeds over 30 mph the air supply would be cut off, and people would die of asphyxiation. The College of Physicians concurred, assessing that at speeds of 30mph plus passengers would suffer headaches, vertigo and would lose their sight! I trust that Ms Cotton and the Science staff will rectify any misconceptions.

Now, we have gone from the iron railroads to bullet trains; from staring up romantically at the moon to staring at Neil & Buzz on it; from snail mail to email; from science fiction to the PC, to palm top computers; from 150 000 computers worldwide in 1972, to IBM's boast in 1980 that by 1990 the decade would demand a market of 275 000 computers, to 60 million sold in that decade, to Intel shipping in the region of 100 million processors by 2000.

In spite of this, our young men, who can be exasperating, have once again ensured that the school has had a successful year and they have been involved across the academic, cultural and sporting areas as well as areas of service and support for others. I should like to highlight some of the achievements and successes of the year.

Our Cricketers continue to be a major force in Johannesburg with teams across the age groups securing victories against other leading cricket schools. Ashfak Abowath has played at Senior Provincial level for most of the last season and a number of other individual players received provincial recognition, including Mathew Benton and Pumelela Matshikwe at Gauteng U19 B level. Apart from good team performances there were a number of individual performances and mention should be made of Gareth Bentton in U14 who recently scored 2 centuries in a row at U14A level.

The Swimmers confirmed their status as challenging, to be amongst the top two boys' schools in Gauteng with a fine showing in the 10 schools gala held at Wits University in the first term where St David's was placed 2nd out of the Gauteng schools participating.

The Waterpolo section continues to grow and we at present also offer more tennis teams than any other boys' school in Johannesburg. Both of these sections have changed their fixture lists considerably and are now competing against the strongest schools in Johannesburg.

The Winter sports of Rugby and Hockey both reflected a high degree of involvement by boys and staff with a fair amount of success achieved by teams across the age groups. The 1st XI hockey team maintained their A section status in the Aitken trophy and the 1st Rugby team fared well although they often were disappointed by losing games very narrowly. The Under 16A Rugby team won 11 out of 12 matches.

Special mention should be made of Neil le Roux for achieving Gauteng U19A Craven Week colours for Rugby, and David Venter who not only represented the South Gauteng U18A Hockey side but went on to make the South African U18B squad at the Interprovincial Tournament in July. A number of other players achieved provincial representation at age group level.

We also had an active Cross-country section which fared very well in the interschool leagues and a number of our athletes performed with distinction. Mrs van der Merwe's enthusiasm in this area certainly paid off.

Our Canoeists are increasingly active and we are now amongst the top canoeing schools in Gauteng, with a number of our boys achieving provincial representation.

Our golfers have also performed well, finishing 2nd in the Inter-Schools golf league, and James Oberholzer is to be congratulated on being selected to represent the Gauteng U19A golf team.

Our Athletes are also to be commended on an excellent season where again they took on schools with far larger pupil numbers and emerged victorious. Special mention should be made of the A team's performance at the Inter High Athletics meeting at King Edwards where the team finished 6th out of 8 schools and achieved more points than St David's had ever achieved in this event. In terms of individual performances special mention must be made of Matthew Sherratt who won the Under 14 1500 and 800 metres finals at the Inter-High as well as Gareth Benton who won the 200 metres U14. I should like to thank the boys and the staff for their efforts and especially Mr Ireland for the tremendous amount of work that he put in over a very pressured season.

For the first time this year we ran a soccer section in the Term 3 Soccer League and our teams fared well, with two teams making the semi-finals of the knock-out competition and the U14's narrowly losing their final by 1 goal to nil. Athletics remains the major sport over this period and all players who wish to play soccer are required to participate in Athletics.

This does highlight the Catch 22 situation we sometimes find ourselves in with the same pupils often being pulled in different directions because of the variety of activities that we offer. There is always the danger that we water our level of performance down to the point where we cannot remain competitive and this aspect cannot be lost sight of. At the same time one of the strengths of the school is the high level of involvement by the pupils and the number of teams put out in all sports.

Our Dramatic Society again undertook a combined production with the girls from Brescia with the focus on Alice in Wonderland with the play 'Alice'. This was certainly an exuberant light-hearted romp with many 'mad hatters' queuing up to attend tea parties. We are hoping to find other ways of providing positive and structured involvement with our sister schools.

The Drama department also put on the school production of "Guards! Guards!" by Terry Pratchet and certainly those who enjoy Terry Pratchet's off the wall humour had a great evening.

We also enjoyed the Senior and Junior Inter-House plays as well as the 2nd Theatre Sports Evening which was once again most successful.

Our debaters and public speakers again performed with enthusiasm and the Just-A-Minute evening was once again well attended. I should mention that the staff team again defeated the boys and it seems that the educators continue to 'rule the roost' in terms of having the gift of the gab. Others might argue that Rev. Bruce's adjudication was a more significant factor in the victory!

In the midst of all of this a number of activities also take place on a regular basis – our Archers continue to practise every Friday and participate in Inter-School competitions.

There have also been a number of excursions in different areas this year, some as part of our new Adventure Club. A group of boys went Scuba diving off Sodwana as part of a Scuba Diving programme. A separate group attended a three day ocean sailing course off Durban in April. There was a fly fishing tour to the Seychelles in which 10 boys took part, as well as a golf tour. The school Choir has also been started and practices have been held on Fridays this term. The Flicx Mats U12 Cricket Festival was also hosted by St David's and run most successfully and last December our facilities were also used for the Inter-Provincial Waterpolo tournament and it was pleasing to see how effectively boys from our Waterpolo section ran that tournament from an administrative point of view, under the guidance of Mr Buys and other staff members.

Six of our boys also participated in a Youth Pilgrimage to Canada where they had an audience with the Pope; they were part of a group of pupils from Johannesburg who were accompanied by Rev Bruce.

This year our Book Quiz competition was run at Grade 8, Grade 9 and Grade 10 level and the Grade 9's again were victorious over Rosebank Mercy with the Grade 10 and Grade 8 teams losing narrowly. This remains a positive addition to our extra curricular programme.

We were again represented on the Junior City Council, with Grant Gardner being selected as Mayor.

A number of boys remain heavily involved in our Service activities with regular visits to the Child Oncology Unit continuing through this year as well as the ongoing support of other charities. I do believe that there is scope, however, for more boys to become involved in our Service Activities and this is something that our boys need to address next year. We should also not forget our intrepid First Aiders, Media Monitors, Newsletter Editors and Sound and Lighting men, who serve our school loyally and are sometimes, I fear, taken a little for granted.

Mrs Marais continues to co-ordinate the SMILE programme, a programme which adds value and relies on the high level of involvement of Grade 9, Grade 10 and Grade 11 boys. Many of them came in during the August holidays to continue teaching as part of the SMILE literacy programme.

We also remain involved in the Science Expo's where we picked up a number of gold, silver and bronze medals. Our Business Game involvement saw one of our teams coming 2nd overall in the 'Income' section and we continue to enter candidates in the various Olympiads, many of whom excel. One person stands out as a result of his achievements. Shen Tian has had an excellent year. He has achieved 12th position in the Science Olympiad, he has won this year's National Computer Studies Olympiad, he has represented South Africa at U18 level for Maths, for the 3rd year running. He was the top Gauteng student in the Maths Olympiad and for the 2nd year running Shen has won the National Maths Olympiad. I am uncertain whether this has ever been achieved previously and certainly crowns a superb year for Shen. I believe it is also important to note that in spite of his achievements Shen has always maintained his humility and his dignity - and it is for this as much as his achievements that he has earned the respect of his peers and the staff. He has also remained fully involved in school activities and was involved in Second Team Hockey and scored for the 1st Cricket XI for a number of years. St David's has now achieved the rare distinction of having a pupil who has won the Maths Olympiad three times in the last 6 years with Daniel Wright having won it in the year before Shen joined the school. Shen has said that his goal was to emulate Daniel's achievements and he has certainly done so in no small measure.

What is most pleasing to note is that Shen has achieved these successes against the best in the country in an external assessment. We hope that he achieves his goals in the final examinations as well.

The Matric Dance was most successful with our boys once again transforming themselves into gallant young men escorting sophisticated and glamorous young ladies on their arms. It was also a pleasant change this year not to have to contend with camels suffering from a serious case of halitosis and avoiding limousines which did not this year get stuck under the drop-off canopy.

I should like to touch on a number of other aspects of school life this year. We relaunched out website and I should like to thank Mrs Crichton for facilitating this process and creating an effective and interesting site. Part of this project was to get our newsletter on line and as most of you know you are able to receive the weekly newsletter on line if you log on for it on the webpage. Our hope is that during next year the vast majority of the members of school community will receive their newsletter via email rather than in printed form every Friday.

Other initiatives this year have focussed on creating opportunities for interested parents and staff to be addressed on topical issues by guest speakers. This has been facilitated by Mrs Egenrieder, who has invited speakers such as Clem Sunter to address parents and staff, and the PTA who have launched the PT21 group. 'PT21' stands for 'Parenting and Teaching in the 21st Century' and a number of guest speakers have addressed interested parents and staff on some of the topical issues facing us as we strive to address the needs of our sons and our pupils.

Pink Floyd, the pop group that produced the well known album "The Wall' have those famous lyrics "We don't need no education, we don't need no thought control, all in all, we're just another brick in the wall" and I think sometimes that that is the way that our pupils perceive the system. I don't think this is what we are about; the challenge for us is to develop critical thinkers, people who are able to question and to think rather than to merely accept and I believe that the theoretical framework behind Outcomes Based Education has the same goal in mind. I trust our Matrics have moved beyond that classic piece of graffitti – "Yesterday, I couldn't spell 'educated'; now I are it."

At the same time, however, parameters have to be set. It's the challenge of the school to set parameters with the support of the parents and within that framework to enable children to develop themselves to their fullest capacity. There is no doubt we live in a rapidly changing social environment which has placed different pressures on parents and the school. There is a need for openness and trust at all times and we have to accept that some of those rites of passage which took place after one had left school in the past, for example, getting one's drivers licence, is now a major issue during the Grade 12 year. I am often questioned in a bemused fashion by Matrics who can't understand why they have to park on a section of gravel and sand rather than in the carpark. They do not accept readily my view that they can easily wash the dust off their car when they get home!

More seriously, it is clear from the Choices Programme that we facilitated this year at the school in Grades 9, 10 and 11 that the social environment is a pressured one. The focus of the Choices Programme is to try and give pupils a clearer idea of the fact that every choice has a consequence and the programme endeavours to put them in a position where they can make informed choices as opposed to uninformed ones. This is a process which is not merely an intervention but is ongoing and it really requires the input and support of both parents and the school to have the most positive impact. The parents who attended the feedback session found it most beneficial and a course for parents is included in our planning for next year. We are also examining ways in which we can attempt to facilitate better communication between our boys and their parents. There is no doubt that openness and trust between parents and child is central to the ability of our boys to deal with the challenges that they face. We need also to give our boys a greater sense of responsibility and demand this of them. This would affect all aspects of their involvement, from academic to co-curricular activities. At the end of the day the boys are accountable for what they do or do not do.

Other aspects we are examining at present is the whole concept of leadership at pupil level – we believe that one of our tasks is to find more opportunities for boys to take the lead on the one hand and to implement specific programmes to develop leadership skills across the school on the other. It is important to note that each individual makes a difference. Each parent, each pupil, each member of staff can and does make a difference. There are many visitors to the school who speak highly of the manners and enthusiasm of our boys and I can cite one incident where a Grade 11 boy spontaneously assisted as a guide around the school one afternoon recently and his enthusiasm and giving of his time resulted in those parents choosing St David's for their son for next year.

I should like to thank Nic Haralambous and the prefect group for their leadership during this year as they, have had the responsibility of leading the whole Matric group who are the leaders of the school. It is the boys who make any school and I believe the vast majority of our St David's boys do us proud.

The Matric group of this year has followed the example of the 2001 Matric group and set the tone for the school. They have taken the lead in various portfolio committees and they have certainly engendered a positive spirit and sense of camaraderie. I think of the Drum Café Spirit Building evening earlier in the year which was most successful and certainly the war cry, led by Ditsi Msimango, at the end of that evening even impressed the Drum Café members themselves in terms of the spirit and enthusiasm with which our boys took part. I think the spirit of the school is also reflected in the generous support which the boys offer their peers at functions like the Inter-House Swimming Gala, the Inter-High Athletics and also the support given to our 1st Rugby team at fixtures held at St David's. There is no doubt that the boys are spurred on by the enthusiastic support of their peers. This same sense of enthusiasm was evident after the final Matric assembly where a number of people had goosebumps following the tremendous war cry in the amphitheatre.

Credit must go to Fabio Cellini and Ditsi Msimango for the role that they have played as members of the Spirit Committee this year and they have certainly set a fine example for future members of that committee.

I should like especially to commend Nic Haralambous on the role that he has played this year in leading the school. He is a young man with extremely high standards and he always wanted things done as perfectly as possible. What has impressed me has been his willingness to enter into debate, to discuss issues at length, and make every effort to do what is best for the school. I have been impressed also by his determination to stand by his principles and not be swayed from these under pressure. I know he has the respect of many of the boys for the way that he has carried himself both at school and outside of the school during this year. I should also like to thank Gareth, his Deputy, and the other 3 Heads of Houses for the supportive role that they have played during the year.

The PTA continues to make a tremendous contribution to St David's and I should like to thank, the PTA for their hard work in organising evenings like Nightfever 2002 and the PTA Fun Day. Moreover, there is no doubt that our parents are an integral part of our College family and I should like to thank those many parents out there for their support of their sons and the school in so many ways throughout the year - whether it is in the Tuckshop, providing transport, or merely attending and supporting functions. I should also like to thank the Staff for their tremendous commitment to the boys under their care and to the school. There is no doubt that our staff bring a new meaning to the word 'multi-tasking' with most teachers being involved in a number of areas at the same time and certainly those who believe that teaching is an 8 - 2 job I do ask that you come and see me so that I can get you involved at St David's and put that myth to rest.

We are privileged to have a staff that is willing to go the extra mile for the benefit for your sons. I should also like to thank the staff for their support during this year - there is no doubt that it is the staff at the coal face who make the school the success that it is. I should like to congratulate Mr David Smith on his appointment as Deputy Headmaster in the High School and I believe that he will make a significant contribution in this role next year. I should also like to thank Mr Edey, the Executive Headmaster, for his support and encouragement as well as the Chairman of the Board, Tony Reilly, Vice Chairman, Eric Annegarn, and the members of the Board for their ongoing support and interest in the school, Dr Norman Cahi and the PTA for another successful year, all of those parents and interested Old Boys, Staff and Student coaches who contribute to the success of the school, Mr van der Merwe and ancillary staff, Mr Forder and the Administrative Staff and the secretarial staff specifically Mrs Dawn Arnold - who has to make every effort to organise my life. I should also like to thank my wife, Sue, for her patience, her understanding and her support.

2002 has been an exciting and very busy year. I look forward to 2003, which brings new challenges and opportunities for the school.

COLLEGE STAFF NEWS

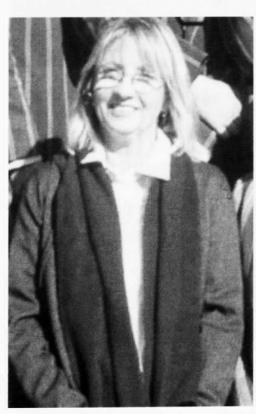

At the beginning of the year we welcomed Mrs Colleen Kennedy into the Maths Department and towards the end of Term One, Mrs Margi King joined us in the I.T. Department. Mrs Kim Roberts stood in for Mrs Russell (accouchement leave) and Mrs Snyman (Long Leave) during 2003. We are sorry that Mrs Roberts will be leaving us to take up a full-time position elsewhere. Mrs Russell is to be congratulated on the birth of her second child, Jarryd.

Mrs Martie Andrew left us at the end of the second term, and we would like to thank her for her years of commitment to St David's, in Geography and Afrikaans, and also extra-murally where her efforts saw chess increase in popularity at the school. We are very pleased that she has settled well at her new school.

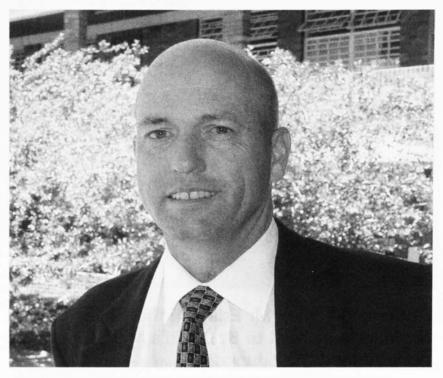

Mr Alex Gitlin joined the staff in the Geography Department at the end of Term Two, and Mrs Maralise van Zyl joined the Afrikaans Department at the same time, in a part-time capacity until the end of the year.

We bid farewell to Mrs Murphy at the end of this year as she takes up a position in the corporate world. Mrs Murphy has made a significant impact during her time in the High School. She has headed up the Accounting Department most effectively and ensured that the school has kept abreast of the latest trends in Accounting over the past few years. She has been heavily involved in school administration behind the scenes as well as always being on hand to assist with Matric Dances, Valentines Day, Swimming and Athletics, to name a few. Mrs Murphy is a professional who has always shown genuine care and concern for both her pupils and her peers. We shall miss her, but we wish her every success.

Mr David Smith is to be congratulated on being appointed as Deputy Headmaster of the High School from January 2003. Mr Smith has been HOD Geography, leading the department most successfully and ensuring that the school has maintained a very high standard in this subject. He was also Housemaster of College House this year as well as being heavily involved extramurally, especially in tennis where eight teams now compete on a regular basis. Mr Smith has picked up a number of aspects of his portfolio already and he has begun to make a difference. We wish him well as he takes up his new position formally in January.

Martie Andrew has joined a new school and we wish her great success.

NELSON MANDELA'S VISIT

Address given by Mr Edey on the Occasion of Mr Mandela's visit to St David's Marist Inanda on Wednesday 12 June 2002

Madiba

It is an extraordinary privilege to have you at our school and, in trying to find appropriate words to thank you, I feel rather in the position of the son buying a gift for his father, a man who has everything. You have been thanked by so many people – by Kings and Queens, Presidents, Religious Leaders, Pop Stars and by almost an entire nation of people in your beloved country, South Africa.

Time Magazine published a book towards the end of the last century titled "Great Leaders of the Twentieth Century". I looked for you under the chapter headed "The Leaders" but you weren't there. Instead you were under "The Activists". The introduction said 'if politics is the art of the possible, activism is the pursuit of the ideal'. Activists were the harness of dreams; they are men and women so bound to an abstract vision that they will pay any price to achieve it. For you the price was twenty-seven years in prison. You cherished the ideal of a democratic and free South Africa in which all persons would live together in harmony.

It was an ideal which you hoped to live for and achieve – but, if need be, it was an ideal for which you were prepared to die. Eight years into our new democracy too many South African are quick to forget about where we were twelve years ago – staring into an abyss of bloody revolution and disaster. One too easily forgets the siege economy, detention without trail, torture by the security police, the State of Emergency and the fact that black and white children could not go to school together.

We have so much to be thankful for but our new country requires commitment, work, passion and energy. We have much to celebrate ...

Isn't it just remarkable that today -

- Bafana Bafana are on the brink of qualifying for a place in Second Round of the World Cup
- South African produces all the right hand drive Mercedes 'C' Class,
- BMW 3 Series and VW Golf Jetta vehicles for the world market.
- SA Breweries is the second largest brewer in the world
- South Africa is one of only twelve countries in the world where you can drink the tap water – our tap water was found to be the third best in the entire world.

But above all we have of opportunity – a land where men can no longer argue that the colour of a man's skin determines the content of his character.

We salute you for your courage, your idealism and your lack of bitterness. You embody the three violets of the Marist tradition:

Humility, Modesty and Simplicity

And you continue to do so much good quietly. We thank you for being with us today!

P A Edey Executive Head

THE HEAD PREFECT'S SPEECH

Head Prefect's Speech at the prize-giving 2002

Good morning, I would like to welcome Mr. Graeme Codrington, Mr. and Mrs. Annegarn, Mr. and Mrs. Edey, Mr. and Mrs. Williams, distinguished guests, parents, staff and most importantly the boys here today.

For five years I have worn the same uniform, the same pants, the same shirts, ties, blazer, socks, shoes, jerseys and all the other St. David's paraphernalia I could get my hands on. One would think that this would be character crushing and frustrating, but it wasn't, I loved every second of it. I am proud to say that I wear a blazer that I respect and will cherish the everlasting impact that my time here has had on me.

But to think that all my time here has been pleasant would be naive, this year has been difficult and if you know me well you can attest to that fact. I have taken immense strain. Yet I have made it to the end, and first of all I have to thank the people who sit in front of me now, you guys, the school, from Grade 8 to Matric, you have all helped me in some way to grow and have helped me maintain belief when I have wavered. Thank you. A special thanks to the heads of houses and their deputies who filled an important role this year. To my prefects who worked until the last moment, I would like to state that "it's not how you start, but how you finish that matters". You all started and definitely finished in the right way. To the Matric group for supporting me in the face of adversity, there is nothing that could have been done this year without you. On a more personal note I would like to thank four Matrics in particular: to Nic Tsaperas, Donovan Black, Dale Ballantine and Brandon Don, thank you for standing next to me when you thought I needed you, for never letting me stand alone.

This year has been a year driven by the boys, for the boys, and let me say that you all did me proud with your dedication this year. This is why I feel our school will succeed in the future. It isn't always easy to support what you believe in but it is always necessary. I believe in this school and maintain that belief. You are what is left of the legacy that is Marist, and I trust that each of you who remains here will keep the legacy going. Our school is and always will be what you make it. You are the school.

Tradition has and will always have a place in our school. The single most moving experience of my life was walking down the 1st XV rugby steps in my tracksuit with 400 boys sitting in front of me and cheering the First Team on. I am glad that the rugby players stuck together this year and maintained the tradition of those steps because I have never felt anything like that.

Being Head Prefect will always have its perks. In the space of one week I met Nelson Mandela and Megan McKenzie. I have been given the pleasure of sitting close to Colin Powell, the US Secretary of State, while he gave a speech in our amphitheatre, and Bobby Skinstad was this year's guest speaker at the annual rugby dinner. I also had the opportunity to go to five Matric dances. Being a Matric, another perk for the first term of the school year was having the Grade 8's call me 'Sir', which I particularly enjoyed. Other tasks were not as enjoyable. The boys got tired of hearing "tuck in your shirt, do your top button up, fix your tie and clean your shoes".

For four years I sat where you all sit and listened to the Head Prefects tell the school that we must wear our blazer with pride. After this year I know what our school is, and it is not only the buildings, the teachers or our blazer. St David's lives and dies on the friendships that we all share, the connections that are formed in five years or twelve. Our school is within each of you who share something with the person sitting beside you.

I love this school. Love is not always enough to maintain a belief in something. Love does not conquer all; wisdom is also required. I wish next year's Head Prefect every success and the gift of wisdom. Be wise with your decisions because you will have 500 people following your lead.

Nic Haralambous Head Prefect

the experiences that this place has left me with: the memories, the losses, the victories and the life lessons I have learnt.

I would like to conclude with words from a song by the band 'Creed". These words remind me closely of our school and its effect on me.

"Just when fear blinded me you taught me to dream, I'll give you everything I am and still fall short of what you've done for me. In this life I live I hope that I can give I love unselfishly. I've learned the world is bigger than me, You're my daily dose of reality."

Thank you.

PARLIAMENT

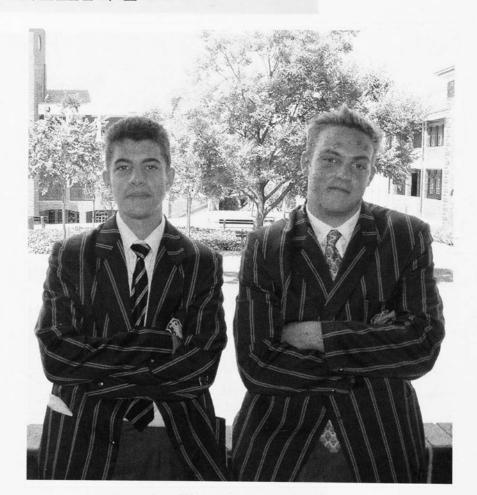

PARLIAMENT 2002

The sessions of Parliament held this year were characterized by lively debate, with issues such as the pace of movement between lessons, tuckshop prices, the introduction of soccer as a school sport and other matters, keenly discussed.

While the introduction of soccer to the high school, due to the initiative of Mr Gaffney was one of the success stories of the Parliament year, many other learner issues were brought to the attention of the School's management and played a role in the determination of school procedure to be followed. A case in point was the careful consideration given by Mrs Murphy to the learner body's suggestions as submitted by Parliament, about the end of year exam timetable, and the subsequent changes which occurred to that timetable, where the boys' suggestions were feasible.

Our parliamentary representatives did, however, tend to emulate their more senior parliamentary representatives in Cape Town by not turning up on occasion, a problem which will have to be addressed in the 2003 Parliament year.

Nevertheless with the new initiative taken by the school to broaden the leadership role of the Matrics, by having boys who were not elected School Prefects lead Parliament, many successful sessions were held, and my thanks go to Prime Minister Alex Papadopoulos, Deputy Prime Minister Richard Johnston and Secretary Matthew Brink for the time and effort they put into making Parliament 2002 run smoothly and effectively.

WELCOME TO MR. EDEY, MR. WILLIAMS, DISTINGUISHED AND HONORED GUESTS, GENTLEMEN AND YOUR BEAUTIFUL PARTNERS. AS YOU ALL KNOW, THE THEME FOR TONIGHT IS "SPACE ODYSSEY" AND I THINK THIS ALL INVOLVED OUR TREMENDOUS INTEREST IN SPACE, OTHER GALAXIES AND SATELLITES. THIS EXCITEMENT INCREASED TEN-FOLD WHEN A SOUTH AFRICAN WITH A DREAM EXPERIENCED AN AMAZING JOURNEY TO THE INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION. THE MAN WHO STIRRED UP OUR IMAGINATION WAS, AS YOU ALL KNOW, MARK SHUTTLEWORTH WHO SHOULD BE AN INSPIRATION FOR US ALL.

THE FUTURE FOR ALL OF YOU IS EXCITING. THERE WILL BE PITFALLS AND SOMETIMES THE ROAD WILL BE TOUGH BUT YOU WILL STRIVE TO CONQUER ALL ADVERSITIES.

WE ARE GOING TO MISS YOU AND I AM SURE YOU ARE GOING TO MISS US, BUT YOU ARE NOW ENTERING THE MAINSTREAM OF LIFE AND WE WISH YOU NOTHING BUT JOY, HAPPINESS AND SUCCESS. ALWAYS REMEMBER YOU ARE AND ALWAYS WILL BE AN IMPORTANT PART OF THE ST DAVID'S FAMILY.

BOYS WHEREVER YOU GO AND WHATEVER YOU DO, GO SAFELY, GO WISELY, GO WITH A DREAM, AND CARRY A STAR FROM THIS EVENING IN YOUR HEART.

PLEASE ENJOY YOURSELF.

ACADEMIC & CULTURAL

ART EXHIBITION 2002

The judging of the Grade 10, 11 and 12 classes was done by Leisha Moore, sister of Darryn Moore, an ex-pupil of St David's. She has a diploma in Fine Arts, and is a professional painter.

Her overall comment on the Grade 10 to 12 work was that the work, generally, was mature and creative, the drawings were very good.

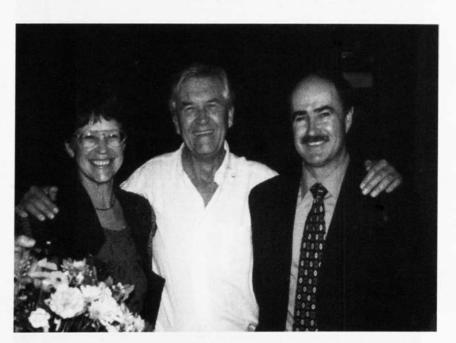

In Grade 10, Craig Burgess and Scott Grant tied in third place, while Bryan Joubert, whose painting she considered technically very good, was in second place. First place was awarded to David Schneider for his two excellent drawings; his style and technique are very mature for a Grade 10 pupil. There were many other very competently drawn or painted works from the Grade 10s: the Pietas, their first experimentation with colour, were very successful.

Guy Little with his wonderful loose technique and exuberant impasto paint was the winner in Grade 11, Rowan Stafford was second with his competent drawing and third place was tied between Andrew Green, Tim Johnson and Matthew Tyack.

Third place in Matric was Tristan Scott. Tristan's drawings are very emotive and have great impact. Dale Ballantine was second. His choice of subject matter for his painting and drawings all formed a coherent theme, and seem to reveal a reflective personality. Matthew Brink was in first place with his wonderful works, which were the most finished, clean, immaculate and compelling of the pictures on display. Each of the four pieces worked well as an individual item.

Special mention was made of David Alves' old man, Nash Sprenger's painting of the baby in the forest with its acid yellow background, Nic Haralambous' little girl in front of the castle, Donovan Black's Pieta, Ross Wainwright's cowboy, Shen Tian's drawing of Matthew Brink, Jashil Makan's four faces, and Bjorn Annegarn's glazing technique in his painting of the girls in the sea.

There were so many excellent works from the Grade 8s and 9s that Ms Moore found it impossible to award places. Mr David Andrew of the Wits Art Department, felt that the Grade 8 "group" Impressionist oil pastel work, the paintings in which the boys captured their own space, and the Grade 9 models of buildings, were superb. He was impressed by the accuracy and attention to detail, and also the variety of the works on show, and experimentation with different materials. Special mention was made of the outstanding Fantasy Animals and the Constructions by the following Grade 8 & 9 pupils:

Grade 8:

Jared Brennan, David de Villiers, Adrian Gebers, Alessandro Higginson, Mark Howell, Matthew Lobban, Michael Rissik, Ryan Siebrits, Sean Tromp, Ben Walker, Nick Berti, George Despotidis, Chris Forssman, Graham Freeman, Filipe Goncalves, Justin Roberts, Richard Arnesen, Andrew Ehmke, Matthew Franzsen, Ivan Giuricich, Malcolm Hunter, Michael Macindoe, Ryan van den Berg, Cedric Chiappero, Murray Crichton, Raffaele d'Esposito, Robert Jones, David Naylor, Dane Solomon, Michael Wyeth.

The guest speaker was Isidingo's Clive Scott, who amused everyone in his entertaining way. Mrs Carter extends her thanks to all of those who gave their help especially Duka Hlatswayo.

ACCOUNTING COMPETITION

JSE Liberty Schools Challenge 2002

Eight St David's boys put their share-trading skills to the test in a simulated "ghost trading" programme.

Danilo Giacovazzi, Gaurav Nair, Ryan R Clarke and Veekesh Pahboo each won a monthly prize of R500 in unit trusts, and R1000 unit trusts for the school while Farhaan Williams, Grant Gardner, Scott Conway and Dominic Henry were placed second overall in the Equity Growth Category. They each received R3000 and the school R5000 in unit trusts. Well done!

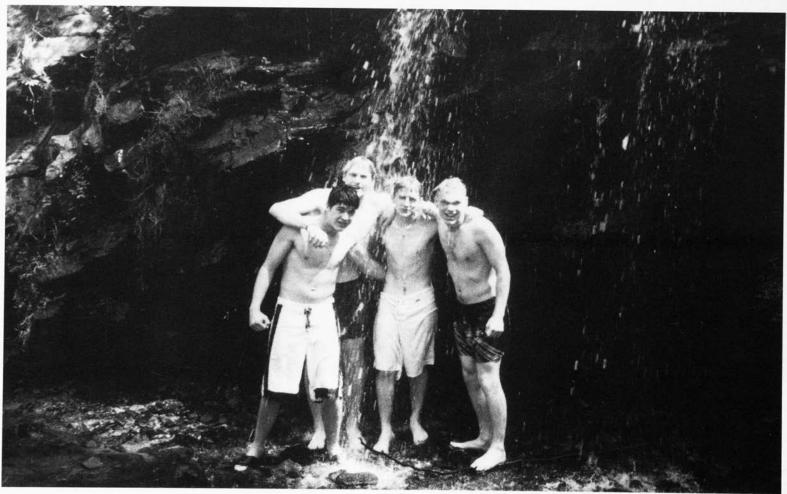

GRADE 12 BIOLOGY WEEKEND

2002 saw 28 St David's boys and 2 boys from one of the Alexandra High Schools attend the consolidation weekend at Saronde Valley in Krugersdorp. In between swinging from the cliffs and freezing in the waterfall, plenty of academic endeavour ensured that the whole Matric syllabus was revised in 2 days.

The format of the weekend entailed working through past exam papers and other challenging questions from university entrance exams. The boys attacked this with enthusiasm and gained in confidence for their final exams. This, once again, proved to be a worthwhile initiative on the part of the school and highlights the importance of continuing such activities.

The thanks of the boys and staff who attended, go to Jenny and Joe Hugill, our gracious hosts who made sure our stay was comfortable and that everything ran smoothly.

SCIENCE

This year was again filled with activity inside and outside the Science classroom. We started the year with the Senior and Junior Science expo's. The Grade 10's in particular excelled and received numerous of medals at the St. David's expo. Forty-four of our boys' projects went forward to the regional expo with James Reeves, Roger Lambert, Ricky Forleo, Scott Grant, Grant Kalil and Duncan Reid achieving silver medals. Ten of our boys also received bronze medals.

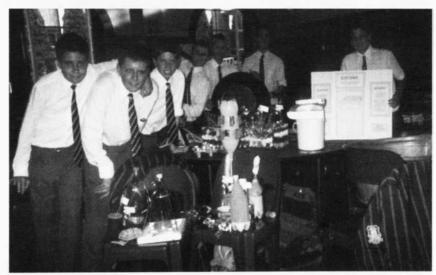

During the April holday James Reeves, Shen Tian and Farhaan Williams accompanied Ms. Cotton to Minquiz. Although they did not get through to the finals, an outstanding guest speaker and interesting tours around this world-class research facility made for an enjoyable day.

In May a group of 12 boys joined by Mr. Buys and Ms. Cotton went on a tour to the Grahamstown Scifest. The long drive was well worth it. We listened to a variety of outstanding internationally acclaimed experts giving talks and interactive workshops on a wide variety of topics. We hope to make this tour an annual feature on the St. David's calender.

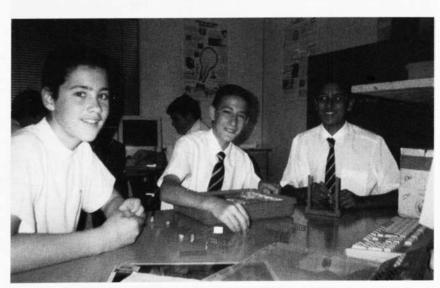

The Science Olympiad was successfully tackled by a number of our boys with Brett Rowley, Matthew Truscott, Shen Tian and Gareth Jago making it through to the second round. Shen Tian was placed 12th in the country in the second round. Congratulations, Shen!

As promised last year the Science Department continues to increase the practical component of the curriculum. To further this end, renovation of the laboratories started this year with one of the Science labs ready for use next year. We've installed brand new basins, electricity and work surfaces. Thank you to the P.T.A. for making this dream a reality.

We look forward to another full and exciting year in 2003.

COLLEGE LIBRARY/MEDIA CENTRE

2002 has been yet another busy year and the Library has been a hive of activity. The book stock has virtually doubled with the emphasis being on using books before the computers! Readers are Leaders! The Library has certainly been well used and has become very much a multi-functional centre for many activities including teaching.

The Library hosted the St David's Forum with the first speaker being Jan Mallen, (Principal of Roedean Prep.) who spoke about her travels in China and Korea. She said she had never been treated with such reverence in her life, such is the Chinese and Korean attitude to educators. We were also fortunate to hear Clem Sunter again, this time talking about "The Mind of a Fox". Clem is such an entertaining speaker who engages his audience with wit and humour, while never straying too far from discussing important and relevant social and economic issues. The final speaker this year was Rabbi Cyril Harris who spoke on the situation in the Middle East with specific reference to the Israeli - Palestinian conflict. Sadly he believes the chance of a peaceful settlement is remote, citing the reason that there seems to be very little willingness to compromise. We have had other speakers who have come specifically to address interested groups of pupils one of whom was a well known old boy, Frederick Barnard who discussed finance and investment as a career and referred to the JSE/Liberty Schools Challenge in which we had three teams participating, one of which came second in the finals.

This year also saw the introduction and installation of a new library software package called Alice, bringing both the Prep. and College libraries well and truly into the 21st century. During the Easter holidays, Julie Egenrieder, spent a day working at Eton College Library and visited the Alice software company, Softlink in Oxford. Julie, together with Pam Nicolaides, Pridwin Librarian, aquired the agency for both schools which will benefit from future sales of Alice within South Africa. Julie and Pam recently trained the Library staff of Thomas More College in the use the Alice software programme.

With the introduction of this software we also took a giant leap into the biometric age as we can now fingerprint the College pupils for identification purposes with regard to the loan of books.

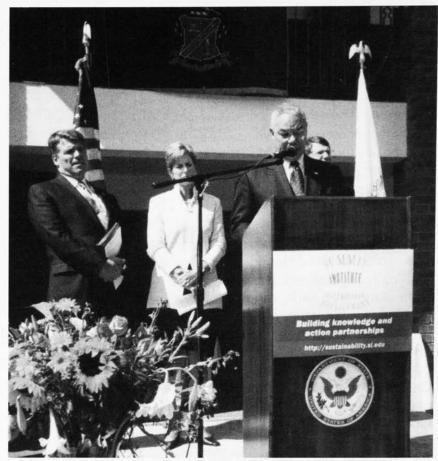

The Book Quiz, with teams competing against the girls of Rosebank Mercy Convent, was originally only for the Grade 8's but has expanded to include the Grade 9's, 10's and a challenge has been made for a further Grade 11 Book Quiz in 2003. This year we once again retained the trophy for Grade 9 and narrowly lost the Grade 10 Quiz. The boys who participated were once again fantastic, with every team giving energetic, innovative and enthusiastic performances and best of all, they had fun!

During the winter break both libraries were used by the Smithsonian Institute and became very much a part of the World Summit. This was quite a busy and eventful time, which included a visit to the school by Colin Powell, US Secretary of State and Christie Whitman, Head of the Environmental Protection Agency.

All these activities and accomplishments would not have been possible without the ongoing co-operation with Doreen Johnstone (Prep. School Librarian), the support of the High School Staff, the assistance from Marcus Tshikane (Intern/Library Assistant), Rowan Stafford (Library Prefect), Mark Beevers (Senior Library Assistant), and Richard Halton (Media Assistant) and of course the input from many parents.

We look forward to another great year in 2003!

FROM THE MATHS DEPARTMENT

Our Maths hero, Shen Tian has had a brilliant year once again, and it is with sadness that we bid him farewell, as he writes his matriculation examinations. His five-year stay with us has flown by and now he must move on to start his career.

Shen's last year at St David's was nothing short of incredible. He represented the National Maths Olympiad team for the third year in a row, winning a bronze medal in the International Maths Olympiad. He also represented South Africa in the Asian Pacific Maths Olympiad for the fourth year in a row.

Shen then went on to win the National Maths Olympiad for the second year running and also claimed first place in the National Computer Olympiad. To add to these success stories, he also managed to achieve 12th position in the Science Olympiad. This does not leave much time for Shen's studies and yet he has achieved top position in his grade every term from grade 8 through to grade 12. This is a remarkable achievement considering that Shen only arrived in South Africa about 6 years ago and he could not speak a word of English.

It will be sad to bid farewell to Shen, I do believe that it will be a long time before we encounter another pupil of such high calibre.

Miss Lara Ann Nolan with Shen Tian

Congratulations, Shen and good luck, we will miss you.

Ms L-A Nolan (Head of Mathematics)

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

At the beginning of the year work started on the new St David's website which was then launched at the beginning of June. We have had positive feedback from parents and staff on the professional appearance of the site. Pupils, past pupils, parents and many prospective parents, are visiting the site on a regular basis. The number of people subscribing to receive the newsletter via e-mail is growing weekly. Many parents find this a more reliable method of getting the news and important information, than the 'blazer-pocket' method. We hope that next year many more parents will sign up.

In May some of our Grade 11 and 12 Computer Studies pupils entered the 1st round of the Old Mutual Computer Olympiad. Shen Tian was the winner of the St David's entrants and as a result of doing so well in the first round, was chosen to take part in the second round of the Olympiad. We were delighted when it was announced that he was the 2002 winner. Shen was presented with his trophy, gold medal and a cheque at the annual prize giving.

This year has seen the introduction of Java as the programming language for Computer Studies in Grade 10 and 11. In Grade 12 the language taught is Turbo Pascal. Two matrics, Shen Tian and Gareth Jago took up the challenge of doing their major programming project in Java. Gareth's Netscan was for network administrators to monitor a network and Shen's Vector Solver were of an exceptional standard.

The year went very well even though the season was short with only four matches played. The team was jointly led by Tumelo Malakane and Francois Caille. We ended on a high note and we look forward to the next year.

DRAMA SCHOOL PLAY 2002

This year's production was "Guards! Guards!", by Terry Pratchett.

It is a hugely entertaining comedy written by an author many of you enjoy.

Terry Pratchett's infamous city of Ankh-Morpork is under threat from a 60-foot fire-breathing dragon, summoned by a secret society of malcontented tradesmen.

Defending Ankh-Morpork against this threat is the entire, underpaid, undervalued City Night Watch – a drunken and world-weary Captain, a cowardly Sergeant, an opportunistic Corporal of dubious parentage ... and their newest recruit, Lance-Constable Carrot, who is upright, literal, law-abiding and keen.

Aiding them in their fight for truth, justice and the Ankh-Morporkian way are a small swamp dragon and the Librarian of the Wizard's University (who just happens to be an orangutan).

The 2002 major production was an entertaining romp through the fantasy world of an author very popular amongst many St David's boys. A long script containing a number of very exacting roles, the play took many weeks of hard rehearsal to put together. The final product, however, was one of which the Dramatic Society members can justifiably feel proud. On the crowded final night it was hard to tell who were enjoying themselves more – the audience or the cast!

The First Aid team this year was a small team as compared with previous years. The team, however, coped well and no serious injuries were sustained during the course of the year. FLY FISHING EXCURSION APRIL 2002

When Mr McMillan said he wanted to arrange for the annual Fly fishing Tour to be held in the Seychelles, I assumed he was joking...

To my astonishment, and I think that of many others, we soon found out he was being serious, and on the 11th April 2002, nine boys, Mr Mac and Mr D Smith departed for the Seychelles, for what would be the trip of a lifetime for all of us.

We touched down at the International Airport on the southern part of the island of Mahe, and were greeted with blue skies, tropical ocean, palm trees and white beaches stretching as far as the eye could see. We were collected at the airport and taken to Xanadu, a resort owned by the Kolsch family who had so kindly invited us to spend a week in the lap of luxury.

On arrival at the lodge we were shown to our villas each equipped with fridge, television, air conditioning and magnificent views of the Ocean.

That evening we sampled our first traditional Seychellois dish, prepared by the lodge chef, and as we found out, this was only a taste of what was to come in the following days.

The Avid Fly fishing team consisted of Mr Mac fly fisherman extraordinaire and avid bird watcher (of mainly the feathered variety), Bjorn Annegarn, Declan Shine, Anthony and Steven Hoff, Richard Wands, Nicholas Schilperoort, Gareth Earl, Bjorn Estment, and Chris Steinbach. We found our way around with no problem thanks to Mr Smith's able map skills, although the fact that there is only one main road winding its way around the southern part of Mahe may also have been a factor.

Early the next morning, after a hearty English breakfast supplemented with tropical fruit, we found ourselves experiencing some truly magnificent salt water fly fishing.

Mr Mac was the first to tempt a salty critter, which turned out to be a Tropical Wrasse. In the hours that followed, we landed Yellowtail Kingfish, lost some decent sized Garfish, and were very kindly entertained by Gareth Earl who took it upon himself to try and land a rather large sting-ray, which once hooked, had us running all over the flats in an effort to avoid its poisonous tail!

The Sting Ray thankfully broke the line and glided away in an ill-tempered hurry.

This was how our days were filled over the following week, even though every day held something new and exciting.

We did most of our swimming at Anse Intendance, where the waves were close to six foot on some days!!

Mrs Kolsch very kindly arranged a Deep Sea Fishing Trip for us which included spending a day on Anonyme (anonymous) island where the five star Anonyme Island Resort is situated. Anonyme is a small island perhaps one kilometre off the main island of Mahe. As we sat on the deck of the resort, we could see the light Air Seychelles aircraft transporting people to and from the many beautiful granitic islands. This tranquil scene was only interrupted when the water in front of the lodge burst into life as Giant Kingfish feasted upon an unlucky shoal of halfbeaks.

A few days later, after returning from our morning fishing session, we were honoured to learn that we would be accompanied for lunch, albeit from different tables, by the President of Seychelles, France Albert Rene. This is not something that you would be doing as an average holiday maker to the Seychelles.

Most of the fishing took place around Anse LaMouche, where we caught literally hundreds of fish including Yellowtail Kingfish, Wrasse, Bonito, Barracuda, Rockcod, Snapper, Three Spot Pompano and the highly esteemed Bonefish, to name a few. We even had a small Hammerhead Shark swimming around our legs, which caused a lot of shouting amongst the brave who were prepared to risk like and limb for the sport they so love.

All too soon our holiday in Paradise came to a end, but I am positive that it will remain in our memories forever.

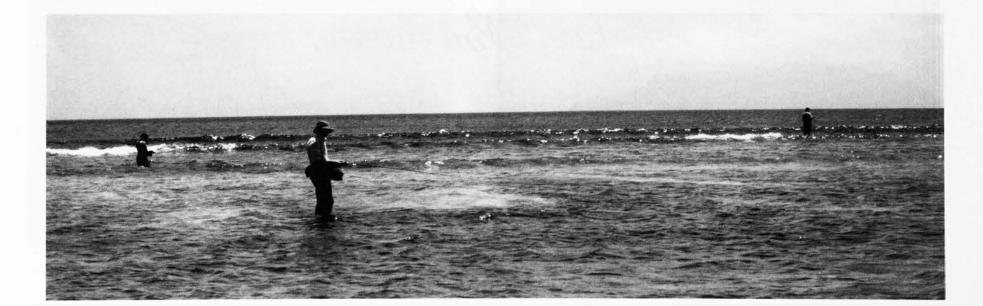

A big thank you on behalf of all of us must go to Mr Mac for arranging the trip, and Mr Smith for supervising and keeping an eye on us.

The biggest thank you must go to Mrs Kolsch, for without her generosity and daring to put up with us boys, the Seychelles Fly Fishing Trip would never have become more than an idea.

Richard Wands

Junior City Council

This year the two councillors to represent the school were Grant Gardner and Theodore Sibeko, and what a fantastic year it was! Grant was elected the Johannesburg Junior Mayor; this is an outstanding achievement, having being selected by his peers from 80 other councillors. Grant accepted this responsibility in true Marist spirit, quoting the values of the Marist ethos, humility, modesty and simplicity, he incorporated these values into the council year.

I would like to thank Grant and Theo for their enthusiasm and congratulate them both on an excellent year. It has been a pleasure to work with pupils who are so dedicated.

Council Year

I truly have no idea where to begin.... It has been a most eventful year; I was anxious to start working on council from the very beginning. Theo Sibeko and myself were stunned at the proportions of the "City Of Johannesburg Council Chambers" We rapidly made ourselves comfortable and met many great people.

It wasn't long before elections dawned on me and being elected as; the Junior Mayor of the City of Johannesburg came as a great surprise. I underestimated how demanding my term of office was really going to be and it wasn't long before time management became a major task in my life. I am now able to keep up to speed... well most of the time.

There have been so many important activities council has covered this year. Our annual visit to Cape Town must be one of the most anticipated events of the council year. We are whisked off by aeroplane and stay in the lap of luxury at the 5 star, President Hotel in Bantry Bay! Meeting the City of Cape Town

Mini Mayor, Brian Lebo's & Junior Mayor Grant Gardner the day after their inductions. Don't they look grand in their mayoral robes?

Councillors and Junior Councillors was a grand event held in the recently completed, City of Cape Town Council Chambers. Which were most impressive but not quite as regal as ours here in Jo'Burg.

Council has a reputation for being nothing more than a charity organization but this year that definitely has not been the case. Although our many fundraising events continue, we have become more involved into the serious side of being on council. I have been involved in many of the city's developments, acting as an advisor for the youth of our vibrant city. We have been successful with many campaigns on promoting things such as AIDS awareness, safe sex as well as the effects of alcohol and substance abuse.

We have also managed to have three satellite police stations set up in "Sandton Hot-Spots" to target and prevent the selling of drugs to minors, prostitution, hijackings and many other crimes we have all come to know far too well. Basically, we strive to make Johannesburg a better place to live while holding onto our official "World City" status. I believe that this unique Metropolitan is well on its way to being one of the most development and lively cities in the Southern Hemisphere.

I have had the most interesting and eye opening experience of my entire life being the Mayor. I feel, all that I have gone through this past year, has prepared me in so many ways for what is to come in "The big bad world" after matric. Meeting so many highly acclaimed people who have achieved so many great things in their lives has, in a way, made me more complete as a person. The advice given by these people has proven to be the most powerful tools I will use throughout life.

I would like to thank my co-councillor, Theo Sibeko for all his support and dedication over the past year. Also a big thank you to Miss L-A Nolan for all her help and guidance. I wish the new councillors the best of luck for their term in office, starting May 2003.

Grant Gardner Junior Mayor

J.C.C is best

Serving on the Junior city council has certainly been the most important, most inspiring time of my life. Our aim in council this year was to bring the youth together, help people in need by raising money for various charities, visit boys from juvenile prisons and whole lot more.

The tasks we set before us inspired us to come up with a motto that would reflect on us being guided by the Gospel values of humility, modesty and simplicity. The motto we chose was, "Being the change, we want to see."

Once we had set our goals our spirit grew. We were told that council was divided into different focus groups called "section 60's", which focused on specific fields. I chose Culture.

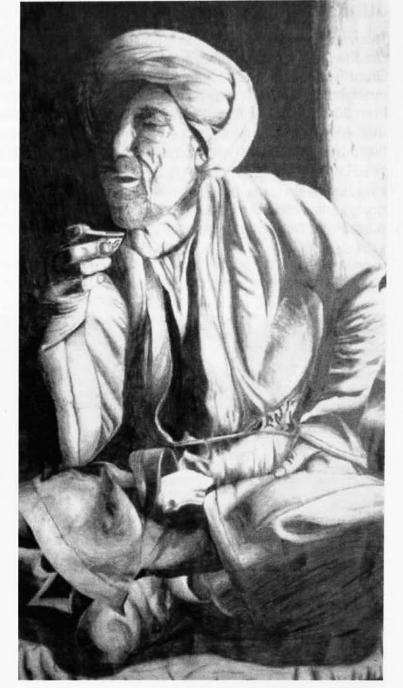

The name says it all. We focused on cultural events such as the Cultural Day that brought the different cultures and their ways of dressing together in a small fashion show. This wasn't the only thing happening, as there were loads of other activities on show like food stalls, art exhibitions and poetry sessions.

There were many other fundraising events that were initiated by the other Section 60's. These events include the Soccer Day, Carnival Day, the annual Soiree, visiting the Cotlands Baby Sanctuary, visiting the aged from The Temple Emmanuelle and not forgetting the greatest night of the year, The Mr and Miss Johannesburg event where we raised about R40 000 – which was more than the 2001 councillors had raised. The important thing though was to give the proceeds to charity.

Thanks to Grant, my co-councillor, and his mother for helping me out with transport and more importantly for his friendship. You made the best Junior Mayor dude! Thanks to Ms Nolan for giving me the opportunity to be involved in the junior city council, without her; I'm not sure I would have even thought that I could become a councillor.

I wish the councillors for 2003/2004 a prosperous and inspirational journey just like the one I have had. Good Luck.

Oratory

Oratory 2002 forum discussions

Public speaking got off to a good start this year with two teams per standard entering the forum discussion competition. The teams presented interesting and topical discussions and were praised by the adjudicators for their sincerity and genuine interest in their chosen subjects.

Debating

The debating society had a year of mixed success in 2002. We entered the SACEE league with great gusto but unfortunately debates were sometimes cancelled. Another drawback was our lack of support from the floor with some boys having to speak several times to compensate for the rather small floor we often had. Thanks must go to Matthew Truscott in this regard who was the sole floor member in the debate against Wendywood. I urge boys to support their debaters as points are awarded for floor debate and we often had to forego these points.

St. David's also competed in the KES league this year and the junior team must be commended on winning their very first debate against Hyde Park.

The interhouse debates went off very well and the boys certainly displayed their talent. We have many gifted speakers and I would like to see them attending more public speaking competitions.

I look forward to an exciting year of public speaking next year as we have three very talented, enthusiastic and undeterred young men who are eager to enter the rather intimidating SACEE league.

To the rest of the debaters: thank you for a good season I hope to see you next year as we compete against more schools in the immediate area. Thank you also to Mark van Dijk who proved to be a most able chairman, debater, and navigator!

S.M.I.L.E.

(ST. MARY'S INTERACTIVE LEARNING EXPERIENCE)

High school boys helping the Gr 5's in our SMILE project

This year 240 Grade 5 learners from Ebony Park Primary, Endulwini Primary and Phuthumani Primary in Tembisa, were involved in this English conversational skills progamme.

Over 24 Wednesday afternoons, approximately 68 S.M.I.L.E. Guides from Grade 9 - 12 interacted with the Tembisa learners, assisting them to grow in confidence and competence. These SG's play a pivotal role in the success of the programme. Without their commitment to this worthwhile endeavour, it would be impossible to facilitate S.M.I.L.E. It is common knowledge that time is a scarce commodity at our school and the commitment to four consecutive Wednesdays is certainly not easy. When some of them then show a willingness to do a stint during the school holidays, I take my hat off to them.

Through the giving of the greater school body, we were yet again able to serve lunches to the Tembisa learners. To those true Marist boys, who have a heart for the less privileged and who gave over and above the amount requested, I want to say, the Lord loves a cheerful giver! To Mrs Shelley Watson and her staff I wish to extend my heartfelt gratitude for preparing (and sometimes serving) the lunches.

S.M.I.L.E. is certainly one of the most important outreach projects at our school. It continues to be mutually beneficial to all involved. It is my wish that S.M.I.L.E will continue to thrive.

Raising Terrific Parents

Do our parents raise us or do we raise them? Just think about it?

The perfect baby boy – an absolute picture, everything there and accounted for. The pride on their faces is almost too much. And the drivel they talk about us....! Just what is their problem? Do they really think that just because we don't choose to verbalise the actual words they use that we can't and worse still, that we don't actually understand them?

So the games begin. Mother has been having a most gratifying bonding session with the kid, but she's feeling unloved and neglected by Father. Now what would any self respecting baby boy do? Why, cry for nights, that's what. Dad will eventually step in and show Mom that he does care and is perfectly capable of looking after the heir. See how grateful she is? It all has to do with training. Remember we only get to start when they're in their twenties or so. "So much to do – so little time!"

Ever seen a toddler get that ice cream or whatever during a lengthy tantrum in public? Now that takes months of practice. And the timing is vital. Here we go – act one – scene iii – dad's childhood sweetheart – still very single with no trace of cellulite anywhere – coming towards Mom on the far left. Her trolley is full of 'perfect fat free goods' whiles ours ... well, isn't! Suck that tear back kiddo, smile sweetly, your perfect Mom has given in to the ice cream bid and saved face at the same time. Yes, you really are a "lovely boy!"

Now how cool is it when you get the grandparents competing with the parents and vice-versa. Why that tactic is an entire essay on its own! What kid can resist that dropped. "It's been such fun being with Grandpa. Daddy never has time to play with me." This one works better when you add the well-timed woeful sigh on the end. Now you know Grandpa is going to find the right time to voice his concern that Dad is neglecting the family. Dad's embarrassed response will be to tell Grandpa in no uncertain terms that Grandpa did exactly the same thing to Dad and he's turned out okay. So why was it okay for Grandpa to be working hard putting food on the table but it shouldn't apply to Dad? That leaves them both feeling very guilty and the harddone-by kid gets lavished with attention or money or both by the two older, but not necessarily wiser, men of the moment. If you're able to stretch the guilt far enough for Mom to get some quality attention as well as you really are in the pound seats. But you have to be careful with that one. We all know Mom does not want you to have those stunning Belgian chocolates before dinner. Sometimes you score when Granny gives in and Mom does not find out but woe betide you if Granny lets slip. Mom's scorned mothering skills can have repercussions for days afterwards.

School days take the most training, frankly. "But how come Johnny's Mom is in the tuck shop? She works too you know" A little tear carefully dangles from your lower lashes – but you won't let it fall unless it looks like you're losing. And then ... drop. Slide ... and it worked!

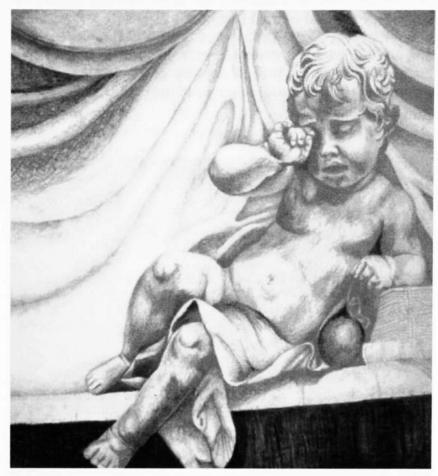

Then we get worse (or smart?). We inflict our music and teen culture on them. Did they know who KORN was or what "lank sweet bru" or "wassup my honey" meant before we grow into the eloquent teenagers we are today. Some might call it kids' revenge – forcing our lifestyles on them.

Parents give us a curfew – this is the done thing anywhere in the world, not just in the wild west of Gauteng, you know. And despite knowing that they are by doing this totally embarrassing thing to us, we somehow start to work our magic and convince them the time is not cool. How can be possibly be home by midnight when the part only really starts at 10.00 they calmly say "Fine, we'll get you there by 9.45 pm." Then you bravely say "Look, we need to get there by 7.00 pm to check out the dweebs, and suss out the scene before we can get into the right mood. Surely you'd like me to be sure that chick is decent and not 'shanky' - right?"

By the time parents realise you shouldn't 't have a curfew and start speaking your language to your mates with full logic, understanding and rapid response and your buddies are cool with it, you know you have raised terrific parents. Funny thing – some of us might have achieved this already. Hey hold on a second, was this my plan or my folks?

Autumn

Nobody realises what beauty you have,
You are more lovely than your sisters
More exuberant than the morning sun
Your colours can be dull and bland
But sometimes so rich and exquisite
Beauty overwhelms heart, mind and soul.
You can be cold at times
But your caring warmth heats deep inside
At times you may seem dead,
But through your death new life occurs,
And it is a death both magnificent and beautiful
It spawns amazing colours you can taste.
But though your visits are short and sweet,
Your golden colours will remain in my heart.

Alex Ridley Gr 10J

I look upon thee as an oasis
In this harsh and brutal place,
When I'm away from you I always miss
The way I feel near your grace
The sun shines upon thee so fair
You are all I will ever require
When I see you it answers my prayer
It is your beauty that I desire
Without you I am nothing at all
I long for the next time we can meet
Everyday your name I do call
Then soon I know you I will greet
You're the one, this I believe
That my pain and heartache will relieve.

The Unknowns of Scotland

Out of the green, misty hills comes a deep heavy breathing. The rasping rises until it becomes a screeching howl, thundering throughout the valley. Out of the crisp whiteness of the mist rises a large hellish beast. His eyes are scintillating yellow, his snout probing the breeze for any sign of vulnerability. His neck, looming over the trees, his chest, bearing the origin of the unceasing breathing. The myriad of crimson coloured scales covering the beast, reflects the very setting on which he looks upon. His robust organs of flight fan out until every inch of skin is extended. His back arches high as his lashing, barbed tail whips at the surrounding shrubbery. His legs, at ease, effortlessly rest on the flattened patches of soft moss. His feet and claws encompass the boulders. With one great thrust of his expansive wings, the dragon departs, gliding swiftly over the green hills and into the remoteness of the grassy knolls.

The Knights and their Steeds

I dodge the muddy water as it flies past my shoulder. The early morning silence is shattered as two streaks, one red and one green blaze past, leaving a rising trail of choking dust. One moves faster, past the other until the second catches up. The overpowering smell of petrol, oil and exhaust fumes hangs in the air after the riders have passed. Other than their tracks in the dust, the only evidence that they have been there. I push forward again, ahead of the green streak that is my friend. Nano. As I start to pull away, my arms start to shake because of the pressure. I hold on for my life as the only thing separating me form the cold, hard and unforgiving earth is a thin set of handlebars.

I can sense Nano behind me, then next to me and in front of me. I can hear him breathing, even above the noise of our enraged stallions. They seem to be saying "Faster, push yourself, you mustn't fail again!!" Nano knows his stallion better than I know mine. He knows every nook and cranny, the way it leaps over bumps and the indescribable sound of the engine going at full tilt. I know Nano so well that it feels as if I'm riding as him, a part of him. My arms tense and my legs swing out as we approach the sharp left. My fingers are clutching with desperation at the throttle and the clutch.

All this thinking has distracted me; Nano knows this. I have over-extended myself and again he knows this. As we race through the corner. I make the fatal mistake. I panic and touch the front brake, which will lead to my downfall. The wheel turns and I in turn am catapulted over my steeds cramping frame.

I am in disarray. I instinctively wrap myself, seemingly safe, into a tightly rolled cocoon. There is no more noise only the soft whisper and caress of the wind on my face. As the blur of green that is Nano accelerates past. I see another blur of green speeding towards me. The long, hard stalks of the veld. I crash into it like a battering ram, parting the stalks as easily as if they were feathers. My head, then my shoulder hits a boulder and I seem to bounce into the air again. When I come to rest, I'm dazed, confused and disorientated.

My hearing slowly returns and I hear the anguished cries of Nano asking I if am all right. But he knows I am, he's seem me land in this spot up to a dozen times in the last few days and every time I am all right.

Later we are both sitting at home, wondering the same thing. I know he is because I am. What am I going to do next time I get to that impossible left turn? Will my panic overcome me or will I beat it, with more than just a little help from Nano?

A Disobedient Soul

"I am not yet born'. O fill me with strength against those who would freeze my humanity, would dragoon me into lethal automation, would make me a cog in the machine a thing with one face, a thing, and against all those who would dissipate my entirety, would blow me like thistledown hither and thither or hither and thither like water held in the hands would spill me." Louis MacNiece

I have no place on this earth. I do not have a function. I have no job. I am no one's servant and no one's master. Is the earth a machine, our existence a blueprint? If this is true then what is my part? I have no part. If this world is a machine I am not a 'cog' and will never be part of the grease which lubricates the gut of this shallow creature. The world is not the machine; the machine is the result of years worth of human society brewing and bubbling in a steaming pit of prejudice, hate, vanity, arrogance, and disgrace. This is the machine, which produces the unfree.

In my mind it is a cardinal sin to be unfree. Freedom is not obtained when locks are broken or chains are cut. Freedom is not physical. To be free one has to live in your mind and not on earth, live in the spiritual not the physical. You have to break the cage in which you are trapped and make your jailer your slave. Our soul is our self; you have to learn to live as disobedient soul, disobedient to the rules of our crude conventionalist society.

Popularity makes me want to throw up. Conforming to this race's habits or organised society is like an unbearable torture to my soul. For years I have learnt to fight against the pathetic trend of 'falling in with the crowd' and losing my individuality. We even create organisations to help each other to become the same as one another. School is one of these institutions. By rare luck we will go to school with one or two good teachers, devoted to enriching our minds and enhancing our reason. From teachers like this I have learnt countless lessons about life. But unfortunately we get those who are not at school to teach but to torment. They are those who want to feel superior, who want to enforce their pathetic shallow ideals on young minds, turning them into mere copies of their petty selves. This is done so that they don't feel alone, so that they don't have to be individuals.

I will forever wage a war against these empty, brittle shells of what used to be people. The only way to destroy such sad products is to educate our youth into taking a stance and standing up for what is good, pure and true. We need to revolt and rebel against a grey fate. I might never meet you but we can still stand together and fight against losing the individuality of our souls. We have to give the youth more choices and more differing paths, which they can follow. We must teach them how to make these decisions on what they feel and think and not what others feel and think or say about them.

We have to learn how to be free. This is the only way to combat this evil monstrosity, to break the teeth off its gears and remove the grease from its axles. We can bring it to a standstill. To be free is to be happy, so fight with your soul, melt the cage in which you keep your mind and set it free to assail the trenches of conformity and subordination and stain its hands with the rich thick blood of its suppressors. Slaughtering all elements of an unholy society we will give a howl of new vigour and new hope to a free world.

Matthew Snyman Gr 12

"I am not yet Born"

I am not yet born. I am still a caterpillar, wrapped, blanketed in a tightly secure, golden cocoon. Here I am safe from the predatorial society on the outside. I have not yet left my safe, insignificant, neat and simple sheath. I have not yet left my home, my school or my parents. I have not yet been scarred by reality. When I do step out of the walls and cross the moat, fresh, pure, and naïve, I will not be alone. I will be protected.

Whilst being weaned into the world, the sleet and rain will sting my soft face and the thorns pierce my vulnerable, padded feet. I will, however, be filled with the courage and self-respect to continue along the well-worn path.

The choking air I breathe will be foreign to my lungs. The path I travel was, and still is in a great transition. It was once a path I could have padded along, the synchronicity of the bird's sharp, soothing songs and the air squeezed from my whistling lips causing the surrounding trees and vegetation to sway harmoniously with the tropical breeze filtering trough their fingers. Cluster leaves. I could have engulfed my nostrils with the sweet smell of the fresh, moist jungle, clawing the earth, which the path once tickled. The jungle is now smothered, suffocated by a hard concrete shell.

For the past twelve years I have been protected and soon I will have to leave my den, my island. An island protected by an atoll, secure from any intrusion. The eggshell coloured crescent of sand on the beach is a clean slate except for tiny random tracks made by seabirds that mark it. The sun filters through slitted palm fronds, dropping striped shadows along the soft, comfortable sand. In the turquoise lagoon, the fish dart like swifts. Inside the atoll there is solitude and peace innocence, which contrasts with the chaos and discrimination beyond.

There is a gentle "puff" as the sand cushions the raindrops as they fall on the beach. As the sun sets, it steals the identities of the palm trees, which gradually honoured with a golden coat that covers their dark silhouettes. Night comes as a curtain, drawn by the dying day. Under the blanket of stars,

The atoll's protective arms cradle the shadow of the old moon. A moon I have known for the past twelve years.

Soon the black smudge from a ship's stack will stain and break the straight, strong membrane between sea and sky. This disturbance will indicate that my time to leave has come. I will cross the protective atoll, leave my haven and start the long exciting but unpredictable journey along the path to reality. I will be filled with ambition and a thirst to succeed. I will be protected, once I am born.

The World as we Know it

On the way to school daily, I become aware of the incongruencies in our society.

A typical day....

I'm on my way to school. Breakfast has been wholesome and served to me. My clothes are warm and clean. I am sitting in my dad's car. We cruise through traffic, with the radio playing. At nearly every robot the world outside is different ..., people are queuing for taxis, shivering without blankets. Children younger than primary school age stand at the intersections begging for food, money, shelter, employment – anything.

I have become angry at all these things. I wonder where are the parents to look after these children? Where is the public transport system to take them to work? How do these people live? Why are they so different from myself? What has happened to our society? Every night we see reports of rape, child rape, robbery, crime farm killings etc. I become angry when I see the victims. Small children old people everybody afraid of crime and the criminals.

We all hear about the system of Apartheid, and the previous "regime". We did not know it that well, but when I look around I see that the injustices are still there and it makes me realise that anger should be turned into something that will change things.

One of the most memorable experiences I have had in my life is the privilege of meeting the ex-president Mr Nelson Mandela. I have read his book of quotations and so many of them have meaning for the problems I see around us. He said that "children are the most vulnerable citizens in any society and the greatest of our treasures".

Instead of becoming angry at people I don't know or can't see, I should be working on ways to make a difference, If I'm going to be angry, it should be anger directed at the organisations who should be schooling children helping the homeless and feeding the poor. My anger will do nothing unless I can change things for the better. I must remember the other words used by our wonderful leader when he spoke at our school. He said that, "we need to make a difference." I may not be able to change everything but if I make a start it will lead to bigger things.

"It should never be that the anger of the poor should be the finger of accusation pointed at all of us because we failed to respond to the cries of the people for food for shelter, for the dignity of the individual.

Donovan Black Gr 12

"One significant Moment"

There is something about being in a church on any normal occasion. The airy feeling of being closer to God than any other time is overwhelming. But when it is a major event in the Catholic religion, such as Confirmation, the church walls seem to expand around you. Everything is amplified; the complete beauty of the magnificent stain glass windows, the fresh scent of the decorative flowers and burning candle, the echoes of the peoples' murmurs race around the open spaces for great amounts of time and the image of Jesus on the cross becomes more real than ever before.

I am sitting in the pew with the intoxicating smell of polished wood; I begin to reflect on my religion. What had I done wrong, what could I have done better and what was I planning to do in life in terms of my spirituality? I have always made many promises to myself to become a better Christian and follow my religion more closely, but they have never carried so much meaning for me as they do now, while I saunter towards the altar to meet the Priest. As I place myself before him with my sponsors hand gently resting against my right shoulder so many realisations dawn on me.

It becomes more intense as the Priest lays his hand upon my head and mutters softly, "Receive the Holy Spirit." All that is required of me is to reply with a simple, "Amen," but it does not happen that easily. My mind races with so many thoughts, trying to establish what it means to be a confirmed Catholic, and after what has felt like an entire lifetime, I acknowledge that I am now confirmed with an "Amen" that oozes out of me uncertain that it is sufficient to complete the sacrament. Almost immediately, in an attempt to ease the tension, the priests offer their hands for me to shake as they congratulate me. But they do not succeed with their intentions. My sponsor's hand, now clutching me, is a reminder of what rests on my shoulders.

I have accepted my religion and all responsibilities, which come with it. I must live in such a way that will gain the approval of my God. The doubts, held back by nothing, flow restlessly into my mind. How can I live a perfectly acceptable life? Does modern society actually allow me to be the person the church wants me to be? So many questions yet so few answers. Only time can tell if I can live in such a way.

I sense an awkward feeling, nothing I have experienced before. Everything I carry out is being observed, everything I utter is heard. But this is welcome; my level of conscience has been raised by the presence of the Holy Spirit within me.

I gaze upon the cross before I turn my back to Jesus and his face is so vivid and bright that it is burnt into my mind, a reminder that I can never turn my back on the church or forget who I am and what I have committed myself to.

The Wind at my Back

I must have been particularly focussed in those first days at St David's. I have complete recall of Mrs Carlisle reading the "Wind in the Willows" to a fascinated class of toothless grade one's. The enchanting story of the Mole, the Water Rat, Badger and the roguish but loveable Toad. I remember how Ratty introduced Mole to the Badger of the Wild Wood and to Toad of the Toad Hall. Together we shared their adventures. We were transported from the mundane classroom into the imaginary River Bank, open road and wild wood.

This emotional a humorous journey was enjoyed by the grade ones. We were with them every step of the way. I learned a love of rivers, "messing about in boats" but even more about the joyous waywardness of good friends. Mole was absolutely accident prone, even tempered and delightful. Badger was good looking, autocratic, quarrelsome and splendid all at once. Toad was impossible and quite oblivious to anything other than his confounded canary yellow gypsy caravan which he rode like a cowboy. Now in Matric many experiences behind me my emotions carry me back to the wooden platform holding Mrs Carlisle as she read from the yellow covered edition featuring Ratty, and Toad fishing under the Willow Tree.

After not thinking of the story or characters in ages, they are as familiar to me now as they were then.

I am mindful of how tales such as this have significantly moulded my view of life, love and the future.

"Let us break the chains and dance", as they did on the riverbank were life was rich and full; there were no strings attached and no inevitable 'catch'. This mentality naïve as it was, was pure of heart and should be our goal.

It's a very short trip back to your youth when you are impressionable and your thought patterns are forming. From Mrs Carlisle's lips to our ears, an entire revelation to me to note the extent to which we are influenced by our early teachings.

The book, however, taught us a sense of adventure and comradeship, and challenged our six-year-old imaginations. The book was complete escapism and still intrigues me. I will always be overwhelmed by the nostalgic memory of the first time I heard the story.

You cannot know the fear I have as I think about you

Hello, dear friend, we meet again. It has been so long since we have last spoken. Where should I be begin? It feels like forever since I have felt the comfort of your embrace. Deep within my heart sits a memory: perfect love that you gave to me. After so long, a lifetime spent with you, fear emerges deep within my heart at the thought of you. Although it has been an age and we have been so trusting, I still fear the one day you will want me no more. I will be left, without you, without the one person that knows more about me that I do. What will become of me then?

I will be left with the memory of something so imposing, so ascendant that it will last me another age. On and on you will live, inspire and rise, deep within the raptures of my mind. I will lie awake at night and think on our vast experiences together. That is what will become of me. Yet the fear still speaks, obscure in my mind. It refuses to leave for you are such an enormous part of me.

You have given me so much. To what do I owe such wondrous gifts of time spent and memories given? How am I expected to repay you? I cannot and I do not intend to. For I would not know where to start. I can only pray that you know how I feel about you and on the day that you leave me you will take my feelings with you.

Yet I wonder what will become of you without me? Maybe this is the fear that nips at my heels and swallows my dreams in the dark. Perhaps you will be fine without me and become a wondrous creation of someone else's influence, not of my own. Perhaps this is the great fear that keeps me awake at nights and hides the truth from me in the day. What if you never needed me at all? What if I have been as dependent on you as a shrub is dependent on the rain? Not being able to grow without your life, not being able to live without you present, awaiting every drop of influence that you could spare out of your cosmic sky of thoughts. I would have been moulded out of you, out of what you wished and what you perceived. Yet I would not be me with parts of you within, I would be you with parts of me imbedded in myself.

Somehow I think not, Somehow I pray not, for I am my own person guided by you, guided by us and by what we dream of being. I know that my fear is unfounded for I know you and know that you will never leave me, no matter how far you go. You have left me with a part of you and I have given you an immeasurable part of me. This is how I know that I will never have to comprehend being without you. Yet you must also know that is shall never think of you with fear in my heart, apprehension in my soul or regret in my mind, Thinking of you near me I become free, I feel out of reach, carefree. Above everyone and everything I will fly. You must always know that you bring tears to my eyes.

One Significant Moment

Listening to a particularly bland rock song, a jewel of a lyric rose out above the ordinary to imprint itself in my memory, "Life is only understood backwards, but must be lived forwards."

The above rang through my mind, tossed about and as I mulled I over, I came to realise how profound this simple string of words was and the experiences to which it could be applied.

A familiar ring pierced the silence in the house. An unusually still August afternoon, as another uneventful school holiday rolled on. The call was from a friend, asking if I would like to spend the night. Finally, something to bring about change, a change in scenery, something to fill the countless dull hours.

Upon arrival, I was bundled into another vehicle, and whisked off to an undisclosed destination. Was it perhaps a mafia kidnapping. In fact, my eternally punctual friend was late for his evening soccer match.

Screeching into the parking lot, the vast fields gradually expanded into view, yet we saw nothing, no heated action of the anticipated game. The only sounds that penetrated the dusk air were the huffs from a few women, walking or rather marching together purposefully in an organised and desperate bid to lose some excess weight. Sitting we waited; team mates drifting in we witnessed the fact that we were mistakenly an hour early.

Amid jovial taunts between nameless faces I sat staring, what must have appeared aimlessly at the horizon. The sky a darkening range of blue, the last remains of the sun creating a deep red hue and the first of the night stars appearing almost surprisingly.

A prod to my chest, "you", the voice said. Startled, I glanced down, my eyes focusing on the close figure. "Could you come help put up the nets?" No need to argue, I thought, a simple request had been made and I was obliged to help. However, the ensuing comments and laughter that faded behind me made me think that his was no sought after task.

The cold white metal stood skeleton in the distance, imposing over the green backdrop. A figure dissolved into my vision, a man. Short, and in silhouette form, he almost unwillingly towed a lengthy set of nets behind him. Within minutes, the net was positioned with all six of the selected members lending a hand. As I began to heave the second net across the field, I found myself unaccompanied. The others, as I later discovered, were needed in the change rooms. Like an object thrown, the helper appeared before me in the distance, rolling an oil barrel towards our common destination, perhaps to aid our job at hand.

While working we began a conversation. I noticed myself slipping into the accent I use when conversing with a black person. I consciously explored that thought, a black commonly the colour of void, if such a thing exists. Void however, he was not. His random witticisms amused me, forced me to absorb and think. One clear moment still takes strong residence in my mind.

"Friend", he said, "I have nothing to give you, nothing to offer you, except my thanks." With that he was gone. At first I thought he was exploiting the issue; I had merely done him a simple favour. I stood vacant for what felt like eternity, oblivious to the happenings around me. Emptiness surrounded me, consumed my now vulnerable mind. As the future battleground slowly filled with figures, so too did my mind fill with thoughts. Thoughts now scrambling for my individual attention, I struggled to put them in order and deal with them appropriately. Firstly, his final words to me. I realised that this was in all likelihood the truth. I too realised that he had probably never been individually helped, or assigned a helper. No single person devoting some time to help him yet he had most probably devoted most of his life to his job, day after day.

"Nothing to give". Three words that made me reassess the value of my possessions and want a scope of which he will most probably never encounter a scope of which I found myself rejecting.

I thought back and underneath his witty front, I saw a lonely face. I perused the current state of affairs of the country in which I live. This man might have family, children perhaps, who I presume live some distance away. He had probably made the unfortunate move to the city to gain employment. The purpose at his hands not filling the real purpose in his life. This was one instance where a void was apparent. A question sprang on me, sunk it's teeth into my mind. Why had our paths crossed? The inevitable question caused a stir in my pool of thoughts, the very question itself posing wonder. The metaphorical path is generally continuing, eternal in its nature. My path would certainly lead on from here. But what of his? Where would his path carry on towards? Or would it carry on at all? The mere thought of the containment in which he existed shook me. Too few answers for so many a question. The questions themselves becoming ubiquitous in my mind.

The insignificant act of placing nets over goal posts has created a significant impact of my life. The moment itself not full of impact, but one that sent ripples of impact through me, the epicentre of which is those few moments on the field. How it has removed the blinkers off the way I think and exist. To open my eyes, breathe in moments of realization, moments that simultaneously represent uncertainty and probability. Moments riddled with questions.

But most importantly moments that lead, and shall lead, me to turn off the highway of conventional thinking and living, which I find myself, speeding along so often. To choose a narrow byroad, its narrowness in no way representing the broadness it leads me to comprehend.

I like to compare my life to a grand picture and, in that grand picture, that miniscule moment can be recalled and reflected on backwards. What, when, why and how it came to be how it made me realise that an infinite number of universes operate and exist parallel to mine, another universe which I was fortunate enough to be part of for a brief moment. How it affected the way I paint that grand picture and fortunately affected how I live, forwards.

A Foreign Individual

A rotting mass of red, yellow and brown engulfed the parched hospital parking lot. The sun lay low in the sky causing the shadows of the naked trees to stretch far into the distance. The autumn air circled through them causing them to rustle and groan as my father and I paced our ways towards the over towering building. A flock of pigeons circled overhead, their applaud broke the silence. We took the elevator to the third floor and followed the directions to the maternity ward.

The sterile smell overwhelmed me as it flooded its way deep into my lungs. I felt the icy floor beneath my little bare feet, sending nervous shivers up my spine. We entered the ward. The air was stuffy. A sea of flowers and stuffed animals seemed to encompass the small hospital bed. The sunlight broke through the solitary window that stood alone on the giant white wall. It shone through flora casting a tapestry of bright colours on the surrounding walls. I inched closer. The awful odour of fresh blood and sweat was present in the air. It lingered in my mouth as I cringed. I gazed up at my father. His eyes glistened with happiness and an overwhelming sense of joy. He stretched his arm out towards me. It seemed to span the huge distance between us. His palm sticky and moist as he drew me towards the enormous metal construction. My mother lay with the small bundle. Undisturbed dew lay fresh upon her brow. She lay exhausted and unaware of me as I slowly peaked into her arms.

The new being lay with her eyes cemented shut by a layer of thick yellow mucus. Hair lay in a sticky mess upon her head. She smelt sweet. A small nose lay squashed between two large rosy cheeks. Below, her mouth full of tender gums, gasped its hundredth breath. Her serenity fascinated me. Minute blue rivers flowed through the miniscule figure. Limbs stretched upwards as she searched for a way to escape the blanket that swallowed her and kept her apart from the world. I held her hand softly. It felt delicate and smooth. A little repetitive beat, knocked inside of it. A collage of red and yellow covered her up. Her umbilical cord lay neatly knotted above her waist, the only impurity on her scarless little stature. Suddenly I was drawn back. Time has come to leave.

Outside the air was cool and fresh. All but a few stars lay obscured by the thick layer of city smog. The memory of the tiny new being echoed in my mind. I wondered when I would see her again and how this world would have changed her.

One Significant Moment

I am on the tee box, the podium of my dreams, enveloped by the colossal skyscrapers of the North. The lush around me in my arena. Will I, as the thousands of warriors before me attempt to achieve the "perfect strike".

I unsheathe my sword, take my stance, sure and ready. The intensifying heat rays penetrate my porous shirt. The soles of my feet tingle to the sensation of the spikes poking through the shoe. I twitch in discomfort as tiny blades of dry grass niggles the top of my forehead. I touch my moist tongue against my cracked lips. I clutch the pulpy synthetic grip. It feels tacky on my palms. The sweat quickly builds up, the dimples of the handle falling away from me.

I suck in a lungful of crisp morning air entrapping the invigorating rush to my taste buds. I exhale the warmer air, forcing my hair follicles to oscillate as a field of grass does during a storm. It continually transports a wave of signals to the brain providing a fresh sensuous perception.

I glance up at the velvet green carpet, entrapped among hungry sand pits that bellow at me. The crystal blue sky above me is layered thin with white puffs of cloud. The dark foliage behind is in complete contrast with the vibrant white flag. I focus at the moist blades of collapsed grass. Suddenly the intensifying heat on my back subsides as the clouds move over to observe.

Briefly, I hear the maternal Plover squawking away as it protects its young. The crickets oblivious to the sun being out, instinctively force out a series of integrated code. In the background a rhythmic hammering of a Woodpecker against dry wood.

Intuitively I raise my steel sword ready for battle and as it accelerates, I hear a column of cool air whistling past me. I restrain for an instant as I get to my vertical limit. I vigorously conclude the cycle with the connecting of my moonlike ball to the grooved club head.

The dimpled ball pierces through the breeze on its predestined course. Cushioned as it penetrates the soft green it gradually clambers up the hill culminating with the unforgettable ring of my ball striking the metallic shaft. Huddles of workers heaving the soil rise, reverently, to observe my moment.

The Spirit of Rain

Picture if you will, a clear crisp Sunday. The morning sun shining bright, waking from the cool night and warming the earth below. This is the exact opposite to the morning I woke up to. The sky hung heavy with grey cloud, trees creaked in the wind and the heavens threatened to open any minute. All this on a day that I was meant to umpire a cricket match. Needless to say that my mood closely resembled the weather.

I stood wearing the umpire's helmet. A wide brimmed, white hat. Under it we are safe, sheltered and distanced. It was only when this barricade began to droop that I noticed it was even wet. This was a mystery to me because my outstretched hand couldn't feel a drop. Only later did I realise my hands suffered from a disease contracted by living. They were unable, or unwilling, to accept anything so gentle.

Like so much in life, it was only when I looked towards the heavens that I understood. As my hat fell to the ground, tiny droplets danced across my cheeks, barely distinguishable from a cool breeze. Only the soft skin of my face could feel the splashes. I slowly realised that, without feeling a drop, I had been soaked to the skin. It was rain that I had never before seen, but one that would be with me for the rest of my life.

God is a timeless being, cricket is a timeless game, and this was a timeless rain. It trapped me in a drop in time, the cool mist wrapping around me. Now that my heart had accepted the rain, my eyes were opened to its full splendour. Each soft splash became music for the soul. The sweet smell of a cleansed earth filled my nose. It's cool silver beads shone like diamonds as they rolled down my skin. I stood on a cloud of peace, shrouded in a mist of tranquillity.

The rain was too fine to be seen but when I looked for it, its effects were as visible as the sun. It touched every batsman, every fielder, and every blade of grass. It moved through the field, cleansing all it touched. Many ran, afraid of getting wet. Some walked off, glad to be cooled but not wanting to get into their cars too wet. A lucky few stayed, and basked in its beauty.

As I feared, the heavens did open that day, and brought rain like no other. I opened my mouth to taste the cool crisp rain washing over my face. Instead I tasted a warm salty stream, washing over my soul. Most people couldn't understand why I stayed there in the rain, but they didn't see the rainbow.

One Significant Moment

Sitting, staring down at the hard floor of the plane, it dawned on me that within a matter of minutes my family and I would be gone forever. I had grown to love that little town that was lost somewhere in the North of Botswana. Although, with its dust swirls and blindingly hot summers, it seemed almost uninhabitable but, for me, it possessed a certain charm, which would live with me forever. My love for it was so great and I knew I would always miss it. In this small town where everyone knew each other and all the rooves were green, it was the small things that made it so special. At every small memory and thought I found my grin widening until it could grow no more. I remembered the time Ryan, my best friend, got charged by a donkey. Without warning my enormous grin burst into uncontrollable laughter. My face turned a deeper red and eyes began watering as I tried desperately to hold back the laughter. Although I greatly loved this small town and even though I did not know what lay before me I was also looking forward to leaving. It's strange feeling because Sowa Town had a special place in my heart yet I still felt a yearning to leave. Perhaps I was bored with it.

Once I learnt of our departure date, the time flew by, especially the last few weeks. On that last day I recall opening my eyes expecting light to be flooding through the window, however, this proved not be the case. Instead I was greeted only by darkness and with a pinch of disappointment I slapped my head back down on the pillow. After what seemed like an eternity, the sun started glistening through the window and I knew it was just a matter of hours before the little eight seater should be winging its way towards Lanseria Airport. With glee, I bounded out of bed with my only thought being one of excitement for the coming plane trip. It was all I could think about for the preceding days. The drive to the airport proved to be a very sombre occasion for everyone, except me. Completely embroiled in nervous energy and excitement, I didn't even look back. It was a quick ride to the airport and before long I found myself occupying one of the sought after window seats.

As the engines began to roar, my legs began to shiver. With wide-eyed apprehension, I felt a sudden surge of power and thrust below my feet. The plane accelerated and lifted skywards until finally all I could see was an infinite sea of blue. As I lent over and looked down through the window, I heard my mom say something. A piercingly strong bullet of emotion struck me as I realised I had forgotten the deep sadness I felt about leaving. My head felt heavy and the only sound I could hear was the slowing tempo of my heart. As I looked down at the green rooves, I remembered the fresh smell of rain after a long drought. The feeling of soft wet sand lay implanted in my memory. Questions engulfed my mind. Would I ever see these green rooves again? Would I ever see my beloved friends again? All were questions that had no answers. A deep feeling of regret lay trapped within the confines of my stomach. Every day of those four years had been fun and different in some kind of way and I knew this would never again be possible. I had forgotten about the excitement of the plane trip and instead a menacing feeling of despair seemed to envelop me like a shroud over an ancient tomb. I would have to rebuild a new life and make new friends. Perhaps even become somebody else.

Blinded by the exhilaration of a new experience. I had lost what was truly meaningful and special to me. That town, although small and fairly ugly, had grown on me and become a part of my character. By leaving it I had lost a limb that would never regrow. The beauty of my old home was unparalleled anywhere in the world. Memories of cloudless nights, were all I could see were millions of stars all shining as brightly as the next, pounded through my head. I remembered those times out in the wild where late at night I would spot the eyes and outline of a large hyena. They always seemed so sad. Perhaps it was because they were without friends and staring into a deep darkness they knew nothing about. A piece of my life has been forgotten and no one would ever understand the true significance it carried for me. As I peered up through blurred vision, my mom completed her sentence.

I once again turned my head to stare out the window. This time all I could do was smile at all the joyous times I had had. A new feeling of anticipation and nervousness swept over me. I was looking forward to my new life and, as the plane levelled out, I was at peace with where I was.

Masked Emotion

The granular sand pressed up under my feet and I was feeling uncomfortable. I proceeded down the stairs and glanced up. The, ever present, nauseous feeling in the pit of my stomach flared up and smothered my throat. I couldn't breathe. There, cradled in my mother's loving arms lay my innocent younger sister with tears of sadness cascading down her trembling crimson cheeks. My mother turned to me and, in a voice of sombre fortitude trembled, 'Gran has just passed away, Scott...' Silence...

At that instant a world of joy, happiness and peace was drowned out by the insufferable silence. I longed for someone, anyone, to say something, but they never did. I collapsed on the colourless sand. I could feel the hard salt wind piercing my quivering dry lips and the sand clinging, as if in hope, to my saturated palms. I promised myself that I would remain strong, I wouldn't cry, even though every pulse in my body urged it. I never did. The comfortless atmosphere injected an emotion I seldom felt. My heart was ripped from my chest and I felt defenceless. Someone stole a part of me that I could never replace.

The sun was cresting the horizon and had cast a violet orange explosion in the open sky. The surrounding people were marvelling at its beauty, completely in awe. Not one of them had an intimation of the pain that was torturing me. To them I was insignificant, nothing. They wouldn't even look at me. My individuality was destroyed and my sole emotions seeped away into that same comfortless, colourless sand. Sand that shows no emotion, no happiness, no sadness. It never changes no matter what the circumstances. It never shows excitement or disappointment. It just exists, just like I tried to.

My eyes fell on a lone splinter of driftwood that had travelled many oceans, experienced so much and now left alone to spend eternity parched on that same comfortless, colourless sand. In a sense I felt exactly like that dry, coarse, wood, alone in the world with no hope, no love. Stranded on that same sand with the redundant crashing waves of white love stretching closer and closer but never reaching me to engulf me in its saving power, its rejuvenating strength, the kind of comfort I yearned for, but.... It never did I left that same sand that day, angered at it and hating that magical white water.

My relationship with my grandmother was one of routine deception. I masked my true nature to be perfect in her eyes. I never really got to know her for the person she was. All she was to me was my father's mother, and nothing more. In the end it was too late, she couldn't even remember my name. To my anguish, the effect of her death on me was one I couldn't comprehend. How, in a superficial relationship such as this, could I feel such bereavement at her death? Perhaps the answer I'm searching for lies deeper than masked identities.

The bond that existed between us was bound by our spirits, our own energies that in some form or another were united, a singular energy that flowed through both our bodies that unified us even though we were worlds apart.

I couldn't bring myself to attend the memorial service. I still had a promise to keep and the funeral would have made me cry. To this day I think my parents were disappointed that I didn't go, but I would rather remember her the way she was before she left me. I would like to remember her happy and cheerful, the way she was to me.... But to this day I regret that decision I made. I should have been there to say my final goodbye to her, she deserved it. I have to live with that decision every day and I think it is deserved punishment for my lack of honesty and desire to get to know my Gran. With a that said I have one last thought.... You have but one life, no matter how insignificant that life may be, it is yours to love, to cherish and to embellish. Don't squander it through the lack of courage to live.

Campfire Stories

Darkness frames the dancing fire, Where sparks are bursting with desire Audience excited for a story telling, Seated, encircled in its rocky dwelling.

Old red coals command from below,
As juvenile logs call for the show.
All is hushed while the wizened speaking,
Excitement and drama on bright faces peeking.

The performance wears on, ever enthralling,
Tempo slows down as the young are now falling,
The experienced are content, achieving their goal
All that is left is grey ash and warm coal.

Intangible Dawn

As the last of the sun's life hides away
The innocent boy is lead astray.
Darkness and cold engulf the warm earth
As the light burns out, and gives way to darkness's birth.

He lies waiting, shivering and cold
Twisting and turning wishing he had a hand to hold
Tormented by the sound of silence.
His head spinning, filled with violence.

At the end of his long night
A question posed: "Did I lose the fight?"
Tired eyes see light to the east
Goodnight once again to the insomniatic beast.

No need to argue

No need to argue, keep the peace at heart
All is quiet here, no need to start
I come from a distance, this place to see
What it might have in store for me
I sense a presence of evil and sin
Maybe I'm paranoid and these thoughts are from within
I've been warned not once, but twice
That there's no need to argue, just be nice
My heart is of good intention
I only come here, the Lords name to mention
I am a follower of the Lord
I do not obey the violence of the sword
Just keep in mind, I keep peace at heart
So why would I be here just to start

To be without you

To be without you I could not comprehend.
To think without you at the end.
To live a life and never see you
Or to die a death and never have been through
What we have or will or can.

To sing a song without you in thought.
To live without the lessons you have taught.
To have done what we have done
Or to have over many troubles won
Wars that are not fought without you.

None of this would have taken place.
But were it not for your face.
To have been with you for so many years
And stood strong in the presence of all our fears
Could be nothing but the best and no worse.

People and the Weather

Wherever you go people are linked to the weather. Open a book and read about frosty looks, weather beaten faces and whirlwind romances. Talk to the boys at school and they try to be cool – although sometimes they're pretty wet! Turn on the sports channel and see how Allan Donald bowls lightning deliveries and Mike Tyson lands hurricane lefts.

Perhaps it is because we change like the weather that so many weather-type words are used to describe moods. Even people with a sunny personality sometimes feel as black as thunder which reminds me of Mr Edey on a Friday afternoon after assembly when it's just him and the school raging like a tornado but then a few hours later I'll see him with some parents being his usual apparent sunny self. A whirlwind has the same results as a whole lot of schoolboys sweeping through an area such as a changing room; if you have seen it you will know what I mean. Our lives are so connected with the weather that we use it almost constantly to describe moods, events and personalities. We all know people who look like they're walking around in a fog. When we're feeling bad we remind ourselves that every cloud has a silver lining. After a surprising event we say that it came like a bolt out of the blue. My sister has a voice like a foghorn and my mom gets quite misty-eyed after watching a sad film. There are just so many ways in which people can be described of in terms of the weather.

Seeing that Valentines Day has just passed I though that I might just raise a topical example. Could Shakespeare have compared his lady to a summer's day? Without weather related word in every line sonnet XVIII would not exist. Neither would many other romantic poems and descriptions being used by people all over the world today.

Of course in any real comparison of people and the weather the weather comes out on top. For a start the weather is much older than man and as far as we know the weather got along just fine without us. But where would we be without the weather? We couldn't describe each other as calm equable or temperate. We couldn't be bright and breezy or even stormy and tempestuous. So the next time you are soaked to the skin think of this:

Without the rain Life would be plain And without the sun There would be no fun.

The season has been very successful. Both the A and B teams finished in their best ever positions in their respective Inter High meetings. 366 standards were achieved by the athletes and 14 records were broken.

Results

14 September at Jeppe: Pretoria Boys totally outclassed us, but we were able to beat Jeppe quite comfortably.

Pretoria Boys 361; St David's 186; Jeppe 117

18 September at St Stithians: We were convincingly beaten by St Stithians who appeared to have a lot more depth than in previous years. St David's athletes looked very flat.

St Stithians 336; St David's 217; Jeppe 175

25 September at St David's (Private Schools Quadrangular): St David's athletes performed well and pushed St Stithians in all events. Very pleasing to beat St John's after losing to them in last year's private schools meeting. Looking forward to the Inter High with more confidence than in previous years.

St Stithians 318; St David's 269; St John's 244; St Albans 193

28 September at KES (A Inter High Invitation meeting): Desperately close to causing a large upset by finishing just 8 points behind St Stithians. Pretoria Boys won the meeting for the second consecutive year, breaking the stranglehold that KES have had for many years. It is the best position and the most points that St David's has achieved in the 4 years of competing in the A Inter High. The under 14 athletes excelled with M Sherratt winning both the 800m and 1500m events, and G Benton winning the 200m event.

Pretoria Boys 425; KES 357; Affies 340; Parktown 337; St Stithians 261:

St David's 253; St John's 208; Jeppe 199

28 September at St Albans (B Inter High Invitation meeting): The B team performed admirably and were able to beat St John's by just one point. The B team has only run in this meeting on 3 previous occasions, finishing last on all 3 occasions. This was a significant achievement, considering that we are the smallest school to field a B team. Well done to the boys involved.

St Albans A 338; Pretoria Boys B 293; Parktown B 247; KES B 227; St David's B 155; St John's B 154

5 October at St David's (Inter House meeting): The weather was very unpleasant until the very final stages. Osmond won the school road run during the week and were favourites to win the athletics meeting.

CANOE CLUB

Canoeing at St David's has grown over the last year with a number of our pupils now participating in the major canoeing races held nationally. St David's participated in the Gauteng School's League and was at a distinct advantage due to the depth and skill of our paddlers. Thanks must be given to Neil Powell (coach) and Willem van der Merwe for the encouragement and support they have given the canoe club. The club also enjoys the support of many Dabulamanzi paddlers and our thanks go to Alex Roberts, Graham Cruikshanks, Steve Jourdaan, Erich Glasl and James Crichton, who have given up time to encourage and paddle with the boys' on many river races.

1st TEAM CRICKET

Seated:

As the new season began there were high expectations for this young team with of only two matric pupils to perform well during a very busy season. A lack of experience was made up with some youthful and exciting talent.

The season began with the Potchefstroom Festival, this was the first time we had entered this competition and we faced some strong competitors. Playing three games we lost only one against a well drilled Klerksdorp team. The festival acted as a building block for a tough season ahead. A pre-season friendly between St David's and St Henry's produced some excellent cricket and the game was played in true Marist spirit.

Entering the new season we played against strong competitive schools such as Alberton, KES, St Albans and Kingswood just to mention a few. Our best win of the season, without doubt, had to be against KES. We beat them by 6 wickets.

2nd XI CRICKET REPORT

A season of ups and downs describes the 2001/2002 2nd XI performance, many matches were washed out by rain, and results ranged from comprehensive defeat to resounding victory!

The team was led by Savo Ceprnich and by Michael Thomas when Savo played 1st XI. The pick of the batters were Savo, Michael and Thabo Malebane, with Savo and Michael working hard to play technically correctly and Thabo showing much potential.

Ettienne Raffner grew in confidence as an opener who was very effective in wearing the shine off the ball at the top of the innings, and Andrew Taylor showed promise with both bat and ball which I am sure will come to fruition in the 2002\2003 season. Sean Schoombie wielded the willow with good effect on occasion too. Andrew Parker kept wicket well and contributed regularly with the bat too.

With the ball, Colin Merry, Sizwe Ngcobo and Robbie Smith all proved reliable performers. Between them they demolished

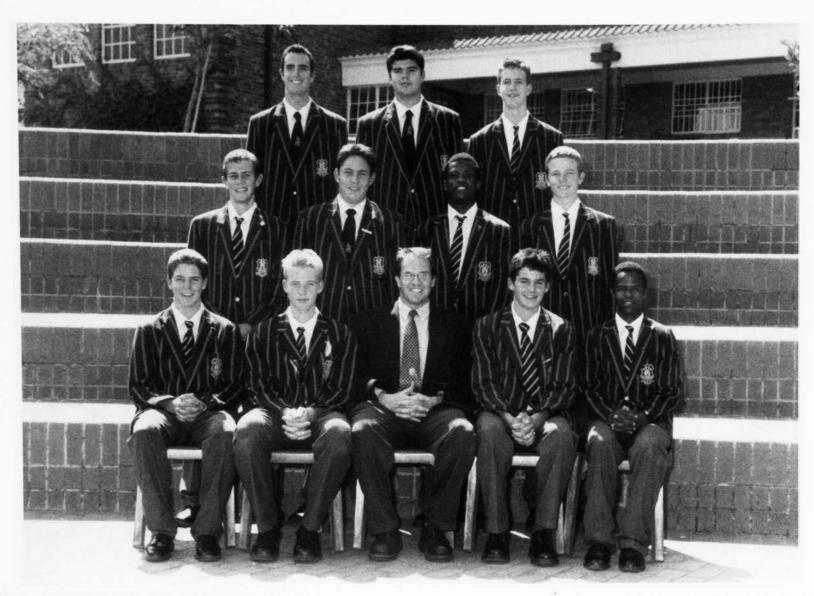

Jeppe and Krugersdorp. A fit Shane Stewart would have added depth to both our bowling and batting, but unfortunately he struggled with injury in the summer. The real tests of PBHS and KES were quite humbling experiences, especially when PBHS reached what we thought was a reasonable target of 176 without losing a wicket!

The team (especially in the game mentioned above), could have allowed their heads to drop, but to their credit they kept the attitude positive and the spirit high, persevering to turn in some outstanding performances. It is with a good deal of pride that I coached such a unit of fine individuals.

Thanks to the many parents who supported the 2nd XI through the good and the bad results, and to the mothers who organized and served the lunches and teas.

Special thanks also to Mr van der Merwe and the ground staff, and especially to Thomas for the long hours spent in the pavilion.

UNDER 15 CRICKET 2002 TERM 1

The under 15 age group has had a successful season with all the teams winning more games than they lost. The boys still need to learn to bat for long periods of time if they are to be successful in future seasons. The bowling was of a high standard and a number of boys have the ability to be matchwinners.

We started the season on a good note by beating Krugersdorp with a good bowling performance by R de Villiers. We then beat Jeppe in a close game that was only won in the final over. St John's beat us convincingly but both C Montgomery and N Neto bowled well. Our final match ended in defeat to Pretoria Boy's but the bowlers, particularly M Zweigenthal, were disciplined and made Pretoria's task very difficult.

We had a very successful tour to Michaelhouse. We won all our matches and played very well as a team. There were some good individual performances, including some excellent bowling from G Benton and N Neto, and excellent batting from N Neto, R de Villiers and J Morrison. Our first match against St Charles was very close, but the other two against Kingswood and CBC were dominated by us. Michaelhouse was a beautiful school to play cricket at with the Natal Midlands in the background and the trains that passed close to the fields. We all enjoyed the tour and would like to thank Mr Ireland for taking care of us over the four days.

We played very well this season beating Jeppe, CBC Boksburg and St Stithians. Our match against St John's was heading for a tight finish but was unfortunately rained out. A good season and a great team. We beat CBC Boksburg on our first outing with a fairly inexperienced team. Great batting all round with some good bowling helped us win. L Southern was the pick of the bowlers taking 5 wickets. S Meydell and D Hlatshwayo were the big hitters and contributed a number of sixes.

Cross Country

St David's joined the Gauteng High Schools Cross Country league for the first time in 2002. Right from the first meeting it was evident that we have many talented runners, both at senior and junior level. The senior team finished 4th overall in the league, with some fine individual performances by Matric pupils. Amos Sedile was selected for the Senior Boys A Team in the Inter-District Championships, while Malcolm Hunter and Kagiso Chitja were selected for the Junior B and C teams respectively.

The Matric boys were so fired up that they decided to compete in the Take 5 Relay Series. This event comprised of a 25km relay event, with every team member running a 5km leg. The first meeting was held at Hartebeespoort Dam where the team was placed 42nd out of 470 teams. At their second meeting at Zoo Lake, the team managed to achieve 14th position overall, and at the Emmarentia meeting, they finished 12th, winning their second silver medal for the event. Unfortunately the team was unable to participate in the last two meetings due to the Inter-High Athletics and their Matric exams (a great pity, as they were leading the Schools category).

Matthew Cameron, Glyn Allen and Amos Sedile regularly compete in road races, with Matthew and Glyn having done some half-marathons, and Amos working his way up to 32km, winning a silver medal at the RAC Tough One.

Thank you to the boys who participated with such enthusiasm and commitment. You have ensured that Cross Country at St David's has a bright future.

Hockey Report 2002

The 1st XI had a solid season, retaining their A section Aitken Trophy status and playing good hockey when they put their minds to it. They were competitive in all their fixtures and certainly showed excellent spirit in many of the games in which they were up against very good sides.

An inexperienced side, they were always led with spirit and passion by Mark di Pasquale. This passion for the game and his selection to the Southern Gauteng U18B earned him the Player of the Year Award jointly with David Venter who played Southern Gauteng U18A, and went on to be selected for South Africa at U18B level. David's success was very impressive in light of the fact that he has struggled with shoulder injuries and surgery for the last two years. He missed the first half of the season due to this, and Brent Jachs played some very good games in goal in David's absence, earning Brent his 1st XI team award in spite of the fact that he played 2nd XI when David was fit.

The team struggled to get the ball in the net on occasion, but on form Dillon Rothman was an effective striker, and Andrew Taylor and Ryan Coomer certainly have the skill required to succeed. James Oberholzer, Simon Allen and Douglas Wood together with Carl van Zyl, who was selected for the South Gauteng U18D side, all contributed significantly to our attacking game.

The defense was solid, and vice captain Matthew Arnold together with Ryan Clarke, Michael Busschau and Jon Green kept many an attacking opponent in check.

The season was a testing one with a full fixture against KES for the first time, which two of our junior sides went on to win albeit on grass! Eight or nine of the 2002 1st XI will be back in 2003 and I look forward to seeing how their game has improved in the off season.

It is expected that there will be eight or nine sides fielded in 2003, and the fixture list appears very challenging thus far, with more of the traditionally strong hockey schools being approached for fixtures.

The 2nd and 3rd XI were successfully run by Greg Borman and Craig Stanway respectively. Both coached with enthusiasm, which showed in the positive attitudes of these two teams to the game. The 2nd XI was captained by Graeme Harding, a player with a very good approach to the game which saw him make a few 1st XI appearances towards the end of the season. The two sides played some good hockey and approached the game with an impressive spirit.

The U15 sides were coached by Michael Marsay, Grant Brennan and Bryn Leadbeater. The two sides acquitted themselves well, the U15A ending with a 70% win rate in their league fixtures, including victories over KES on grass, St Alban's and St Stithian's. The team also competed in the U16 Independent School's Festival, and while they struggled results wise, it was a growth experience which saw them achieve very good results following the festival. Lesego Masekela was rated the fourth best U16 goalkeeper in South Gauteng, Kelsey Stuart led the team by example, and Curtis Montgomery showed that he has tremendous potential. I look forward to seeing the latter two develop further in 2003, Lesego unfortunately is moving to Kingswood.

The U14 age group fielded two enthusiastic sides. The U14A developed markedly over the season, and David de Villiers and Marc de Jager deserve mention for their never-say-die approach to the game.

Gareth Fell, Clive Venter and Greg Ronaldson were the coaches of these two sides and a high standard was set for the boys.

Our thanks go to Andrew Hodgkinson for the amount of time he spent coaching the 1st XI, fitting it into his tight study and work schedule. He certainly contributed substantially to making the 1st XI a competitive unit.

Special thanks are due to Mr and Mrs Venter and Mr and Mrs di Pasquale. They ensured that refreshments and catering arrangements were well managed at home games, as well as being very willing to assist in many other areas including the supporter's club.

Mr Geoff Ronaldson umpired many of the 1st XI matches, and we are especially grateful for this, in view of the fact that Greg has now left the school.

Mrs Dawn Arnold, administrator and fixer of glitches extraordinaire, did most of the administration at school, and much phoning and faxing during the season. This made many a hiccup easy to deal with and many thankyous are due to her!

Margie King ran the administration of the four junior teams and ensured that they were always well informed about fixtures, practices and the like.

Matron Ryan was an endlessly patient First Aid organizer during the season, and our thanks go to her and the many paramedics who were present at our games.

Last but not least, the hockey club staff and players are grateful to the many parents who supported us through the year especially as we used several different venues for home games during the season.

RUGBY

MEETING WITH MADIBA

The Rugby First XV recently had the rare privilege of meeting with ex-president Nelson Mandela at his home in Houghton. Everyone present knew that an hour or more or Nelson Mandela's time meant a sacrifice on his part, but when he told us that on our leaving he had an appointment with Kenneth Kaunda, the ex-Zambian president, and then General Constand Viljoen, we realised just how busy this gentleman keeps himself in seeing to the general welfare of South Africa.

The boys were greeted with the words "I welcome the future leaders of South Africa". Mr Mandela shook hands with all and proceeded to chat directly on pertinent issues for some 45 minutes. He stressed the value of education and emphasised that a matric is no longer enough. He advised every person to strive for the highest possible education in his chosen field, pointing to people like Danie Craven who held two doctorates.

He then revealed fascinating details about the struggle for freedom in South Africa, particularly as relating to the build-up to the first democratic election. It was obvious that if there was a message contained in his words, it was the following:

Always talk. Go to your enemy or your opponent and try to put your problems on the table.

Be prepared always to negotiate.

When even this doesn't work be prepared to compromise. Compromise often hurts, but sometimes it is the only way.

In each of these areas, Mr Mandela gave specific examples from South African politics. His humanity was obvious, and his wisdom an example to us all. Our only regret is that his time constraints were such that after an hour or so we were moved on.

RUGBY REPORT 2002 1st XV

For me personally, this Rugby season has been one of the most exciting seen at St. David's over the past few years. To wear the BLACK and GOLD is and achievement in any St. David's boy's career. There was tremendous spirit amongst the 1st XV players and I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every player who participated, for his dedication, commitment, enthusiasm and support throughout the season.

The first game displayed the quality of rugby that generated a positive support throughout the season from the rest of the school. A victory of 13-3 over King David was a great start for all the new caps in the side. St. Benedict's was the next game, this is a school that is growing rapidly into a leading rugby school. St. David's showed true potential by winning 27-9 displaying a fine performance and generally good skills for the second game of the season. The season was filled with touring sides, first of which was Plumtree, a Zimbabwean team, renowned for their rugby history. The tourists were victorious with a 27-9 win over us. They were friendly guests and enjoyed their stay with the St. David's boys.

The Southern African Schools Festival was next on the agenda. This is an annual festival hosted by CBC Boksburg, which brings boys from the Southern parts of Africa together through rugby. St. David's posted two teams in the festival. The 1st XV opened by defeating the Zimbabwean giants, St. Georges, on the first day, 13-11 and CBC on the second day 13-10. This made us the team to watch for the final day. A disappointing loss to the previously defeated St. Benedict's by 8-24 was not a pleasant way to finish the festival. Despite the loss' the festival was enjoyed by all. Congratulations to Neil Le Roux on being selected for the SACS team.

A two-point loss to Bryanston in the last minute was frustrating, after a match filled with errors from both sides. We prepared well for Parktown after our loss to Bryanston. A display of running rugby, hard yet fair contacts, and remarkable courage from both teams gave an exciting performance to a large home crowd. Parktown came out on top by winning 15-10. This was a tremendous performance by the Black and Gold.

Recovering from the previous game we managed to hold onto a 17-10 victory against St Andrew's, Bloemfontein. A violent midweek game against a controversial Krugersdorp side ended in a 0-3 loss. St. David's is proud to have had a full season without any yellow or red cards, a sign of a side playing rugby in the true nature of the game. A tiring 5-5 draw against Northcliff accurately portrayed the game. It was a game that could have gone either way. Both sides spoilt good opportunities and the draw was a fair outcome. A narrow loss of 16-22 to CBC was deserved. They outplayed us on the day.

Our second touring side was from Tempolgue College in Ireland. These fiery lads were everything we expected. The most down to-earth, friendly guys I have ever met. Not were we only playing our guests, we were challenging our new friends. After a pressure free game, filled with the true delights of rugby, our 17-10 win didn't matter. We had fun on and off the field. We gained more than just valuable memories from their stay: we made friends for life.

A 48-0 win over a relatively weak De La Salle team was good for the side. It let us use future team players and slowly build a team for next year. De La Salle never gave up and showed strong character throughout the game. Our last game of the season was against our competitive rivals, St. Albans. We lost 21-16 in an evenly matched game.

In closing I would like to thank all players and coaches for a successful season on and off the field. We played to the best of our ability and displayed true Marist values throughout the season. Congratulations from the team that goes out to: Neil Le Roux who was chosen to represent the Transvaal Craven Week side, a truly remarkable achievement, and Philip Belamant and Shane Stewart who were selected for the North Central Lions team. An enjoyable season comes to an end.

All the best for next year boys.

2nd XV

The results show that this was a very successful season, with steady improvement both in individual play and team cohesion. An indication of the improvement throughout the season is a 0-0 draw against Bryanston to a 20-12 win against St John's who are arguably one of the toughest fixtures we play.

In regular fixtures, the record shows that we played eleven matches, won nine, lost one and drew one.

The outstanding feature of the team was the "never say die" spirit. The forwards were often heavily outweighed, and at the start of the season, were being out-scrummed. What the pack lacked in size they made up for in commitment and by the end of the season they could hold their own against much bigger packs. The backs settled into a great combination that created tries by willingness to run in support. Nothing showed this more than the try under the posts at CBC Boksburg.

Proof of determination to win? How about an entire second half pinned in our 22 defending a 3-0 lead against the competent well-drilled and quick-packed St Albans.

Our courage and belief in ourselves was never more evident than in the 20-10 win over St John's. With the 1st XV away at the Independent Schools Festival, the seconds were the main match of the day. Against monster forwards, minimal home support, and with three regulars away with the 1st XV squad, we played with pride and team spirit that only months of sweat, blood and tears can produce, along with great and committed coaching. A great win and much enjoyed by the team.

Discipline and behaviour on the field were always to the fore, and the team never let themselves down, despite some severe moments of provocation.

Last year the second team took on the name 'The Dogs' and we kept this tradition this season. It was an honour and a privilege to lead the pack this year. I will never forget the bond and the spirit of The Dogs of 2002. A bring and braai was held on most Friday nights before a game. Thank you to the parents who so willingly hosted these evenings. The atmosphere in the change rooms before a match is something I will never forget. We were totally committed and every player gave 110% the entire time he was on the field, for his team.

I would like to congratulate the team on their support through the season and the discipline and hard work that was shown by all. The season for all of us will, I am certain, always be a special rugby year in our lives and we will not forget the fantastic moments together, on and off the field.

I would like to thank the coaching staff of Mr Mac, Mr Smith and most of all Mr Moffat for the hours that they sacrificed for the love of the game.

A special thanks to George Despotidis, our one and only water boy for our hardest and best match of the season.

Brett Rowley

Open Rugby

The Open 'B' division enjoyed a successful season. There was a great deal of depth and several players in the group had been 'A' team players through the Age Groups. Evidence of the talent in the group was that by the end of the season a number of 3rd XV regulars were representing the 1st XV squad at the Independent Schools Festival in Bloemfontein.

3rd XV

The 3rd XV got off to an excellent start to the season with good victories over St Benedict's, St Peter's College (first team) and Bryanston. The side boasted a powerful front row and excellent halfbacks. Ricky Brocco at fly half proved to be a most reliable place kicker and showed considerable tactical acumen. Etienne Raffner was a most enthusiastic captain until injury curtailed his season.

The team attempted to play the ball wide and scored some attractive tries in the process. Several of these boys have the ability to make the big step up into the 1st and 2nd XV's in 2003. Much will be expected from the likes of D Gladulich, E Raffner, D Giacovazzi, G Allen and R Brocco next year.

Thank you to the players for their hard work, to the parents for their positive support and to Mr van der Merwe and the ground staff for the excellent facilities.

The following were regulars for the 3rd XV:

T Kidney, D Gladulich, E Raffner, D Giacovazzi, D Bruneau, J-F Bruneau, M Snyman, A Castle, K Biller, D Henry, G Allen, Z Mpahlwana, R Brocco, R Smith, F Williams, C Green, S Conway, C McWilliams, C Parker, D Ballantine.

4th and 5th XV

Both teams had fewer fixtures that the 3rd team but it says a lot about the growth of rugby at St David's that we were able to field a 5th side. The 4th XV turned in some fine performances and are to be commended on being the only Open side to win against Parktown when T Malibane put over a penalty in the last minute to squeeze home 13-12. Certain boys in this group have talent and need to become more focused and disciplined about their rugby.

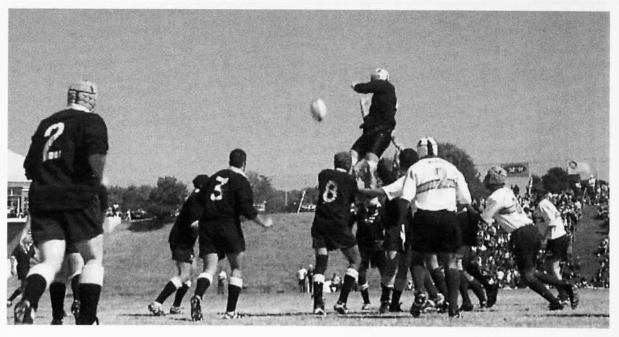

Thank you to the matric boys who turned out regularly for practice – you provide the depth for your more illustrious counterparts in the higher teams.

Regulars for the 4th and 5th XV were:

K Mullane, B Kolsch, C Devonport, S Kolsch, M Brink, D Wiggill, R Horsfield, N Ansell, G Stiles, J Barrow, K Gullacksen, S Ceprnich, A Michael, M Cameron, N Goncalves, T Malibane, R Ramsden, A Cavalieri, J Pohlman.

After an unsuccessful under 15 season this group of boys was determined to improve. The commitment and enthusiasm in the age group losing only 10 of the 28 matches played.

The A team started the season in a very determined manner and the loss to King David in the first fixture intensified their determination and showed them the standard of rugby that was required at the under 16 level. It would be unfair to make special mention of individual players in the team: they all played so well. Total dominance in the line-outs; rock solid scrumming' exciting; attractive back line play, and a pair of ferocious flankers all contributed to a fine season.

The match of the season was undoubtedly the U16A match at St Benedict's. St Benedict's took a 17-5 lead after dominating much of the first half. St David's fought back hard, kicked 2 penalties, scored 2 tries and 1 conversion and ran out winners 23-17. Both Mr Fry and I considered it the most exciting and most attractive game of rugby played by a St David's team this year. This victory was to be the start of a 9 match winning streak.

Other highlights included the narrow victories by the u16A over Parktown and St Albans; the u16B's convincing win against St John's and their hard-fought victory over St Peter's u16A; and the u16C team's wins against both King David and St John's.

The boys also played several internal rugby matches including a very successful sevens rugby tournament between 8 evenly matched u16 St David's teams.

The following boys were awarded under 16 Age groups scrolls: C Burgess, M Colley, R Fraser-Jones, S Grant, C Marsay, M

McLaverty, W Meier, C Phillips, N Rasenti, K Robertson, N Schilperoort, D Schneider, C Small, M Starkey, D Williamson.

Mr B Ireland

Under 16A Captain's Report

This season was a turnabout for us. Unfortunately we lost the first game but fought back strongly in the second. It was the first of many victories. We took it one game at a time and before we knew it, we had eight victories under the belt. The last game of the season against St John's was by far our toughest. The game was equally contested and was tied fourteen all with only moments to go. Then a split second decision by our flyhalf, Warren Meier, resulted in him slotting a drop goal to bring us victory. It was a great game to end off a great season. I would like to congratulate all the Under 16's on an outstanding season and hope to see many of them in the first team next year.

Scott Grant

Under 16B Captain's Report

Our season got off to a flying start with great rugby being played by the team, however we narrowly lost to sides we should have beaten such as Parktown and Bryanston. Nevertheless the team picked themselves up and achieved a memorable victory against Northcliff with Wesley Tucker making a try-saving tackle resulting in him breaking his nose! Special mention must be made of Michael Busschau who played his first ever match of rugby, putting up a valiant effort against St John's. He even managed to score a try. Other memorable tries were scored by Earl, Kalil, Smith, Hugo, Reeves, Borrageiro, Estment, De Chalain and Crichton. This concludes a fairly successful season.

Age Group MIC Report

It was the 1st game of the season and we were watching the giant boys from the King David team take the field. "I think we should go, I do not want to hang around for this" I overheard one of the moms say to another. "They got a hiding from them last year" she continued. "Let's just stay a bit", the other said.

The boys, however, were ready for their opponents. Clinics, morning training, reading, fitness and intense team match practice had preceded this day.

The opponents kicked off and 30 seconds later we had points on the board and a confused team of opponents standing behind their poles. This was to be a familiar scenario at most of the games played this year. The team grew in confidence with every match and their repertoire was rather extensive by the end of the season when the selected few went on to play matches at club and provincial level.

I personally enjoyed the season. It was also my pleasure to include Philip Bellamant and Shane Stewart in the provincial academy team that Mr Thompson and I selected and coached.. A memorable victory was over the Cheetas team that comprised mainly players from the rugby giant, Grey Bloem. All in all the Golden Lions team played 8 matches and only lost one match, by a single point. The Coca Cola Cup that combined Alex Youth Club and St David's Open boys also got off the ground.

Other interesting highlights included coaching the Prep Gr 7 boys in Afikaans. I was also fortunate to ask the GLRU to allow the Welsh U/21 world cup team to use the school fields for their practices.

UNDER 14 RUGBY

Our players have been introduced to an awesome, eye-opening standard of rugby this season. Altough the results haven't been what we were hoping for, the boys have achieved in so many aspects of the sport.

The coaches developed and designed training programmes to enhance and improve the skills and abilities of our players to ensure maximum output.

We pushed, pulled and prodded. At times we thought to ourselves, "Surely they must hate what we put them through." Lying down on the rugby field twitching, in their various states of exhaustion and nausea after a gruelling training session only to gaze up at our faces and to be subjected to comments such as: "Come on – three more reps before you've finished"

"You must work harder and increase your intensity"
"Don't lie there too long – we're not finished yet"

Training has to do with overcoming yourself or that little voice inside that tells you, "You can't do this." The vital strength of character training that you need to conquer that little voice takes place at training.

Our under 14 players have developed strength of character which has made us extremely proud. They were highly motivated, fiercely competitive and downright stubborn in refusing to go down without a fight.

The most rewarding aspect of coaching these boys has undoubtedly been watching them develop into good all-round players with all the necessary mental and physical attributes to play and compete with the best of them.

SOCCER REPORT - 2002

Judging by the number of boys attending trials and the enthusiasm generated by the introduction of Soccer into the College in 2002, we can only expect to achieve great success in the years to come.

There can be no doubt that St. David's soccer is a force to be reckoned with and and the College teams will surely look to dominate our opponents in the same way as we have in the Preparatory School.

All our teams set high standards in terms of training, uniform and results and the enthusiasm of the boys was most encouraging. We must all continue to work towards achieving excellence and we will certainly achieve success.

Congratulations to both the 1st XI and the Under 14A teams who progressed into the latter stages of the Sportsmania Knock-out Cup Competition, with the 1st XI losing in the semi-finals to Sandringham and our Under 14 A ending as runners-up in the Final.

The support we received from our fellow pupils was heartening and on behalf of the players, I would like to thank you all for your contribution.

Thank you to Mr. P. Andrew for his assistance in the running of our teams. Thank you to Mr. P.A. Edey and Mr. M.G. Williams for their continued support and interest in our sport.

Swimming at St David's is going from strength to strength. Twelve galas were swum throughout the season, four in 2001 and the rest in 2002, with St David's hosting four of them.

In February St David's was invited to participate in the 10 Schools' Gala for the first time, exposing our boys to invaluable experience. We finished a creditable 7th position, ahead of King Edward VII, Hilton College and Parktown Boys. Gala was won by Durban High School, followed by Pretoria, Maritzburg College, St Stithians, Kearsney and Glenwood High School. Our U/19 breaststroke relay took our only first place in a record time of 2 min,25,13 sec.

Our annual tour to Durban took place the following weekend. St David's once again took top honours at the Marist Brothers' College Invitation Gala at St Henry's. The boys acquitted themselves well in the Midmar Mile, with thirty-two of our boys all finishing in less than 35 minutes.

Tensions ran high with the approach of the final two biggie: the Inter-High Relay Gala and the Inter-High Gala. In both galas, we were placed 4th, after Pretoria Boys, St Stithians College and King Edward VII. There were nine schools participating in both events.

The season ended on a high note with the annual St David's Co-Ed Gala. As usual, great fun was had by all, the winners irrelevant, but phone number swopping definitely not!

I would like to thank every boy who made a contribution to the A team and especially to the 2002 captain, John Brown. Good luck for next season! Our open age group will be sorely missed.

TENNIS 2002

St David's tennis continues to grow in number and strength. The objectives of the club are to produce quality players and enable as many boys as possible to participate in and enjoy their tennis. The school currently has 8 teams playing in various leagues, more than any other school in Gauteng. All in all, more than 90 league matches were played during the 2002 calendar year with the College teams winning over 70% of them. The A and B teams, in particular, enjoyed a successful year and will be playing in leagues 1A and 2A respectively next year after winning their leagues in term 3.

A major development is the construction of 3 additional tennis courts for 2003. This will mean space for more coaching and league matches. The goal for 2003 is to provide professional coaching for the boys the entire year.

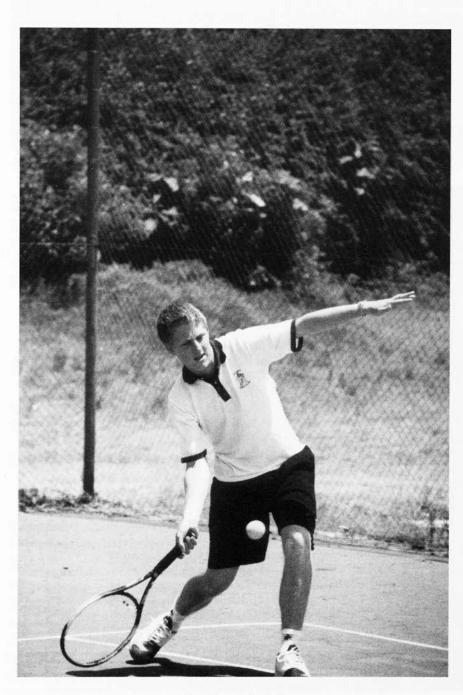

Many thanks are due for the 2002 year. Firstly, to all the boys who elected to play in the leagues in an attempt to improve themselves. Secondly, to the staff who unselfishly gave of their time, in particular Mrs L Nagy, Mrs B Marais and Mrs J Roman. Thirdly, to the coaches: Andrew Falck, Eddie Giuricich, Gian Carlo Scognamiglio, Daniele Carnicelli and Robin Goldby. Hopefully your association with St David's will continue in future years. Thanks also go to Mrs M Golden for arranging fixtures, venues and transport for the many league matches and to all the mothers and fathers who supported their sons during the year, especially Mrs Kerry Tindall for her assistance with the A Team.

I believe St David's has the players, facilities and coaching structures to become one of the top tennis schools in the country over the next few years. The boys must strive to reach higher goals, both physically and mentally during 2003. As master-in-charge of tennis, I have thoroughly enjoyed the association with all concerned in 2002, and wish all the players well for the future.

The Four schools tournament held at St. David's

Saturday morning started off great as the weather was on our side. St. David's hosted Hyde Park, Boksburg and Randpark and we were all eager to into the water. The turnout of parents was fantastic, as always, and the atmosphere was warm! St. David's presented themselves well and the spirit was enthusiastic. Thank you to Mr Buys and Ms Cotton for all the hard work that they contributed to the event and congratulations to the St. David's boys for playing waterpolo that dazzled the audience.

N Tsaperas

The 1st Marist Cup Tournament

The team contesting the inaugural Marist Cup comprised of 7 U/16 players and 6 open players. The team was captained by Tim Johnson. Friday the 25th was the day of the Cup. There were 2 Marist teams and teams from: Fourways, Jeppe, St. John's, Crawford, St. Benedicts and CBC Boksburg.

Our first game was a bye as CBC failed to arrive. Marist team 2 was knocked out in the first round, however, we went through to the semi finals where we played Fourways 1st team. After their preliminary round game, Fourways had become the favourites of the tournament.

We began our game in high spirits and with adrenaline pumping. The first 3 chukkas were a deadlock tie at 0-0. At the start of the 4th chukka we conceded a goal, but we struck right back with a great team goal executed by Scott Conway. Unfortunately Fourways scored in the dying seconds of the game resulting in a 2-1 victory for Fourways.

I would like to congratulate everyone on their superb performance and the great heart shown in the pool. We look forward to many more years of this fun tournament.

G Nieman

U/14 Ken Short Tournament

The U/14 waterpolo tournament held at Jeppe on Friday 22nd and Saturday 23rd was indeed fun and a fiercely contested competition. Thirteen boys were chosen to go to Jeppe for the two day to play a minimum of six games whether the teams won or not.

St. David's played very well against some of the strongest teams in Johannesburg and Durban. Our first match was great as we went out and drew against St. Stithians, but they withdrew from the tournament and we were awarded the winning points. We then had a great win against Benoni, but sadly lost to Jeppe, although it was a good match. We won against Grey College and lost against DHS. We beat Pretoria Boys and lost to Selborne College who went through to the finals and won. In the play-offs we went up against Afrikaans High to contest seventh and eighth position, but sadly lost. We ended 8th out of 16 schools.

Well done to all the teams that participated in the event and thanks to Jeppe for a wonderful tournament. Special thanks to Andrew Hodgekinson, who refereed, coached and helped us through the two days and thanks to Ms Cotton and Mr Buys who came to support us. Well done to the St. David's team for their great effort throughout the tournament and their good sportsmanship. Keep it up U/14's!

M Carey (captain)

Under 15 tournament at Parktown Boys

Over the weekend we attended the U/15 Parktown waterpolo tournament. All our games were very hard and challenging. Our final position was 7th out of 12 schools. Everyone in our team was very pleased with our performance against high calibre opposition. Last year we came twelfth so it was a great improvement and a good performance. Thanks to Nick Black for his encouragement and coaching.

Greg Black (captain)

Under 16 tournament at St.Dunstan's

We started off with a very disappointing first game against Benoni, where we lost 2-1. Our best game of the tournament was against St. Stithian's where we only lost 4-1. The team played a really great game and got it together to mark tight and prevent their very strong team from scoring any more goals. A big thanks to Mr. Burgess for his invaluable assistance at short notice.

Craig Burgess (captain)

The 2nd Marist Cup Tournament

This tournament was hosted by St. David's for the second year and was won by Benoni with Pretoria Boys as runners up. The spirit of the tournament was great and many of the games were closely contested - especially the semi-finals. The Marist teams faired well against stiff competition and came 6th and 8th, respectively.

2nd team Tournament at Parktown Boys

Saturday 2 November was a cold and overcast morning, and the last place one would want to be was beside a pool at 8h30 AM. Nonetheless that's where 12 polo boys sat at Parktown in surprisingly good spirits, despite the weather. We had 5 matches ahead of us, each one seemed more difficult that the one before it.

All the boys acquited themselves well and we started the day with three victories. We followed with two draws. In the game against Parktown II we were 2-0 down in the 1st chukka and we came back to level the score, which meant that we started our game against St. John's needing only to draw in order to win the tournament. We still went out looking to win and we took the lead with the first goal. St. John's pulled back late in the second chukka with the goal that resulted in a draw.

Thanks go to Ms Cotton, R Pizzi, all the parent support and to the players themselves, and to the St. John's team who supported us very enthusiastically against Parktown.

F: MIC's Report

Going South to go North

It is better to sail a humble boat well than a powerful boat badly. This year was marked by the re-evaluation of the goals and core-principles of what constitutes St. David's waterpolo.

Enter the AGM

The focus of this informal 'indaba' was how to turn the big pond's small fish into a ferocious piranha. In an analysis of what went wrong - what went right, both staff and parents tried to see the way forward. Important points of view were put to the vote and the air was cleared of car park gossip. Intended originally as a once off occurrence, this highly successful evening will now become an annual part of the waterpolo programme.

The village dines ...

In something akin to the last page of an Asterix and Obelix story, the annual dinner was held in the college pavilion. After a memorable waterpolo prayer, by Rev. Nick Bruce, the newly appointed captain, Tim Johnson, the first team coach Byron Hardy and the parent support group leader, John Biller, spoke passionately about life, the universe and waterpolo. Fredrick Barnard, the evening's guest speaker spoke of days when he wore the black and gold, and the associated trials, tribulations and tall tales that still get told around the campfire. A pearler was that of Ms Heather Joseph's aerobics classes that resulted in a 'covert' spectator's fall through the ceiling during one of her classes.

Tuesday is hard-core day

In a bid to increase the exposure of the 1st team to tougher teams St. David's entered the Tuesday U/20 league held in the evenings at St. Stithian's. Thanks must go to the Old Boys who have generously agreed to sponsor this league on an annual basis.

Marist Cup is on the map

Up and running, the second Marist Cup was one of the highlights of the year. Having added another two schools to the list of partaking schools, the tournament had to be played in two pools. Exciting polo yielded Benoni as the victors who keep the cup of this bi-annual event for 6 months. It is also encouraging to see the popularity of the Marist Cup apparel worn around participating schools. Talk about free advertising!

We go a Waltzin Matilda

The Blackburn Friars is an Australian touring group and a selected group of boys were invited to play them at St. John's on the 10th and 11th of April. The boys played well, but unfortunately lost both games.

Off to Selborne we go

Amidst Athletics season, St. David's eventually cracked the nod to participate in the prestigious Sterrenburg Shield held annually at Selborne College in East London. A hastily assembled group of keen non-athletic U/14 and U/15 waterpolo players accompanied me and coach, Nick Black, on a luxury liner to the land of the Elephant. After 14 hours on the road we got off the bus and straight into the first of the five games for the day. The boys played against stronger and older opposition, but never lost their composure or good sportsmanship. They emerged after nine games of waterpolo, stronger, wiser and sneakier. Good fun was had by all.

Tall trees

Tim Johnson proved his worth with his provincial selection for the Gauteng U/18B team. Playing in the A league of the SA Schools Inter Provincial tournament they face exactly the same opposition as their A team counterparts. In the same vein, David de Villiers and Matthew Sherrat represented Gauteng in the U/14 section of the SA Schools inter-provincials. Congratulations Tim, David and Matthew.

Waterpolo goes digital

Communication has added the email format to its quiver of arrows (a product of the AGM) which has propelled St. David's waterpolo to new levels of efficiency. (buysm@stdavids.co.za)

Caps go Turbo

In an attempt to solve the ongoing cap maladies, players are now required to buy their own Hungarian 'Turbo' with the school crest printed on it. This will bring about a welcome change to the image of the St. David's waterpolo player.

Hot Stuff

An ongoing effort to heat the pool has finally gained momentum under the combined effort of Mr. Biller, Mr. Castle and myself. I look forward to the first mid winter swim!

DIY waterpolo

All in all a total of 5 clinics have been held this year. With coaching talents of the likes of Vlado Trininc (current Masters captain and U/18 provincial coach), Vaughn Wickens (Provincial), Byron Hardy (Springbok) and Fredrick Barnard (Premier League) to mention but a few.

Cherry on top

A last word of thanks to Ms Cotton who was, as usual, her dependable and enthusiastic self, especially in the latter part of the year when D&T commitments prevented me from attending many practices and matches.

HEADMASTER'S SPEECH

Rick Wilson - Headmaster Preparatory School

HEADMASTER'S ADDRESS AT SENIOR PREP PRIZEGIVING

Chairman of the Board - Mr Riley, Guest of Honour - Mr Edey, Members of the Board, Staff, Ladies and Gentlemen and last, but by no means least, boys.

Being a teacher has its moments. In amongst the various curved balls that come your way on a daily basis, come some humourous moments too.

As parents, you know what it's like first thing in the morning on a school day and you are trying to get ready for work, you have to make junior's break snack, the electric gates have stopped working and the maid hasn't shown up amongst other things. Then you remember you have to write an excuse note to explain your son's absence the day before.

A school in England started to collect some of the funnier excuse notes received from parents - for non-attendance at school.

Some of the better ones included:

"Please excuse Lisa for being absent. She was sick so I had her shot!"

"My son is under a doctor's care and should not do PE today. Please execute him."

"Carlos was absent yesterday because he was playing football and got hurt in the growing part."

"Please excuse Raymond from school as he has loose vowels."

"Please excuse Tommy from school yesterday. He had diarrhoea and his boots leak."

"Please excuse Jimmy from being. It was his father's fault."

"Please excuse Maria, she has been sick under the doctor."

"Please excuse Jennifer for missing school yesterday. We forgot to get the Sunday paper off the porch and when we found it on Monday, we thought it was still Sunday!"

And my favourite:

"Maryann was absent December $10-14^{th}$ because she had a fever, sore throat, headache and upset tummy. Her sister was also sick with fever and sore throat. Her brother had a low-grade fever and ached all over. I wasn't the best either, sore throat and fever. There must be something going around. Her father even got hot last night!"

Thankfully, the excuse notes we receive from parents make more sense.

Tonight has nothing to do with excuses, we are gathered here to recognise the efforts of the Senior Primary boys of St. David's. In order to best put the achievements of the boys in perspective, it is necessary to review the developments and progress that have been made throughout the campus, which have inextricably played a part, in providing the launching pad for the boys' achievements, to be accomplished.

Many of the young men sitting in front of me are unsure if they will be receiving an accolade or not this evening. Some may have an idea, but many have no inkling if their names will be called out. Tonight, is either going to be a night of triumph and glee, or one of disappointment and bewilderment.

In the final assembly yesterday I told the school that every boy attending St. David's is a winner. It was not a trite remark. This winning may not be in the academic field, sporting arena or on cultural stages, but rather victory comes to all boys in a distinctively less tangible, less materialistic way. Being a winner, boys, is not always about certificates or trophies – it is rather best measured in each individual's personal growth as a human being, being part of the team, and personal milestones achieved that might have gone unnoticed by either your teachers, or parents. Yes boys, tonight, in your own way, each of you is a winner and we recognise you this evening for being the great boy that you certainly are!

Ponder for a moment on this:

An experiment was once done where some fleas were placed into a jar, with the lid closed tight. The fleas jumped to escape - and hit their heads on the lid. It hurt. The more they jumped - the more it hurt.

Eventually, the fleas became tired of being hurt and so they jumped just high enough so as not to hit their heads on the lid.

Later, the lid was removed. Although each flea was more than capable of jumping out of the jar and escaping, none did. They had come to accept the external conditions and control - and their own failure to overcome these. They weren't even going to try and jump out for fear of hurting their heads.

Boys, promise yourselves today – that you will never become like those fleas. Jump and jump high – even if it hurts. The more you jump, the greater your opportunity to escape the jar in the end. In your lives – the jar is the limitations you impose on your imagination and the power of your mind. If you think you can't do something – the chances are you won't even try to do it!

Those of you who don't receive anything tonight – don't look on yourselves as a failure. No-one can do everything well, but we can all do a lot more than we think we can. With every bit of success we achieve – there also has to be a measure of failure. What you might think is failure, is actually an opportunity for you to learn, a chance for you to take stock and look for another way of doing things. Failure, is a place from which to launch yourself into the future and achieve SUCCESS.

The world's greatest basketball player, Michael Jordan once said:

"I have missed more than 9000 shots in my career. I have lost almost 300 games. On 26 occasions I was entrusted to take the game winning shot...and missed. I have failed over and over again in my life. And that's precisely why I succeed."

In reviewing the year, I move from theory to more practical matters.

What a successful year 2002 has been. I think you will agree though - it has passed us by with the speed of an English rugby wing. In sitting down to consider the achievements and developments in the school this year, I didn't find it easy to reconcile just where the months had gone. Looking back through the year though, I can say without any shadow of doubt, that once again, we managed to pack a huge amount into the past 11 months and, yes - it has been an overwhelmingly successful year on a number of fronts.

Our on-going development continued and we, the three school heads, found ourselves in either site meetings or planning meetings most Friday mornings. When you look back, much has been achieved in terms of new buildings over the past six years and there is still much we would like to do.

first term we were the winners of the Independent School's league and both age groups had an excellent year. The standard of play in the school championship was the highest I have yet seen.

Turning to the gentle art of chess, our boys once again acquitted themselves very well and three boys were selected for the South Gauteng team for the Inter-provincial. Yes, we have enjoyed our sports this year but at the risk of appearing to pour cold water on these achievements – to both parents and boys – I remind you to enjoy the experience whilst you are winning, because it doesn't last forever - ask Rudolph Streuli!

Turning now to our Grade 7 group.

I would like to preface my comments to you by informing you that whilst this has been a hugely successful year for most of you, you must remember that what constitutes success is measured by different things at different stages of your life. At the moment, for you, success is probably gauged by sports results, academic results and girlfriends, in that order. No, let's try that again – Girlfriends, sports results, girlfriends, academic results and girlfriends. To give you some guidance and to illustrate what success REALLY means at different ages I offer the following:

At age 4 success is not wetting your pants. At age 12 success is having friends. At age 18 success is having a driver's licence At age 20 success is dating a beautiful girl. At age 35 success is having money At age 50 success is having money. At age 60 success is dating a beautiful girl At age 70 success is having a driver's license. At age 75 success is having friends At age 80 success is not wetting your pants.

We have a strong group of Grade 7 boys this year. An indication of their ability can be seen in the results they achieved in the Scholarship Exams for the High School. Of the top 20 candidates in English – 19 were from the Prep. In Maths, of the Top 20 – 15 were from the Prep. and overall - 18 of the Top 20 came from this group of Grade 7's. This fine result culminated in 5 Scholarships being awarded to our boys. Craig Wallington was the winner of the major closed scholarship, whilst awards were also made to James Clark, Kyle dos Santos, Dino Zuccollo, and Craig Watson.

Twenty-two boys were invited to participate in the annual St John's Science Olympiad and we were delighted when Andrew Nicolau finished 2nd overall and James Clark and Craig Wallington finished in the top 10%.

Eminent amongst this group of talented boys, was the mini mayor of Johannesburg - Brian Lebos. There are two people whom I prefer to not share the stage with in speaking engagements - the first is Mr Edey and the second - Brian Lebos. For Brian, standing ovations are quite commonplace, for Mr Edey and I - they are not!

The procedure for election to mini city council is as follows: each participating school in Johannesburg sends two representatives to Council and from all of the candidates - the Mayor and Executive Committee are elected. Whilst we were euphoric with Brian's appointment as Mayor, we were equally thrilled when Remy du Plessis was elected onto the Executive, as councillor in charge of recreation. In the past five years, the Prep has produced two Mini Mayors, a Deputy Mayor and a member of the Executive. Additionally, one of our former pupils, Grant Gardner, has been the Junior Mayor of Johannesburg this year. I think this achievement is a wonderful indication of the calibre of young men who attend St David's.

As we bid farewell to the Grade 7's, most of whom are joining our high school, I would like to dedicate the following blessing to them:

May you have Enough happiness....to keep you sweet.

Enough trials...keep you strong.

Enough sorrow....to keep you human.

Enough hope...to keep you happy.

Enough failure...to keep you humble.

Enough success...to keep you eager.
Enough friends...to give you comfort.
Enough wealth...to meet your needs.
Enough enthusiasm...to look forward.
Enough faith...to banish depression.
Enough determination....to make each day better than yesterday.

Go well boys!

As is the case in most schools – the end of the year often brings staff departures. We are losing three fine educators in Mrs Everson, Mr Mitchley and Mrs Perdikis.

Mrs Everson has been Head of English and has brought creativity, insight and a love for the language to this subject. She is a remarkable teacher, one for whom the boys have enormous respect and affection. A shining example of a true Marist educator, Mrs Everson set a very high personal standard in everything she did and stood for. We congratulate Mandy, who is joining Kingsmead Preparatory as Deputy Headmistress.

Mike Mitchley will be joining the staff at St Peter's after 10 years service in our school. He is a special educator – the epitome of the traditional schoolmaster – strict, steadfast and with a deep sense of dedication towards those entrusted to his care. He has done sterling work not only in the classroom, but also on the sports fields as football coach and 1st Team cricket coach.

Debbie Perdikis has, in the three years she has been with us, managed to earn quite a reputation! I hasten to add – for all the right reasons. She possesses tireless energy, fierce creativity and drags others along in her wake as she forges ahead in educational practise. Debbie has been both a breath of fresh air, and a great deal of fun. As she moves with her children to Somerset West – I shall take the liberty of forewarning her next Headmaster of which social party skills he will need to hone when she hits his school!

To all three of you – I thank-you for the huge input you have made as individuals and as team players to our school. I confident in my belief that - as your legacy lives on here – you, for your part, will always remember the special people you leave behind at St David's.

Just as we say farewell to those who leave us – we welcome new staff members to our family tonight.

Mr Bruce Eyles is unable to be with us as he is still in Durban. Bruce joins us from St Henry's Marist in Durban where he both went to school as a boy and also where he has been teaching for the past 10 years. He will teach Grade 5 and additionally coach the 1st Team cricket.

Ms Serena Agar joins us in Grade 2. She has been teaching at Wendywood Primary and in addition to her classroom talents, she is a football referee and coach. Mrs Dalene Halton and Mrs Tiziana Harris are our new Grade 00 teachers and Mrs Alida Mendes our Grades Administrator.

There are many words written about what it means to be a teacher.

I would like to dedicate the following to my staff:

What is a teacher?

She must have the energy of a harnessed volcano, the efficiency of a Pentium computer, the understanding of a psychiatrist, the wisdom of Solomon, the tenacity of a spider, the patience of a tortoise trying to cross a busy road at rush hour, the decisiveness of a general, the diplomacy of an ambassador and the financial acumen of a Wall Street stock broker, She must remember that she uses words to teach but the children learn most by her example. A teacher may possess beauty, grace or skill, but most importantly she must possess love. A deep abiding love of, and respect for the children – individually and en masse.

She must cherish the little boy who is inconsiderate, bothersome, an intruding bundle of noise with the appetite of a horse, the digestion of a sword swallower, the energy of an atom bomb, the lungs of an opera singer, the imagination of James Bond, the shyness of a violet, the tenacity of a steel trap and the enthusiasm of a firecracker.

I don't think there has been a single year in the past six when we haven't been building something. We realise the pressure this places on everyone in the school community, but the fact is that our school stood still for 40 or so years and we were somewhat left behind. The demands of our increased enrolment dictated that we needed to address what was in many cases infrastructure creaking under the strain.

The main development, which stands out this year, has been the construction of the Grade 00 facility. We have long debated the merits or otherwise of creating a Grade 00. Our parents have often requested this addition and after sampling the market, took the decision to build one classroom. When we went public on this decision, we found ourselves inundated with application queries and we hastily revised our original plan and added in a second classroom and a large therapy room. The latter will be a wonderful enhancement to the Grades block. Our teachers are particularly adept at spotting developmental delays in their pupils at a young age and presently – the little fellows have a long walk, on short legs, to big school to receive therapy. Now they will have it within their own block - saving time and energy. The new facility is stunning!

It seems amazing that a year ago we were still wondering if the Earth Summit on Sustainable Development would actually happen, and if it did, what impact it would have on the school. As we all know - it DID happen and it had the following effect on the school. Firstly, the long promised widening of Rivonia Rd. was started in earnest and finished ahead of time and under budget. We suffered a fair amount of inconvenience, but were undoubtedly winners in the end. Whilst we lost a thin sliver of land, we were compensated both in monetary terms and also with the construction of the beautiful palisade fence and soundproof wall at the council's expense. We hastily brought forward our plans to make a new entrance to facilitate easier access and give our school a more prominent, convenient and befitting gateway. There still remains some work to be done in terms of the internal road system, which will be undertaken in due course.

In a relatively minor project in terms of building, this year we initiated our two Bridging Classes. We were very mindful that there were some boys who would really benefit from smaller group instruction in the key Learning Areas of Numeracy and Literacy. To this end, we created two small classes - one to cater for Grade 1&2 and the other Grade 3&4. We believe that these classes have been a great success and over the 12 months many of the boys have made such good strides, that they no longer need to attend them next year. I am most appreciative of the wonderful work, care and investment in those boys made by Mrs Hedding and Mrs Crossley.

Another spin-off from the Earth Summit, was the renting out of the school premises, by South Africa's most persuasive salesman Mr Willy Castle, to the Smithsonian Institute. Some extremely high profile politicians including Colin Powell and the Japanese Prime Minister, visited the campus. Not only did we receive fairly handsome payment for the hire of our school, but they also donated a few computers and other equipment.

There are still a number of major projects in the pipeline which are under consideration. These include a Design Technology centre, expanded Music facilities, conversion of the playground into another field and heating the swimming pool.

Our current tennis courts have reached the point where it is no longer feasible to repair them and under the exhortations of Darrel Webb and David Smith – tennis continues to grow in popularity – both in the Prep and the high school. To this end, work has commenced on a super slab where our old tennis courts were situated and this will allow for 8 new courts to replace the five we had.

In April this year, we upgraded the computers in our Prep Laboratory. This is the second upgrade in the past 6 years. At a cost of R245 000 this is a hugely expensive exercise, but we feel that it is important for the boys to work on decent machines. The calibre of the work they are producing under the guidance of Ms Sartori - using the full Microsoft Office Suite, is most impressive and we have received compliments from the high school IT staff on the skills with which our boys are transferring to the high school.

From development, I now move to matters educational.

Earlier this year, the whole school undertook a theme we optimistically called "My African Dream." We felt that we should dedicate some time to making the boys more aware of all the things they have to be thankful for in this beautiful country. Prominent role models were highlighted and this culminated in the visit on 12th June by South Africa's most loved Grandfather - Nelson Mandela. His address, to the assembled children of St David's and Holy Cross School, without referral to notes, lasted for 30 minutes. It contained humour, Shakespearean quotes and the usual down-to-earth pragmatism. 'Madiba' was Magic!

I mentioned Holy Cross School being in attendance. If you have been following our Newsletters, you will know that we have 'twinned' with this Catholic school located in Diepkloof, Soweto. We are making an effort to supplement the efforts of their teachers, in what are for them, sometimes very trying conditions. We took a conscious decision not merely to provide them with material goods, but rather focus on education skills enhancement and to this end we have shared professional exchanges in both directions. You might imagine the excitement in their crowded classes when a number of our teachers went in and taught lessons in their area of expertise. We have additionally made copies of many of our lesson plans for their school and with a generous donation from one of our parents - we have purchased desks and chairs and upgraded toilets, which were in an advanced state of disrepair! My special thanks to Mrs Perdikis and Mr Webb for driving this very worthwhile initiative.

Thirty boys were invited to go to Mark Shuttleworth's 'Hip2Bsquare' road show and they came back buzzing with excitement following a brilliant display.

From academics, to sport!

There are many boys and at least one outspoken Deputy Headmaster, who believe that sport, is life – everything else is just detail.

Is sport the tail that wags the dog in our school? When I wrestle with this - I console myself with the knowledge that we live in an era when children are becoming increasingly inactive. It is quite alarming to note the decreasing levels of gross motor capability of boys entering our Grade 0 classes. Low muscle tone is sadly now quite common, where in the past it was the exception. This is, naturally, a consequence of the conditions we live in – locked up in fortified strongholds and entertaining ourselves with the latest sophisticated inter-active technology. Our heavy extra mural programme, thus serves a very real dual purpose.

Our sports results, under the watchful eye and iron fist of you-know-who, have once again been outstanding. In swimming, we were the top school at the Prestige Gala and our 'A' team with Marc Neto to the fore and some outstanding junior and senior swimmers, were unbeaten.

Our 'A' athletics team was equally as strong, winning all but one weekly meeting and finishing second behind King Edwards Prep. at the Prestige Athletics.

The football season was a vintage one, with our teams once again winning over 80% of their strength vs strength matches. The 1st Team in particular must rank as one of our strongest ever. They often scored 5 goals or more and their 6-2 away victory over St Stithians and 7-0 win over St John's, was a showcase of football skills. Five boys were selected for the regional team.

Our cricket results have not been at quite the same level as football this year, but winning 70% of strength vs strength matches must rank as creditable.

We were delighted to secure the services of our former cricket coach Mr Ronnie Carr for the latter part of the year and he has already made a difference in coaching the finer points of the game to our boys. Mr Carr will be a full time employee in 2003 and we look forward to him sharing his vast knowledge of cricket with your sons.

As mentioned earlier, tennis continues to flourish as a result of the enthusiasm of Messrs. Webb, McIver and McIntyre. In the A teacher must know how to teach many things: reading writing, mathematics, spelling, geography, music, health and art. She must also manage during her 5 hours to teach manners and consideration to those children whose parents have despaired and failed for the other 19 hours.

A teacher must also possess many other abilities.

She must learn to judge between pushing and encouraging a child. She must know what decisions to make - and what decisions must be made by the child. She must be steadfast without being inflexible, sympathetic without being maudlin, loving without possessing. She must live in a childhood without becoming childish, to enjoy its great joys, satisfactions, its genuine delights, while understand its grief, irritations and embarrassments.

A teacher must every year – send 25 boys to another teacher – proudly, lovingly, sadly – and await 25 more - ready with love and eagerness.

For all of this, a teacher gets paid more than a dustman, but less than a mechanic, more than a shop assistant, but less than an insurance salesman. She invests more in a child's life and well-being than the family doctor and dentist combined, but only earns a small fraction of their salaries.

The amazing thing about a teacher though, is that she would not trade jobs with anyone she knows. She teaches because she loves children.

Thank God for so many who see teaching, not as a job, but as a God-given task.

My sincere thanks to the staff of the Prep school for their dedication this year.

There are so many in our school community who have contributed towards our success in so many ways that to single them all out by name would be impossible. Special mention should be made however of the Board, PTA, Pavilion Committee, Tuck Shop and uniform shop helpers. These folk have given freely of their time throughout the year and together with those who have also contributed in any manner – we say a heartfelt 'thank you,' - you make our lives that much easier.

To my wife Gerry - I thank you for your patience and support and for constantly reminding me - that I may be the Headmaster at school – but I'm not the Headmaster at home!

I close with my favourite blessing for all in our Marist Family:

May the road rise to meet you

May the wind be always at your back

May the sun shine warm upon your face

The rains fall soft upon your fields

And.....until we meet again

May God hold you in the palm of His hand.

I wish you a merry Christmas and peaceful and prosperous New Year.

HEADMASTER'S ADDRESS AT JUNIOR PREP PRIZEGIVING

Good morning Mr Edey, Mr Williams, invited guests, ladies, gentlemen, colleagues and boys. I bid you a warm welcome.

There is a small underlying theme in my speech this morning. It is best illustrated by the following short story about a man who comes home from work one day, tired and irritable and he is met at the door by his 5-year-old son.

The boy says "Dad, can I ask you a question?"

"Sure" his father replies.

"Dad, how much money do you make in an hour?"

"That's none of your business" snaps the father "why do you ask anyway?"

"I just want to know. Please tell me Dad."

"If you must know, I earn about $20 an hour," says the father.

"Oh!" replies the boy, head bowed.

Looking up he says "Daddy, can I borrow $10 please?"

The father was furious "If the only reason you wanted to know how much I earn in an hour is so that you can borrow some to buy a toy or sweets or something silly, then you can go straight up to your room and go to bed. Whilst you're there, think about why you are so selfish. I work long hard hours and I don't have time for silly games!"

The boy went to his room and shut the door. His Dad sat down and fumed about his son's ungrateful question. How dare he ask it just to get some money? After a while, the Dad calmed down and thought over his actions – deciding that he's been a little hard on the boy who, after all, seldom asked for money. Maybe there was something he really needed to buy after all!

The Dad went to his son's bedroom and said, "Are you asleep son?"

"No Dad" the boy replied.

"I was too hard on you earlier," the man said. "It's been a long day and I'm tired. Here's the $10 you asked for."

The little boy sat up beaming "Thanks Dad!" he said excitedly.

Then reaching under his pillow, he pulled out two crumpled notes and some coins. The father seeing he already had some money started to get angry again. The boy slowly counted out his money and then looked at his father.

"Why did you want money when you already had some?" the father grumbled.

"Because I didn't have enough and now I do." Said the boy.

"Dad, I have $20 now, please can I buy one hour of your time?"

It was the most humbling lesson the father had ever received.

It's all really a question of time you see!

My address to you this morning, you might be relieved to know, is not a time consuming affair – rather a short report on some of the accomplishments and achievements of the year. My speech this evening carries more substance, and you might be interested to know that the staff wager bets on exactly how long the speech will be. I have inside information and so I hope to win the wager this year!

This year has been another busy one in our school – especially the Foundation Phase. Time seems to have flown by but much has been accomplished in the school.

After careful research and planning we created our two Bridging Classes, one catering for Grade 1&2 and the other for Gr. 3&4 boys. The rationale behind these classes is to provide extra support in Numeracy and Literacy for two hours a morning in the shape of small group instruction, with teachers who are appropriately qualified. Mrs Hedding and Mrs Crossley have done some sterling work and the classes have achieved a remarkably high level of success.

An important addition to our Foundation Phase next year is the opening of our two Grade 00 classes. We have been discussing the possible merits of offering this age group for as long as I have been here and, as I understand, it was debated even before my arrival. We will have two small classes of 16 boys taught by Mrs Halton and Mrs Harris – both well qualified and experienced to teach at this level. Adjoining the Grade 00 classrooms is a spacious Therapy Room where our two Occupational Therapists and Speech Therapist can assist those boys in need of extra help.

The programme in Grade 00 will be aligned with what the top nursery schools are offering and with the strong emphasis on developmental play. The obvious benefit, which will accrue, will be that 32 boys out of an intake of 75 will enter Grade 0 all having been through our carefully structured programme, together. This, in contrast to the current situation whereby our Grade 0 staff receive 75 boys from a huge range of nursery schools – all at different levels of development and with different skills. Additionally, separation anxiety, which affects a few boys at Grade 0 level, will be less of a problem as many of the boys will have been in the Nursery block for a year and it will all be familiar to them.

The classrooms are complete, all the equipment has been purchased...as the saying goes...let the games begin!

Whilst on the subject of staff, sadly, at the end of this year we lose Mrs Perdikis from our J.P. staff. She has decided to move with her family to the Western Cape where she will be teaching at Somerset House Prep. School. In the 3 years Debbie has been with us – it would be an understatement to say she has made quite an impression. She is a talented, insightful and hardworking teacher. She has played an important role in the implementation of OBE in the Junior Primary. She was also the leading motivating force behind our twinning with Holy Cross school and the "African Dream" theme, which the whole school undertook – culminating in the visit of Nelson Mandela to address our pupils and those of Holy Cross. Debby, we will really miss you – your inspirational teaching and great sense of fun! Go well!

To the special ladies who make the team of Junior Primary teachers, so ably led by the inimitable Glenda Anderson - I would like to pay a special tribute. In their busy days, your colleagues in the senior phase may seldom stop to appreciate all the work that you teachers have done with the boys before they receive them. The incredibly difficult process of teaching the boys to read, write, listen and take responsibility for themselves, has been done. As I stated in my analogy of children and diamonds a few years ago - the senior primary teacher receives a semi-polished gemstone which Junior Primary teachers have unearthed, chipped off all the rough edges and shaped for final formation and polishing. Ladies, I thank you for a year of dedication, at times – stress but above all - loving investment in these wonderful young men in front of me. We couldn't ask for a better team. I take this opportunity too, to thank Mrs Carides who has so ably stepped in for Mrs Hurley whilst Debby has been ill. Marigo – thank you very much.

Boys, I know the last thing you want is to have to sit through long speeches so I won't put you through that. This is the last thing you have to do at school this year. In January – you will come back in a new year, in a new class with a new teacher. I think you have all had a very good year and you all deserve a well-earned holiday – with lots of reading every day.

Now to the important part of proceedings – handing out prizes. In the senior primary ceremony this evening – we will recognise the efforts of those who have progressed or excelled in the various areas of the school – academics, sport, cultural, the Pupil Development programme and so on. Here, this morning, we will recognise an achievement of each boy in the Junior Primary. We have not invited a special guest of honour to hand out prizes – instead, we are asking the class teacher to come forward and hand the certificates to her class. We do this in a modest attempt to recognise the wonderful work they have put into the boys. They should be the first to see the happiness on each young man's face when he receives his certificate.

It's a known fact that over the course of the year - teachers become very attached to the pupils in their classes. They have invested a lot of time and effort into trying to prepare each boy for the year ahead. Just as when a gardener sows a packet of seeds - the flowers all grow and bloom at different rates, so do children blossom and flourish at different times to their classmates. How often have teacher and parents fretted about little Johnny who just doesn't seem to fulfil his potential? How often have parents worried about the small stature of their sons, or his lack of co-ordination on the sports fields, only to be amazed when he suddenly bursts through and surprises everyone. How often do the sports stars in the Prep school get caught up and overtaken by their team-mates as they go through adolescence? Thankfully, we can never predict how our children are going to turn out. Imagine how dull parenthood would be if we never had that special thrill when our children achieve the unexpected.

In Johannesburg we just seem make survival the goal for every day. We rush from home to work, (dropping off our children at school on the way) pack as much as we can into each day and then come home later than we would like and collapse on the couch to recuperate. By this time – usually our children are getting ready for bed. During the week, the teachers see more of and have more influence over the development of your child than you do. My appeal to all parents is to try and be creative in finding time to be with your sons. There is no stronger investment you can make in him, than to give him your time. The pleasure gained from material gifts is but momentary in comparison to the genuine lasting pleasure and formation a son gets when his Mom and Dad spend time doing things with him.

All the Moms and Dads sitting here – let our New Year's resolution be - to find as much time as possible to invest in these marvellous young men!

In the 1970's a singer named Harry Chapin wrote a rather poignant song about why it's important to find the time to spend with your child. It's called "The Cat's in the Cradle." You will be relieved that I'm not going to sing it to you, but I would like to read it to you:

CAT'S IN THE CRADLE.

My child arrived just the other day
He came to the world in the usual way
But there were planes to catch and bills to pay
He learned to walk when I was away
And soon he was talking – and as he grew
He said "I'm gonna be you like you Dad,
You know I'm gonna be like you!"

The chorus went:

And the cat's in the cradle and the silver spoon
Little boy blue and the man in the moon
"When you coming home Dad?"
"I don't know when, but we'll get together then, you know we'll have a good time then."

My son turned ten just the other day Said, "Thanks for the ball Dad c'mon let's play." Can you teach me to throw I said "Not today, I've a lot to do"

He said "That's ok."

And he walked away but his smile never dimmed And said, "I'm going to be like him, you know I'm going be like him."

He came from college just the other day
So much like a man I just had to say
"Son I'm proud of you can you sit for a while?"
He shook his head and said with a smile,
"What I'd really like Dad is to borrow the car keys,
See you later, can I have them please?"

I've long since retired my son's moved away
I called him up just the other day.
Said, "I'd like to see you if you don't mind?"
He said, "I'd love to Dad if I had the time.
You see my new job's a hassle and the kids have flu
But it's sure nice talking to you, Dad
It's been sure nice talking to you."

And as I hung up the phone it occurred to me He'd grown up just like me My son was just like me.

In closing, I would like to thank all who have contributed in any way to the school this year – those who have served on committees and the volunteers for the numerous events and tasks we have undertaken. You have individually, and collectively contributed that most valuable of commodities – TIME!

And now, it's TIME to recognise progress in each boy sitting here!

I wish you a Blessed Christmas and peaceful and prosperous New Year.

Thank you.

VOTE OF THANKS TO THE STAFF

It was the best of times it was the worst of times. Although Charles Dickens was not a St. David's Grade Seven pupil, he must have known how I feel this evening. Tonight as I stand before you it is the worst of times. We the grade 7's of 2002 are sadly leaving the safety of the prep school and venturing into the unknown, high school.

Good evening ladies and gentlemen, honoured guests, Father Michael, members of the Governing Body, Mr. Edey, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Williams, Mr. Castle, Mr Web and fellow pupils.

I stand with a heavy heart, looking at all my friends. We have all been through a lot together and we have survived.

And then I see all the future Grade 7's. Boy are you in for a rough time.

We entered Grade Seven filled with pride and self importance at being the seniors of the prep school. We leave now humble, spiritually enriched and fortunately, well equipped for the challenges that lie ahead as we enter high school.

This confidence in our abilities to cope with the future is thanks to the dedicated staff of our prep school.

Eight years ago a class of impressionable young 5 year olds arrived at this school. We were to embark on a journey that none of us would ever forget.

It all started with that first small step in Grade 0.

Thanks to Mr. Van de Merwe, our groundsman, we walked into a brilliant looking school. Already we were proud to be St. Davids boys.

Mrs. Anderson you were there to welcome us, and like a mother you watched over us, guided us and prepared us for our wonderful sacraments, our first confession and first Holy Communion.

Matron, your tender care of our cuts and grazes made sure that every boy in the high school is still in love with you! Mrs. Tarlie and Mrs. Pillay, as our school therapists, your door was always open to us.

Father Michael Austin, you have allowed boys to be boys, and yet have guided us on our Catholic journey through prep school.

As we got older, and the time in confession got longer, due to all our bigger sins, we were fortunate enough to have the gentle but firm guidance of Mrs. G and Mrs. Hedding, our dedicated R.E. teachers. Mrs G your support and input during our term of office as mini-councillors will be cherished forever by Remy and I.

Tonight we salute all the teachers who have had a hand in preparing us for our final year in the prep school. They are in no particular order, Mrs Voight, Mrs. Jones, Mrs Johnston, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs Whitfield, Mr. Sinclair and, finally, Mr. Thackwell, our director of the pupil development programme. Each of you has enriched our lives and insisted that we have upheld the values of our founder, Marcillin Champagnat.

Picture this: we, the grade sevens as exquisite Ferrari cars. We're good looking and intelligent enough to be! Ask any of our parents! Each of you our grade seven teachers were a member of the Ferrari design and engineering team.

Ms. Joseph our talented art teacher, I think you tried to create a car in your image, sleek, reliable, beautiful and intelligent. Thank you for our valuable lessons in perception and form.

Ms. Blake thank you also, for enriching our lives and cars with song and music.

Ms. Johnstone, you always knew which books would fuel our engines.

When we have had problems with our on-board computers, Miss. Sartori you have always been there. Thank you ma'm.

Mevrou MacWilliams, u het ons Afrikaans en Biologie lesse net so opwindend soos n Ferrari wedren gemaak. Baie dankie mevrou.

Siabonga Nokisakazi Browne. Sikhuluma nesibhala isiZulu, Siyanadoda. We are men!

A valuable lesson taught by our two inspirational H.S.S. teachers, Mr. McIver and Mr. Hosmer is that you never need to re-invent the wheel. We thank you for the wheels with which you have equipped the Grade Seven Ferraris. This knowledge of our world will always ensure a smoother ride.

The mathematical and scientific skills that Mr. Mitchley has taught us will help us to plot our course and negotiate those sharp turns. As you take 'the road less travelled' at St.Peter's we wish you luck. Sir, don't forget that you will always be able to plot your way back to St.David's to visit us.

With clever scripting, clear directing and slick production, Mrs. Everson you have been responsible for the final drama of getting our lives on grand prix race track of life. You fostered a formula one love for the English language in each and every one of us.

Mrs. Everson the extent of our love for you as our class teacher this year knows no bounds. We will miss you ma'm.

A car is only as good as its driver! A school is only as good as its leaders. We, at St.David's, are privileged to have three of the most outstanding leaders.

"Education is the great engine of personal development. It is through education that the daughter of a peasant can become a doctor, the son of a mine-worker can become the head of a mine, that the child of farmworkers can become the president of a great nation." Mr. Webb, these words epitomize what you have taught us through our P.D.P. goals and our life skills lessons. We thank you sir.

Mr. Castle, Bruce Lee, believed that "the key to immortality is living a life worth remembering". Sir you are a legend. Not only do we believe that "soccer is life, the rest just detail," but you have also taught us that a team is like a finely tuned engine: some parts strong, others reliable, but all necessary. You have taught us that each of us is unique and important, on the field as a team and off the field as a school. We are as proud of our association with you, sir, as we are of our association with St. David's. We will never forget you.

In the words of George Herbet 'If great men would take care of little ones both would last longer." Mr. Wilson, Our principal land mentor, you are a great man. You made sure that each year was one of pleasure and discovery. Under your guidance we, the little ones, learnt that each day held something special and new. You showed us that success is in doing the best you can, believing in the best you can be, and always having faith in what you can do. We are proud to have been influenced by a man of your calibre.

To the outgoing Grade Sevens, my classmates and my friends, I have been both honoured and humbled at representing you tonight.

To those of you who are moving on to other high schools, you will always be first and foremost St. David's boys.

It is in dreaming the greatest dreams and seeking the highest goals that we the St. David's boys can build our brightest tomorrows.

So now let us take what we have learnt at this proud establishment into the future. Wear your blazer with pride and carry the Marist ethos close to your heart.

Hold your head up high for you are a St. David's boy.

My friends, as I end with my favourite quotation by Nelson Mandela, remember, "I am proud to hold your hand for us to go forward."

2002 PREP INTER-HOUSE QUIZ

The 16 boys selected to represent their House in the Inter-House quiz on Tuesday 6 August were all very anxious but excited as they walked into the Hall to face their friends and classmates in the audience.

The contest was a hard fought one with the lead changing hands many times and the boys surprised their parents and teachers with their knowledge in the three categories of General Knowledge, Sport and Current Affairs.

The contest was tight but the College team of Michael Berti, Kaelo Molefe, Stewart Leith and Gareth Seland ran out deserved winners by a clear 9 points over their nearest rivals Benedict.

My thanks to the enthusiastic contestants who provided an enjoyable and entertaining morning for the Grade 6 and 7 pupils and the parents who were able to attend.

Final points position:

1st	College	62 points
2 nd	Benedict	53 points
3rd	Osmond	50 points
4 th	The Bishops	49 points

CHESS REPORT

This year St David's Prep once again entered two teams into the Gauteng Primary Schools Chess Association. The Junior team won their section (North Central) and came joint third in the invitational playoffs. The boys attended a prizegiving at King David Linksfield where they were awarded medals. Well done to the Junior team: John Sherry, Claudio Romano, Kyron Van Dyk, Stephen Thatcher, Michael Wilson, Matthew Zambon, Daniel Still, Thomas Davey amd James Thorne.

Congratulations to Bradley Campleman, Brendan Stott and Stephen Thatcher who were awarded their Provincial colours by the Gauteng Schools Chess Association and will be representing the school in Worchester in December. Good Luck boys!

Congratulations also to one of our Grade 0 players, D. Thatcher who came second in the Netcare Championships in August.

The Annual Inter House Chess matches were once again well supported. Thank you to everybody who participated.

The results were as follows:

Senior winners – College
The overall winners were The Bishops with 24 points followed by College 21.5 points, Osmond 21 points and Benedict 13.5 points

A big thank you to Mr Pearson for the commitment he shows in coaching our boys. Our Chess Teams have gone from strength to strength through his continued support.

Africa Day

St David's had an "African" day in which the older grades twinned with the younger grades and helped the younger children to create interesting beadwork. The beadwork was placed at the top of pencils and then donated to Holy Cross School in Soweto. Great fun (as well as lots of learning), was had by all.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM THE MEDIA CENTRE

It has been a very busy year for the boys. Their lives have been made easier, as they have been able to come to the library and carry out research for their projects during the day and every afternoon.

This year has been exciting, in that we purchased the Alice Softlink library program and converted to the new system half way through the year. Alice Inquiry has made it possible for the boys to look for books on every computer in the Library. We hope to have it installed on all computers in the school so that staff and pupils can access library information from their classrooms.

Reading habits in the lower part of the prep remain encouraging and the boys have enjoyed the new stock of books we have acquired recently. A DEAR period (Drop everything and read) for the Grade 6 and 7 boys was introduced to encourage the older boys to take time out to read. This was met with some ambivalence. For the first time the Grade 0 boys are able to come once a week to visit the library and to borrow books to take home for mom and dad to read to them.

Audrey Hitchcock paid us a visit early in the year and put out a wonderful display of books. She whet the boys' appetites with snippets from some of her favourite books and then they were encouraged to read the books to find out what happed in the end.

The boys enjoy using this wonderful facility and they describe it as being: "spacious, and a happy place to meet up with our mates." There is always a buzz in the library and boys and teachers enjoy working in the library. The viewing room has provided the boys with the opportunity of watching videos, TV programs or DVDs while they wait for their parents. Teachers from both the College and the Prep use it regularly as a teaching aid. We are truly blessed to have such a well-equipped facility for the boys and teachers alike.

THE GRAHAMSTOWN FESTIVAL

In July a group of ten excited boys and two excited staff set off to the Grahamstown Festival. This was the first time such an expedition has set forth from St David's and it was without doubt a great success. The boys were exposed to drama, story telling and its value for carrying a message to a community, puppet making, various crafts, music, gumboot dancing and even ballet. Unfortunately, several of our number fell asleep during the ballet. In spite of the extreme cold in the mornings and evenings, the days were pleasant and enjoyable. We learned a lot, met lots of new people, (mostly girls), and had loads of fun.

MATHS

Chase Remmington researches his grade 6 maths project on the 2002 National Budget. The learners discovered the pros and cons of Trevor Manuels financial juggling act and also looked at the Budget through the eyes of their parents.

Open day brought parents into the classrooms to view the works of their sons. Ally Schilperoort admires Christopher's polygon and his Mathamagic book.

"Chubby bunny" was the exercise used to demonstrate what happens when we over stuff our brain. Kevin McCarfhy managed to push a half a dozen marshmallows into his mouth, much to the amusement of Matthew van Buuren.

MINI CITY COUNCILLORS

It is the end of a wonderful term of office as the Mini- Mayor; a time to look back on all the wonderful and exciting things that we, the mini councillors did. My year on council was absolutely incredible and it will be cherished and remembered for ever. It is the end of a year where I could selfishly devote my time to helping those less fortunate than we are. It was a year where Johannesburg, became my city, where the children of Johannesburg, and the mini-city councillors and my school became my family.

I have always taken so much for granted. Since visiting Selwyn Segal on Community Service day, one of our new and hopefully permanent projects, I cherish my intelligence, and my physical competence.

As the Mini-Mayor I have had the privilege of meeting many exciting people such as members of parliament and the executive Mayor of Johannesburg, Councillor Amos Masondo. I had the honour of opening K-TV Market Day and also met the two celebrities from Big Brother 1, Leigh and Margaret. Being on the Felicia Mabuza Suttle show was the reward that we, the councillors, deserved after all the work that we had done.

This wonderful opportunity would not have come my way had it not been for the trust and belief in me by my fellow peers and the staff at St.Davids, who gave me their vote of confidence. A special thank you must go to my Principal, Mr. Wilson, for his constant support. He always took the time to listen to our speeches, no matter where we were delivering them, and made the mini-council's projects part of St David's' projects. Thank you also to our absolutely fabulous council co-ordinator Mrs. Geldenhuys. I will always be grateful for your helpfulness with the Easter Egg Collection and Blanket Square distribution. Your help and support and belief in me will never be forgotten. Mr. Castle, your generosity and help with our first, public function, the soccer day, and your constant support will always be valued. Mr. Webb your understanding of the need for my council duties to take priority over sport or academics is greatly appreciated. It has been an honour representing St.Davids on the Mini-City Council, and I know I have held the Marist Ethos in high regard as I carried out all my duties. I tried my best to follow in the footsteps of our founder, Marcellin Champagnat. All I can do is hope that I have made you proud. The letters of congratulations and support from our Executive Head, Mr. Edey, and the head of our high school, Mr. Williams, will always be cherished. I look forward to entering the high school. I would like to express my heart-felt gratitude to Remy du Plessis my co councilor for his support during the year.

We the mini-councillors have learnt it is in dreaming the greatest dreams and seeking the highest goals that we build our brightest tomorrows.

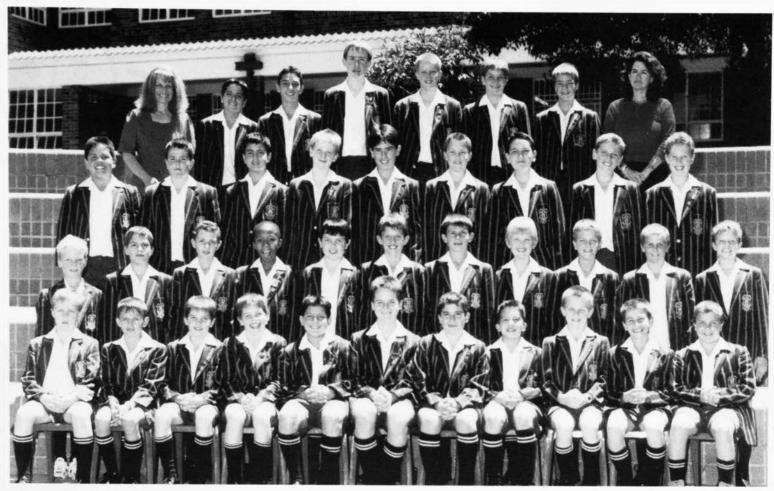

Brian Lebos

Before I bombard you with information I would like to introduce myself. I am Remy du Plessis and I was elected to represent St. Davids on the Mini City Council for the year 2002-2003. On council I was elected as the Executive of Recreation. Council has been an amazing year for me; I thoroughly enjoyed myself and had a lot of fun. On council we do lots for people that are underprivileged. You all know what I am talking about when I say Easter egg collection. But lots of you, parents and pupils, aren't sure why we collect Easter eggs. Well this year all the Easter eggs you collected went to various hospitals and we, ourselves, handed the Easter eggs to the patients. Seeing the smile on their faces uplifted us. If you are fortunate enough to be on council, you will really start appreciating what you have. You see, on council it's not only helping people, but getting people to help themselves. Without Mrs. Geldenhuys, Mr. Castle, all the teachers and pupils that voted for us, and I cannot forget my dearest mom and dad, none of this would have been possible, so thank you very much. And last but not least thanks to my co-councillor and Mini Mayor, Brian Lebos. So to the new councillors of 2003-2004 I wish you the best of luck.

Choir was a good experience for me this year. I am going to take this as an advantage-People think that choir is not cool; but this year in our choir we

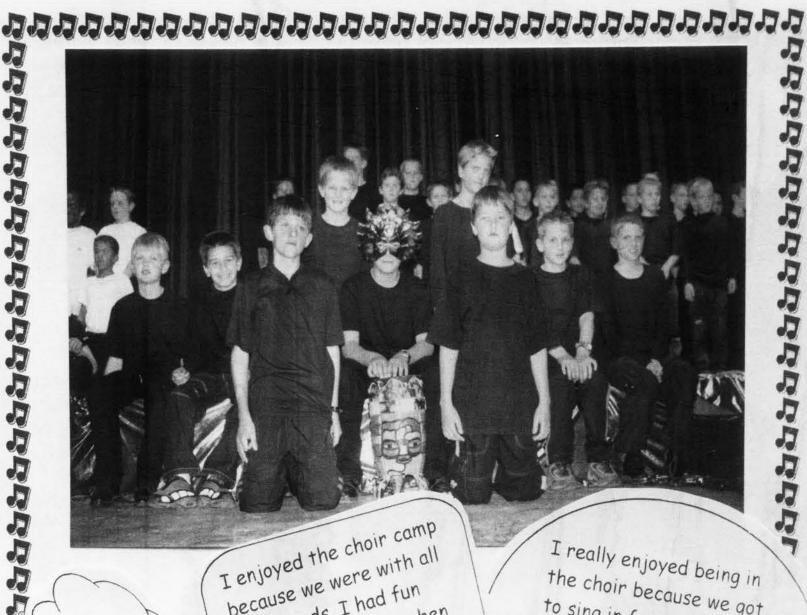

I like chair because of the fun we have with all our activities. We get many opportunities to sing in front of other people- not only our friends, parents and teachers, but others too, I also like choir because of the songs we sing. We don't always sing songs with the beat or by the same singer, but we sing a variation of songs. I also like choir because of the teachers. Mrs Hart, Mrs Jones and Mrs Brown have been nice and faithful to me. That's why I like choir. BARRY MORISSE

I like choir because it teaches most of my favourite songs. There are interesting movements and clothes. Most of the Christmas carols I can sing to my family. When I am bored, it keeps me occupied. RONAN WORTHINGTON

DRAMA CLUB

A small but committed group of boys attended the Drama Club this year. Although our afternoons were often interrupted by sporting commitments and other meetings, we did the best we could with the time we had. The participants learned several poems for individual recitation, practiced making and presenting advertisements, prepared and unprepared readings and generally having 'dramatic' fun together. Many of the club members made up the group who travelled to Grahamstown for the Festival.

THE ENGLISH DECLAMATION

The year 2002 saw a different approach to the annual declamation. This year, all the Grade 6 and 7 boys prepared their speeches at school under staff supervision. This was done in order to give each pupil equal opportunity succeed. Elimination rounds were held until the best 12 were selected for the actual day. The standard of public speaking reached new heights as a number of extremely competent boys made excellent presentations. Mr Foulds offered his valuable adjudication once again and made several significant observations. The boys are to be commended on the high calibre of their speeches. Brian Lebos was awarded the Best Speaker Trophy at special prizegiving and mention should be made of Gareth Brickman whose outstanding impromptu speech left his audience astounded. In fact, he was given a standing ovation by his peers – a rare occurrence among thirteen year old boys. Testimony indeed to his exceptional talent.
